OBSTACLE-RELIC REMOVED—Heavily burdened vans have been dodging this vestige of pre-Civil War Atlanta for 38 years. The site of the carriage and servants' house of the famed Kontz residence, 80-86 Marietta street, is being demolished now.

Investigation Of Professors, Texts Looms

Talmadge Orders List of 'Foreign' Teachers at University.

By LUKE GREENE.

An investigation of the University System of Georgia that may result in a mass purge of professors and text books was forming on two fronts yesterday.

Governor Talmadge, still chafing from the Board of Regents' action in re-employing Dean Walter D. Cocking, ordered State Auditor B. E. Thrasher Jr. to get him up a list of "all those foreign professors" and added, "We are going to have a little fun."

At the same time, Al Henson, assistant attorney general in the labor department and a staunch Legionnaire, said he was beginning a thorough examination of books used in various institutions of the University System with a view of ferreting out those that advocated Communism or anything else except Americanism.

Rugg Textbooks.

Henson was one of the mainstays in the recent campaign against use of the Rugg textbooks in the state school system because they allegedly taught Communistic doctrines. The State Board of Education in effect barred them from use after a heated controversy.

Governor Talmadge said he planned to go to Detroit, Mich., Saturday to preach Sunday in the church of Dr. Frank Norris, Baptist "flying parson," who visited the Georgia legislature while it was in session. When he gets back the Governor said he expected to start going over the list of "foreign professors."

Asked if he meant to eliminate all those who came from outside the state, the chief executive replied, "I ain't saying what I'm going to do."

"I do think, however," he continued, "that if some of these professors can get more money and bigger jobs somewhere else, then we ought to do all we can to help them get those fine jobs."

Evidently, he was referring to Dr. Cocking, who was said to have been offered a job outside the state at a salary considerably more than the $5,250 he is receiving as dean of the University education school. Governor Talmadge denied that Cocking had received such an offer.

Hits "Foreign" Professors.

The Governor added, "I never did think foreign professors were any smarter than our own Georgia professors."

Henson said he planned to bring complaints about the use of subversive books in the University System before the regents last Monday, but that he was unable to do so because of the length of the hearing. He added criticism had been directed at Dr. Marvin Pittman, president of the Georgia Teachers' College at Statesboro, for using certain unauthorized texts.

"I know that 99 per cent of the teachers in Georgia are all right," Henson said, "but it is the one per cent that I'm after."

Traffic-Snarling Old Buttress Demolished After 38 Years

Railroad Buys and Removes Obstacle Near Tracks; Old Building Was Carriage House of Historic Kontz Residence.

By WILLARD COPE.

For 38 years it's been jutting out into a downtown heavy-duty traffic passageway like a sore thumb—but yesterday it was down to about a nubbin, and by the end of the week will be no more.

The offending obstacle, hich goes in direct lineage into pre-Civil War Atlanta, began life as the carriage and servants' house of Christian Kontz, pioneer Atlanton, boot-maker and father of Judge Ernest C. Kontz—whose home was the wonder of Atlanta when built in 1854 and which served as the federal "capitol of the southeast" in the dread reconstruction period.

It stood just east and south of the point where Cone street expires in Marietta street, where in recent years has been the building of the late Georgian-American at 80-86 Marietta street. At the back of the building proper was this small segment, measuring 38 by 30 feet, a slight two stories high, with an 18-foot base of thick granite blocks and a superstructure of brick.

Refused to Sell.

When the traffic-way, or private street, was opened in 1903 between the railroad tracks and Marietta street, Judge Kontz refused to sell or cede this property. Thus, the high retaining wall that now extends from near Fairlie street to a point beneath the Spring street viaduct—all of which once was a hillside—was forced to skirt the obstruction, leaving at this point only 22 feet passage-room in what otherwise was a 60-foot-wide street.

For years, the Seaboard Air Line, owner of the street—mistakenly regarded by some as an extension of Wall street, which runs relatively in the same position east of Whitehall street—sought at intervals to purchase the small structure, or extension, to clear the street, but to no avail.

Recently, however, negotiations were resumed by the railroad with the new building owner, former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, who purchased and extinguished the Georgian-American when he bought the Atlanta Journal, and the obstacle was obtained by the railroad for an undisclosed sum.

Demolition of the stubborn little structure, past which thousands of deeply laden trucks and vans have been forced to crawl for nearly four decades, was begun a week ago by a force of the Jones & Hardin Company with E. T. Britt as foreman. The street will be cleared and the retaining wall at this point advanced 38 feet northward.

Historic Site.

Dramatic history of the Kontz residence was related yesterday by Louis Jones of the demolition firm.

"When Sherman came along in the latter days of the war, Atlanta was doomed. But a remarkable thing happened when the soldiers came to the Kontz home. Many of Sherman's men were Germans, and, of course, Mr. Kontz was himself from Germany—as was Mrs. Kontz.

"A detail of the troops rushed into the house and started grabbing up silverware and starting to loot the house, before burning it. But Mrs. Kontz stood her ground. She addressed the marauders hotly in German.

"'I've withstood Napoleon in Europe in my time,' she told them. 'I can withstand Sherman, too.'

"The soldiers were discomfited. They hesitated. Then they laid down the silver and other belongings. And then they left the house."

CLARENCE AND CLARA ARRIVE—They moved into town yesterday, did these two-week old and frequently hungry blue jays, shown with Mrs. Channing Cope. They fell from an oak tree in front of her Newton county home when a day old and were won to the indoors and human beings by frequent eye-dropperfuls of milk, egg and cornmeal. Mrs. Cope bestowed them yesterday on young Joseph Kling Jr., Atlanta nature student. (Story on Page 11.)

Georgia Army Of 30,000 To 'Spot' Airplanes

Every Inch of Sky Over State Will Be Watched.

By FRANK DRAKE.

A volunteer army of 30,000 Georgia men who will watch every inch of sky over the entire state 24 hours every day to report every plane in the air to the United States Army within a matter of seconds is being organized by the State Defense Corps, Major Oren Warren, corps adjutant, declared yesterday.

Men with eagle eyesight and sharp hearing are being sought to man the 2,000 strategically located observation posts to be established in the 159 counties of the state as a part of the civilian air warning service the Army is building to blanket the nation.

Warning Setup.

The elaborate warning setup—to be tested fully in the early fall during Army maneuvers, is being organized under the Third Interceptor Command at Drew Field, Tampa, Fla., which is commanded by Brigadier General Walter H. Frank. The command, which this week has moved into its headquarters there, will spot the southeastern states with fast pursuit planes to intercept any mysterious and strange aircraft reported by the civilian air observers.

Thirty-nine observation posts will be established in Fulton county alone and personnel of more than 500 men will be secured to maintain a constant vigil over Atlanta to warn of all approaching planes, Major Warren told The Constitution.

Organization Begun.

Organization of the tremendous air warning service has already begun throughout the state and hundreds of applications from men who want to volunteer as observers have already been received. Major Warren estimated the Georgia service will be set up within two weeks, ready to be trained by officers sent out by the Third Interceptor Command.

"Army Flash," the observers will shout into the telephone when they see a plane of any kind anywhere in the sky over Georgia. The words carry priority over all telephone messages, and the telephone operators will automatically connect the observer with one of three message clearing stations at Atlanta, Thomasville and Savannah, where batteries of women "message filterers" will weed out nonessential informaiton and flash information of strange planes to the Third Interceptor Command at Tampa.

Gives Description.

The observer tells his observation post number, the number of planes he's spotted or the kind, the number of motors, height and direction, and any other information pertinent to the service.

General Frank yesterday in a statement pointed out that the Third Interceptor Command will have at its disposal two wings of pursuit aviation, divided into five interceptor groups. There is a huge Bombardment Command, under Brigadier General Lewis H. Brereton, functioning at Savannah, which is designated for the execution of offensive operations against any enemy forces. The Interceptor Command is responsible for protection of the entire southeastern states against invasion. It has antiaircraft artillery and barrage balloons, also.

Throughout the southeastern states, in each of which civilian air warning service is being organized, information and "filter" message stations similar to those to be located in Atlanta, Savannah and Thomasville, will be established in 27 cities.

To Employ Women.

Major Warren said approximately 150 women will be employed as personnel for the message centers in the three Georgia cities. These will be highly trained to handle the information transmitted to them by the 30,000 watchers of the skies.

Anxious Finns Bolster Army As War Looms

Evidences Seen of Red Evacuation of Hanko Naval Base.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

HELSINKI, June 19.—War-worn Finland, fearful of having to take an unwilling role in a new war, prepared for the worst tonight by ordering up all reserves, suddenly promoting cadets to full-fledged officers and restricting rail travel to facilitate troop transport and other military moves.

Finnish leaders are convinced that in the event of war between Germany and Russia, Finland probably will become involved. The chances of such a war seem here to be real enough to justify extensive military measures.

Follows Call-Up.

A presidential decree making all reserve officers regular Army officers swiftly followed the call-up of reserves last midnight. Further, it was announced, a short cut has been taken in the matter of Army and Navy cadets, who are being graduated immediately and commissioned as lieutenants instead of first putting in a year's active service, as previously required.

Meanwhile, Helsinki was being flooded with rumors of troop movements on both sides of the Russian frontier, and there were evidences of a Soviet evacuation of the naval base at Hanko, on which they held a 30-year lease.

Outward Calm.

The Finnish people displayed outward calm and quietly obeyed the ordered defense measures, although the military preparations evidenced on all sides have heightened public apprehension.

The government has been moving swiftly in the past week as the apparent crisis in Russian-German relations seemed to grow, reaching a peak with the new German-Turkish friendship pact.

On Friday the government clamped restrictions on travel by foreigners in northern and border districts of Finland similar to regulations enforced during the Russian-Finnish war. Police permits were declared necessary for travel along the coast of the Gulf of Bothnia and in the region of the strategic Hanko naval base at the entrance to the Gulf of Finland.

On Monday a government campaign encouraging voluntary removal of women and children from the capital was splashed in the newspapers, all the press advising that children of Helsinki should be sent to the country "at least for a month."

Following Day.

On the following day the newspaper Sanomat, directed by former Foreign Minister Eljas Erkko, declared that the military situation in the Baltic region was ripe for surprises likely to affect Finland.

Yesterday the streets of Helsinki became crowded with men and women in uniform, including both fully armed soldiers and members of the Lotta corps, the women auxiliaries who won acclaim for their nursing and kitchen services during the Russian-Finnish war of 1939-40.

(Also on Wednesday the British government placed a blockade on Finland's Arctic port of Petsamo, ending an agreement to permit passage through it. London charged that large numbers of German troops were pouring into the country.)

As the war clouds thickened Erkko's Sanomat observed today that "causes independent of our control may give events a turn that can jeopardize our sovereignty, peace and liberty to the extent that we are forced to defend them with everything in our power."

The paper added that "Finland will not attach herself to any league of powers for dishonorable action (and) because this is so we are entitled to the sympathies, understanding and support of all neighbors."

Oxford Degree Given F. D. R. At Cambridge

Harvard Honors Halifax Before Citation of President.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt told representatives of Great Britain's oldest university and of his Alma Mater today that this country would fight for freedom and that "we . . . would rather die on our feet than live on our knees".

In a setting that made academic history beneath the elms of Harvard, America's oldest university, British Ambassador Lord Halifax, as chancellor of Oxford, conferred upon the President the centuries-old English university's honorary doctorate of Civil Law.

Precedent was shattered as Oxford held its convocation during Harvard's 290th commencement at which Lord Halifax received an honorary Doctorate of Laws.

The British ambassador bestowed the Presidential degree amid a panoply of Old World ceremony, duplicating as closely as possible academic ritual within the walls of Oxford. Major General Edwin M. Watson, Presidential aide, acted as proxy for Mr. Roosevelt in receiving the degree and read the President's message.

"Champion of Freedom."

In a firm, measured tones, the black and gold-gowned Lord Halifax read the text of the degree which cited Mr. Roosevelt as one who "is still bringing, the material help required to secure the final defeat of lawlessness and aggression."

And, in an address of his own, Halifax declared ". . . a university exists for those whose bodies and souls are free. And it is because my university has seen in the President the undaunted champion of this freedom, that it has wished to pay to him this tribute."

Then, General Watson, his white uniform contrasting with the black mortar boards and varied-hued academic gowns of the Oxonians, read the President's reply that:

Historic Precedent.

"All the world can be enriched by a new symbol which supports truth and the search for truth.

"In days like these, therefore, we rejoice that this special convocation, in breaking all historic precedent, does so in the great cause of preserving the free learning and the civil liberties which have grown stone upon stone in our lands through the centuries.

"It is right that this unfettered search for truth 'is universal and knows no restriction of place or race or creed.' . . . We, too, born to freedom, and believing in freedom, are willing to fight to maintain freedom."

The Oxford convocation, one of few that have taken place outside the famous English university in all its long history, immediately followed Harvard's commencement exercises at which 2,268 degrees were awarded, including Lord Halifax's.

U. S. Orders Curtailment in Use of Rubber

Move Made To Build Up Stock Pile for Defense.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The government today ordered a curtailment in consumption of rubber in order to build up its stock pile for use in the defense program.

Officials said that a formula would be worked out under which processors would be allotted a fixed percentage of the amount of rubber they formerly had processed.

It was expected that processors would not be told which items they must cut down on, but officials acknowledged that tire manufacturing would be curtailed.

The broad outlines of the control program were given to a meeting of large and small rubber processors, but details are yet to be worked out.

Officials of the Office of Production Management said that under the program, consumption of rubber during the last six months of 1941 would be reduced from the current rate of 817,000 tons annually to a rate of about 600,000 tons.

Tire manufacturing consumes about 70 per cent of the rubber used in the United States.

Partly Cloudy With High Of 92 Forecast Today

Partly cloudy and not much change in temperature is the weather forecast for Atlanta today, issued at the United States Weather Bureau yesterday. No rain is expected, it was added.

Temperature is due to range between 68 degrees in the morning and 92 degrees in the afternoon.

Axis Powers Answer Action By Washington

Officials of American Express Are Also Ordered Ousted.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Germany and Italy ordered the ouster of United States consular officials today in retaliation for similar American action against Nazi consuls in this country.

Berlin directed that all such officials, and those of the American Express Company as well, must leave Germany itself and the occupied territories of Norway, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, occupied France, Serbia and Greece by July 15.

Italy, adopting the same deadline, reserved the right to close the American Express. All consulates in Italy itself, its territories and Italian-occupied areas must close.

Retaliatory Measure.

Retaliating in almost exact degree for the United States order closing German consulates in America, Germany charged the American representatives with engaging in espionage, propaganda and other activities hostile to the Reich.

American consuls and employes were charged with sheltering British spies, making maps and by code and secret document attempting to pass along information on Germany's military and economic plans and her occupation measures.

Offices of the American Express Company were ordered closed and its employes removed from Germany. Italy reserved the right to take similar action. This was a further adoption of the pattern of President Roosevelt's action last Monday in asking the padlocking of the German Library of Information, the German Railways and Tourist Office, and the Transocean News Service in the United States.

Deadline Set.

In a note handed to Charge d'Affaires Leland Morris, the German foreign ministry asked the United States to close its consulates by July 15, or five days after Germany is expected to close her consulates in the United States.

The same date was set for the closing of American Express Company offices.

Twenty-four German consulates in the United States and territories were affected by the United States request, while 10 consulates and 67 officials and American employes in Germany proper were affected by the German counter measure.

There are approximately 11 other consulates, with about the same number of personnel, in the occupied countries.

The Congressional directory lists 23 American consulates in the

Britain Fares Better Than Year Ago, Says Dorothy Thompson

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

The German armies marched into Paris just a year ago. Now it might be well to tote up the balance sheet of 12 months. How do things look for Britain? How for Hitler?

A year ago Hitler considered and announced that the war was over. At the very latest it would be over in September.

There were reasons for his confidence.

Britain had no army except the one evacuated from Dunkirk. The British Isles were completely undefended. The air force was inadequate, and the islands had no heavy guns.

In order rapidly to build up production, Britain was dependent on the United States. The United States was on a cash and carry basis.

Hitler, on the other hand, was in control of all the channel and North sea ports, had a pact with Russia which protected his back, and was in complete economic control of the Balkans.

Mussolini had a considerable fleet and air force, and was in a position seriously to challenge the British in the Mediterranean.

Now, after a year, let us look at the picture.

Hitler failed in an attempt to get control of the air over Britain in September.

Hitler is still in control of the Balkans, but the fighting in Rumania, Jugoslavia and Greece has disrupted the economic life of those countries, and seriously de-

Police Vice Chairman and Chief Air Differences in Statements

'Politics' Rapped by Hornsby in Letter; Official Unwittingly Made 'Tool,' Alderman Moseley Says.

Police Chief Hornsby and Alderman L. O. Moseley, vice chairman of city council's police committee, yesterday issued statements regarding the controversy over conduct of the police department.

Hornsby's action was in the form of a letter to Councilman J. Allen Couch, who wrote Hornsby last week, demanding that he assume complete administration of the department or step down.

Text of Hornby's letter follows:

"Dear Mr. Couch:

"I acknowledge receipt of your letter.

"I have and will continue to make every effort to work in harmony with the police committee and the mayor and general council, as long as I can do so, consistent with my oath and obligations to the people of Atlanta.

"At the first meeting of the year the committee passed a resolution giving the chairman general supervision over my department while the committee was not in session. This was contrary to the law. Sections 2178 and 2179 of the city code prohibit any member of the committee undertaking the duties of the chief or designating anyone to carry out matters for which the city has officers to perform such duties.

"At the same meeting and at meetings thereafter transfers of various members of my department were made by the committee without consulting me and without my consent.

"Since the first of the year a number of promotions have been made and my recommendations, based upon the qualifications of the men, have been ignored.

"I respectfully submit that no business, and certaintly no department of the city, can render efficient service and maintain that discipline which is so essential to a police department when its members see so clearly that the head of it be completely ignored.

"As you know, any department head and particularly the chief of police, must have the co-operation not only of his committee, but of the mayor and the general council, and I am making a plea to the mayor and general council to give the Atlanta police department this support.

"There are a thousand different ways in which an unsympathetic committee can produce confusion and discord without committing any overt act and when the men under me realize this, discipline will gradually disappear and in the end the general public will suffer.

"Most certainly I intend in every upright and honest manner to carry out my oath of office as chief of the department and to protect it with every means at my command from the inroads of selfish politics or unfair persecution.

"But I know you and the other members of council realize that I cannot do this alone. Therefore, I appeal to members of general council who do not desire to see my department thrown into political confusion, the civic organization, the press and the public generally to back me up in an effort to keep the department free from such influences.

"As you know, I did not seek the position of chief of police, but was put in charge of the department to try to bring it out of the chaos which political wrangling had produced some five years ago. I believe the general public has approved my efforts to this end and surely they do not want to see it all undone.

"I appreciate your letter and the spirit which prompted it. For my part you may rest assured that I shall not compromise or bow to political dictation, but I cannot forever stand alone.

"Sincerely,
"M. A. HORNSBY,
"Chief of Police."

Moseley's Reply.

Text of Moseley's statement answering Hornsby follows:

"I'm sorry the chief has decided upon a wailing wall to air his troubles—which, incidentally, are more fanciful and imaginative than real. I am surprised he hasn't let the police committee know he had any troubles. Less than 60 days ago the chairman of committee asked Chief Hornsby in an open meeting 'if anyone is trying to dictate or run your department' and the chief replied in the negative.

"I can think of no instance when an arbitrary spirit has been shown by any committee member and no objections voiced to any suggestion the chief has made the committee. True, we couldn't see eye to eye with him on some promotions in the department, but after all this is a prerogative all committees have always exercised. After all, an elected official of this city has certain responsibilities and should not shirk them. The public doesn't know in many instances and doesn't care who the head of a department happens to be. The public holds the mayor and general council responsible for city government operations.

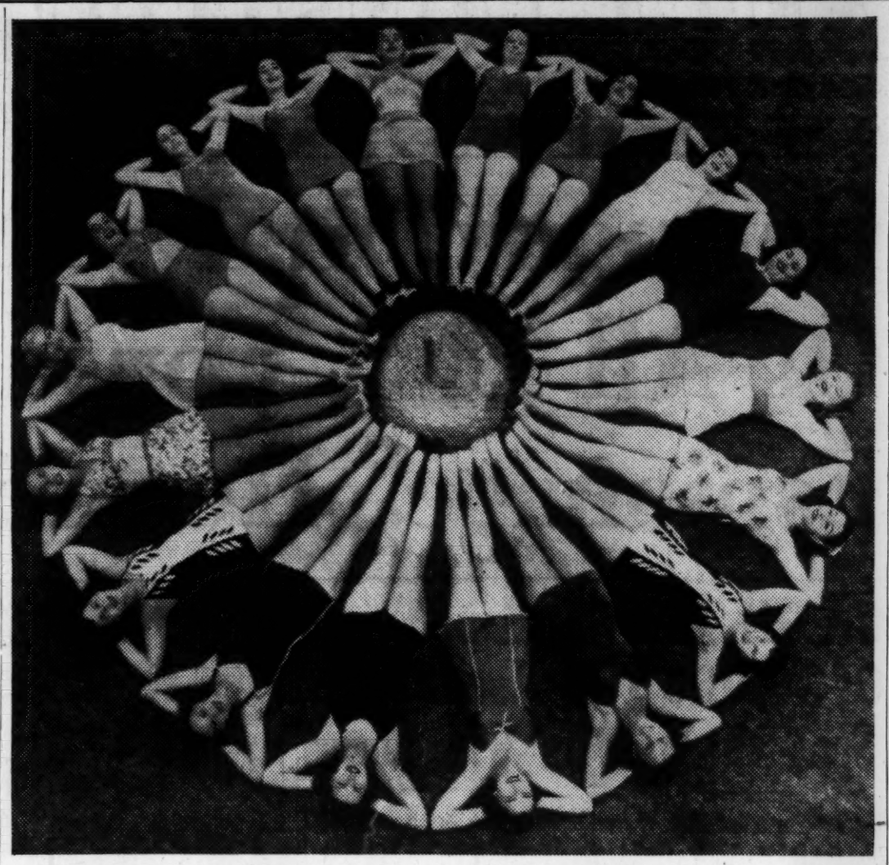
"On the promotions made by the committee and to which the chief dissented, I'm willing to gamble that not one of them will conduct themselves as some of those superior officers promoted by the chief and the police committee in the past.

"There is a great improvement in the police department in the past five months. Most everyone can observe that officers are more courteous, that traffic has improved tremendously and that there is more interest and snap manifested by policemen in their duties.

Hiding Policemen.

"I don't believe Atlanta wants to go back to hiding policemen to catch motorists simply to enrich the coffers of the recorder's court; I don't believe we want to go back to the past when those of us who thoughtlessly violated some minor regulation would have our ears pinned back and bawled out in the middle of the street—instead of being courteously reprimanded or given copy of charges and allowed to proceed. Now, if Chief Hornsby wants to go back to some of these things I daresay he will find the committee not in accord.

"As for 'politics' charged by the chief, I personally think he should be the last man to 'holler.' There isn't anyone on the committee who is playing 'politics.' We are earnestly striving to give the city a courteous and efficient police force and we no doubt will continue these efforts. I am very much afraid Chief Hornsby is listening to too many 'unknown voices,' is being ill-advised and badly misled and unwittingly becoming the tool of those who would see him sacrificed simply to try to discredit the present city administration."



FASHION IN FIGURES—This is just another photographic way of announcing the official opening next week of the summer season at Long Beach, Cal. The models are showing the latest in bathing suits. They show them off very well.

Use of Traffic Bridge Awaits Council Okay

Construction Chief Balks at Taking Responsibility for Experiment.

Erection of the experimental traffic bridge at Courtland and Ellis street was blocked yesterday when City Chief of Construction Clarke Donaldson and his engineers declined to assume responsibility for the structure, and a meeting of council to relieve the construction department of any liability in its operation is necessary before it can be installed.

William Adams, of the R. G. LeTourneau Company, Toccoa, constructors of the portable traffic bridge, was informed by City Attorney Jack C. Savage that the bridge could not be placed if Donaldson withheld his approval until the ordinance permitting its location is changed.

Council Monday authorized the bridge, but provided that Donaldson must approve it. Yesterday Donaldson said he had no specifications as to its structural composition, but only a picture of how it will look.

C. E. Kauffman, bridge engineer, said there was nothing before him which he could or would approve.

In discussing the matter, Donaldson said he would not sanction any installation until he had time to study all its implications.

The street viaduct was designed by LeTourneau as an experiment in an attempt to speed up flow of vehicles in congested areas. The plan was to place it on Ellis street so that it would bridge Courtland and that traffic might proceed over it without having to stop to get across Courtland.

Valdosta Fire Chief Lands 1942 Convention

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 19.—Fire Chief Tom Cook was at home today from his victory in Jacksonville, Fla., where he secured the 1942 convention of the Southeastern Fire Chiefs' Association.

Chief Cook was advising Valdosta citizens today to begin preparations now to entertain the fire fighters. The association is a large one, Chief Cook says.

Two New Plans Seen in State Power Check

Change to Daylight Time, Different Industrial Hours Pend.

Acute power shortage in the southeast yesterday brought two new plans, affecting Georgians, which are designed to conserve electrical energy but speed production.

The federal power commission in Washington urged the adoption of daylight saving time for all the affected southeastern states, including Georgia, while the major power companies, including the Georgia Power Company, announced new rationing of current for industry.

The power commission, giving no details of its plans, simply said it would seek daylight saving time as one means of combating the power shortage caused by the drouth.

Alternate Plan.

The big power companies in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Mississippi announced they will offer, beginning Monday, a new alternate plan of power rationing to their industrial users.

Under the new system, industrial users will be allowed full-scale operations from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. week days and Sundays. The former system permitted one-third normal operations during all of the week, with full-time power consumption on Saturday afternoons and Sundays only.

Drouth-lowered streams and water sources have caused drastic curtailment of power use in all but defense-essential industries. Since Monday, Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Mississippi consumers have used only one-third of normal consumptions during regular work hours. Total daily power output has been slashed in Georgia, 19 per cent on Monday, 25 per cent on Tuesday and 21 per cent on Wednesday.

Drouth Continues.

Meanwhile, the drouth in the southeast continued after having been relieved temporarily by widespread showers over most of the area the past two weeks.

Fair weather again extended over most states, with only scattered thundershowers occurring along the gulf coast from New Orleans to Jacksonville and in Florida.

Farmers materially have been helped by "million-dollar rains" that freshened withering crops and brought cotton, fruit crops, pastures and corn out of a dry doldrum that extended through practically all of the plowing, planting and early harvest seasons.

Law To Be Feted With Masonic Play

Thomas C. Law, past master of the Palestine Lodge, F. & A. M., who is now imperial potentate of the Shrine, and M. Preston Agee, worshipful grand master of Masons in Georgia, will be honored by the Palestine Lodge with the presentation of a play at 8 o'clock tonight at the Masonic Temple.

The play, dramatized by the Palestine Service Club, will portray the founding of the oldest Masonic inscriptions.

A dinner for members of the lodge will precede the play.

Young Democratic Club Opens Drive for Cup

The Young Democratic Club of Fulton County opened a drive this week to win the loving cup awarded to the club obtaining greatest proportion of its quota of new members for the organization.

Harold Parker, treasurer of the club and membership committee chairman, announces that a meeting to discuss plans of the organization will be held at 5 o'clock Monday afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel and all persons interested in improved government and their friends are invited to attend.

Eastern Time Is Seen for State Railroads

Agreement Sought With ICC, Hearing Set Tuesday.

Chairman Walter McDonald, of the Georgia Public Service Commission, expressed the opinion yesterday that an agreement would be worked out with the Interstate Commerce Commission for placing all railroads operating in Georgia on eastern time despite the fact an expert from Washington has recommended that the northwestern section of the state be left on central time for transportation purposes.

A hearing to iron out the controversy will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Biltmore hotel before representatives of the Interstate Commerce Commission, McDonald said.

The commissioner expert recommended that a line dividing the eastern and central time zones would follow the L. & N. railroad from near Copperhill, Tenn., through Ellijay, Jasper, Canton, Marietta and circle Atlanta and then follow the Atlanta & West Point railroad to West Point.

Smaller Zone.

This would leave railroads of the state operating in a smaller central time zone than at present, McDonald pointed out, but he added the commission was making every effort to follow the law passed by the last legislature putting the entire state on eastern time.

The proposed division, McDonald said, would be ridiculous from a defense standpoint in that it would put Camp Gordon in the eastern time belt, while Fort McPherson would be in the central time zone.

Some time ago, the chairman said, he called a meeting of public service commissioners of Tennessee and Alabama as well as representatives of the railroads and it was agreed at this meeting the best solution would be to have all the state on eastern time but allow operating exceptions to certain railroads.

"Operating Exceptions."

By "operating exceptions" he meant that some of the railroads would remain on central time into and out of Atlanta as far as their crews were concerned, but to the public they would be operating on eastern time.

McDonald said representatives of the railroads reaffirmed their confidence in this plan at a meeting yesterday.

Another disadvantage of dividing the state, McDonald said, would be the adverse effect it would have on banking and commercial interests.

Lamar Singers Plan To Attend Convention

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

BARNESVILLE, Ga., June 19.—A large number of Lamar county singers will attend the Southwest Georgia Singing convention in LaGrange Sunday. Several thousand visitors are expected to attend.

J. H. Goolsby, of Griffin, is president of the convention, and John G. Bush, of Goggins, is vice president.

TIME DIVISION—This is the way an expert of the Interstate Commerce Commission proposes to divide Georgia's time zone for transporation purposes.

James Brawner Succumbs at 91

James Middleton Brawner, 91, retired businessman and farmer, of Chipley, died yesterday in a local hospital.

Born in Harris county, July 9, 1850, Brawner retired from his business 15 years ago and came to Atlanta to live.

He was the father of Mrs. Ellis E. Terry and Dr. James M. Brawner, both of Atlanta, and Dr. Albert F. Brawner, of Smyrna.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill by Dr. Ryland Knight. Burial will be in West View cemetery.

Man Arrested On Charges of Draft Violation

Californian Released Under Bond for Further Hearing Here.

By LEE FUHRMAN.

A young man who traveled across the country seeking a livelihood—and then suddenly found himself "jacked up" by FBI agents on charges of attempting to violate the selective service act—yesterday explained to United States Commissioner David E. Meyerhardt that he had made efforts to keep in touch with his local board.

The man, Milton C. Christensen, 32, of Los Angeles, told the commissioner: "I have no desire to evade service, and if my country sees fit to use me in its armed forces I shall be willing to serve, and I am at all times willing to comply with all requirements of the selective service act."

Commissioner Meyerhardt released Christensen under $25 bond for a further hearing July 10, pending arrival of additional information from California. Pirere Howard, assistant United States attorney, represented the government at the hearing.

Statement to Siscoe.

In a statement made to Frank G. Siscoe, special agent of the FBI, Christensen said that he registered October 16, 1940, in Los Angeles, and that he received his questionnaire in December, 1940, filling it out and returning it within the specified period.

"I left Los Angeles January 2, 1941, and reported to local board 241 in Hollywood that I was leaving for Minneapolis, Minn., but did not know what my address would be. They told me to let them know the address when I became settled.

"When I made my permanent residence in Minneapolis, I notified the local board at Los Angeles of my change in address. I received an order of transfer to local board 8 at Minneapolis and made a special trip to do so since I was traveling in southern Minnesota on my job. When I arrived there I was told that a penny post card would have been sufficient.

"Later, when temporarily in Rochester, Minn., I received notice to report for physical examination at Minneapolis. I arrived at the doctor's office at 11 o'clock in the morning and was forced to wait until the doctor saw his pay patients.

Booked for Day.

"I finally left the office at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon when I was advised the doctor was booked full for the day and couldn't see me.

"The doctor's secretary called Local Board 8, asking if I could have a medical examination at a later date, as I was on the road nearly all the time. The board said this was satisfactory and the secretary reported this to me.

"Later that day, I personally went to the board and the girl there advised me it would be satisfactory for me to make a trip through Duluth and the iron region of Minnesota and take my examination when I returned. She gave me the impression there was no hurry about it.

"My job went sour in April, 1941. I went to the local board at Minneapolis and told them I was leaving for Chicago, but did not have a forwarding address. I was in Chicago three days and then proceeded to Nashville, Tenn., where I mailed a card to the Minneapolis board with my new address.

Next Communication.

"The next communication I received was a notice of suspected delinquency mailed from Los Angeles to my mother at Lausais, N. Y., and forwarded by her to me at Nashville.

"At no time during this entire matter did I attempt to evade my responsibilities under the selective service act, and at all times I attempted to keep the local board notified of my correct address. I thought, not having heard from Los Angeles, that the letter I had mailed May 15 reached them before May 19."

Christensen was arrested Tuesday night in an Atlanta hotel, charged with failing to notify his draft board of change of address.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

56 Pct. Favor War Referendum

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.
(Copyright, 1941)

PRINCETON, N. J., June 19.—The campaign for a national referendum, or vote of the people, on the question of war is being pushed by isolationist groups in congress. Claiming that the American people have had no opportunity to vote officially on this "greatest of all issues," these groups propose a national roll call in which all eligible voters would participate.

The country has been divided on the war referendum idea, with a slight majority in favor, as shown in periodic checks by the American Institute of Public Opinion. The size of the majority has varied from time to time, running from as low as 51 per cent when the war broke out, to as high as 60 per cent in the beginning of 1940. The latest survey on the subject, completed early this month by the American Institute of Public Opinion, shows the following:

"Should a vote of the people be required before congress can send men to fight overseas?"

Yes	56 Per Cent.
No	44 Per Cent

Only a small proportion of voters—6 per cent—expressed no opinion on the issue.

The referendum proposal was first placed before congress by Congressman Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, who has sponsored it at nearly every recent session. At one time, a house resolution to bring the bill to the floor for consideration failed by only a few votes, and the bill has continued to be the center of wide controversy and interest both in and out of congress.

If a national referendum were taken today on the question whether the United States should go to war now, there can be little question that it would show a large vote against entering the war.

The Institute's latest measurement of war sentiment, as published May 16, showed the following vote among those with opinions:

"If you were asked to vote on the question of the United States entering the war against Germany and Italy, how would you vote—to go into the war or to stay out of the war?"

May 16.

Go In	21 Per Cent
Stay Out	70 Per Cent

A new survey on this question is now being conducted to test the effect of recent developments in the administration's foreign policy.

Civil Service Test Required For Draft Jobs

Paid Workers Must Stand Examinations After July 1.

All Georgia paid draft board positions will be put under civil service after July 1, it was announced yesterday at state selective service headquarters.

Brigadier General Sion B. Hawkins, state director of selective service, said an order had been received from national headquarters in Washington providing that all future clerk jobs be filled from civil service lists, and that present draft employes must pass a clerical ability test in order to hold their positions.

The new order, authorized under the "Ramspeck act" of last November 26, will affect 400 head clerks, assistant clerks, and stenographers at Georgia's 188 boards.

Minimum requirements for paid draft employes will be that they be high school graduates, capable typists, with at least three years' previous business experience or a reasonable equivalent, General Hawkins said.

Those who fail to pass the clerical examination to be given after the second registration, July 1, will be dropped from the pay rolls within six months, he added.

W. D. Williams, personnel officer at state headquarters, advised that clerks now employed should take "any and all competitive examinations, such as typist, clerk, etc., that may be announced by the Civil Service Commission."

Under the "Ramspeck act," draft employes "must be recommended by the head of the agency concerned," putting final authority for all paid clerk jobs in the hands of Brigadier General Hawkins.

Talmadge Issues Call for Draft Registration

Governor Talmadge yesterday signed a proclamation setting Tuesday, July 1, as "Second Registration Day," when some 21,500 Georgians who have become 21 years old since October 16 must register for selective military service.

Local boards were busy this week preparing to fill a draft call for 2,200 men between June 20-25 and setting up plans to accept the new group of registrations.

Many boards, especially those in Atlanta and other cities, will open suboffices to save time and make registration more convenient.

All boards will be open from 7 o'clock in the morning until o'clock at night on the Secon Registration Day, according to th Governor's proclamation.

Purge of Italian Consuls in U. S. Believed Sure

Expulsion of Americans by Rome Causes Some Surprise.

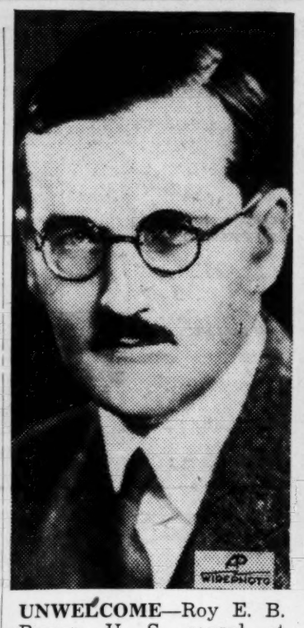
WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) A purge of Italian consuls from the United States was reported virtually certain tonight to follow an Axis double-play against American representatives, which brought diplomatic relations even nearer a complete break.

Germany's action in ordering American consuls out of the Reich and German-occupied countries was fully anticipated here when Nazi consular officials were directed last Monday to leave this country by July 10.

However, the fact that Italy also ordered American consuls to leave the territory under her control by July 15—the same deadline set by Germany—caused some surprise here. The American expulsion order was confined to Germans and left Italians free to continue their duties here.

Informed sources said there was little doubt that the United States would now eject Italian consuls as well as German.

The Axis moves led to increased conjecture in the capital on the possibility of an early severance of all relations between the United States and Germany and Italy.



UNWELCOME—Roy E. B. Bower, U. S. consul at Munich, received specific mention in a German order closing U. S. consulates in the Reich and several occupied countries.

UNWANTED—Sydney B. Redecker, consul at Frankfort, also was singled out for mention as Berlin ordered closure of all U. S. consulates in Germany and several dominated nations.

Axis Orders Closing of All U. S. Consulates

countries enumerated by the German note.

Seven more American consulates are affected by the Italian closing order.

The United States charged that German consulates were engaged in activities harmful to American welfare, and DNB, official German news agency, declared the conduct of United States consular and travel agency employes "long has been highly objectionable" to Germany.

The agency listed six instances, compiled by "responsible sources" in which American consuls and employes were accused of "intrigues injurious to the German state."

These cases, it was stated, were taken "out of a wealth of material available to the foreign office"

A highlight among the charges was that Alfred W. Klieforth, consul general in Cologne, had used code in an arrangement with the Belgian consul in an attempt to impart alleged German plans of invading Belgian, Holland and Luxembourg. DNB said this occurred in the fall of 1939 and the spring of 1940.

Iwan Jacobsen, former employe of the consulate general in Oslo, Norway, was alleged to have been found in possession of numerous documents on German occupation measures and troop movements when he reached the Norwegian-Swedish frontier on a journey to Moscow DNB said Jacobsen obtained the papers from a former employe of the consul, Dr. Frank Nelson, and that they were intended for anti-German propaganda abroad. DNB said this happened early in December, 1940.

Sidney Redecker, consul at Frankfort, was accused of delivering addresses unfavorable to Germany in the fall of 1939 and passing along information of a secret military and economic nature.

Consul Orsen Nielson and Consul Roy Bower in Munich were charged with making disapproving observations concerning Germany in the presence of German personalities.

Vice-Consul Ralph C. Getsinger in Hamburg was charged with preparing sketches of railway networks and connecting lines in Hamburg and trying to pass along this material, as well as other information on military facilities in the city.

Case of Cross.

Bringing up again the case of Consul Cecil Cross and Consul Leigh Hunt in Paris, last fall, DNB said they had sheltered a British citizen and former British consulate employe named Sutton who engaged in spying while hiding in the United States consuls' office. Sutton, it was added, has since been arrested and sentenced to long imprisonment.

Further, it was charged that another employe of the Paris consulate, Mrs. Elizabeth Deegan, under the supervision of Cross and Hunt, saw to it that an escaped British officer received aid.

(Hunt, Cross and Mrs. Deegan were recalled last December by the United States at the request of Germany.)

The United States embassy in Berlin was untouched by the German order, American spokesmen said.

Queries at the embassy regarding the next steps and whether the embassy would shoulder all the consular duties in the Reich and the occupied countries, brought the answer, "We have forwarded the German note to Washington, but have received no instructions so far."

Italian Communique.

In Italy a communique was issued stating in part:

"The minister of foreign affairs today gave to the embassy of the United States a note which it is now making public that the attitude and activity of American consular officers in Italy had given place to grave criticism, and it is communicated that the Italian government asks the government of the United States the withdrawal of the functionaries and clerks of American consulates and the closing by July 15 of consular offices in the kingdom and in territories under Italian sovereignty and in those occupied by our troops."

The first Italian comment on the closing of the German consulates in the United States appeared in Il Giornale d'Italia today a few hours before announcement of the Italian move.

After going into the reasons having prompted the United States to take the action it did, Virginio Gayda, the editor, declared that diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany were not yet severed but that Washington was pursuing its "usual tactics of provocation and now awaits German reaction."

Discussing the aims of the American move in closing the German consulates, Gayda said that first, American help to England must be made more effective, and secondly that the American public must be made to get used to the idea of war against Germany and Italy in order to "create less resistance when fatal decisions are to be taken."

Gayda concluded that Germany has taken the American measures "with calm confidence and a clear head."

"Germany will see to adequate reaction," the editor concluded.

Arthur Atkinson, former county employe, was freed of a charge of assault with intent to murder J. W. King, another county employe. The case attracted some attention because Atkinson is on a pension being paid by the county.

Italian Vessel At Savannah Seized by U. S.

Roosevelt Asks Congress To Modify Ship Laws in Emergency.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) To permit tankers to carry larger loads of oil and to spread the available supply of experienced seamen over a larger number of ships, President Roosevelt today asked congress to modify the marine inspection laws.

The present laws, he said in a special message, are designed to promote safety at sea and should be strictly enforced in normal times. But, he added, "during this emergency, the priority of national security and national defense must be recognized."

Elsewhere on the defense front the Maritime Commission announced it had taken formal possession of the first of 28 Italian ships which have been idle in American harbors since the war started. This was the steamship Clara, 6,131 gross tons, taken over yesterday at Savannah, Ga.

Damaged less extensively than the rest of the Italian ships, repairs had already been made at Savannah. The vessel will, nevertheless, be dry-docked at Newport News, Va., before being put into service.

At the capitol, meanwhile, the senate military committee heard testimony on the pending property seizure bill which emphasized a War Department assertion that small manufacturers would in the future be given a more extensive share in defense production.

BOOM!—With a terrific explosion, the Robin Moor is mortally wounded by a German torpedo. This graphic picture was made by Virgil Sanderlin, crew member of the Robin Moor, from a lifeboat 1,000 yards away.

Victims Puzzled At Nazi Sinking Of Robin Moor

Seaman in Washington To Confer With Officials.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) Virgil Sanderlin, third engineer of the torpedoed United States freighter Robin Moor, told reporters today that passengers and crewmen on the vessel "couldn't understand" why a German submarine decided to sink the ship in positive knowledge of her American nationality.

Sanderlin, 28-year-old Richmond (Va.) seaman, who was among 11 survivors rescued by the Brazilian freighter Ozorio after 19 days adrift in a lifeboat, was flown here for conferences with the State and Navy departments. He said the Robin Moor's seamen and passengers thought at first the submarine, which approached in the dark, was a British or American destroyer or submarine.

Not until First Officer Melvin Mundy visited the U-boat and returned with its commander's orders to abandon ship did realization dawn, he said, that the submarine was German. Sanderlin was in the small boat which visited the submarine.

W. Averell Harriman, Party Arrive in Cairo

CAIRO, Egypt, June 19.—(AP)—W. Averell Harriman, abroad to assist in speeding up United States aid to Britain, arrived here tonight with his party of experts.

The group was welcomed at the airport by United States Minister Alexander Kirk.

Harriman is here to discuss receipt of American equipment now en route to British middle east forces. On his party were Brigadier General Ralph Royce, Colonel G. A. Green and R. P. Meiklejohn.

U. S. Warns 'Freeze' Evaders

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) Sumner Welles, undersecretary of state, warned today that any attempt to evade the recent foreign-fund freezing order "through persons in the other American republics" or in other countries would bring swift counter action by this government.

The freezing order tied up German, Italian and other foreign funds in the United States.

The Welles warning was contained in a statement read by him to the inter-American financial and economic advisory committee, of which he is chairman.

"This government," Welles said, "is aware of the possibility that Italy and Germany may attempt to circumvent the purposes of the freezing order issued June 14, 1941, by proceeding through persons in the other American republics and other countries not included in the order. With this possibility in mind, careful scrutiny will be given to the reports required under the order and regulations, and if such activities are carried on all necessary and appropriate steps will be taken to prevent their continuance."

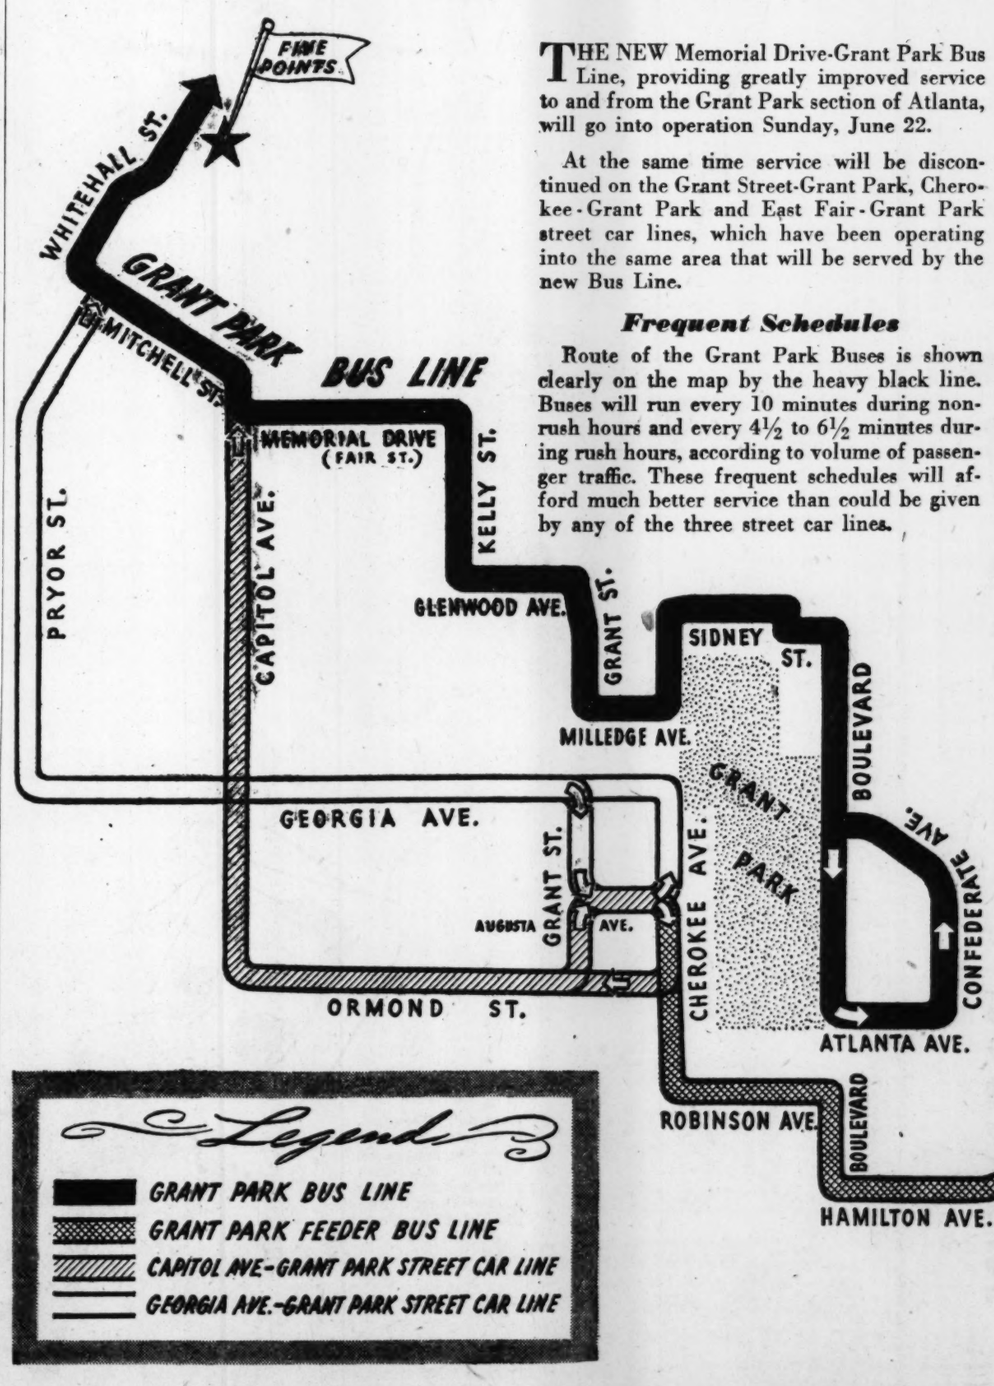
Grant Park Bus Service Starts Sunday!



THE NEW Memorial Drive-Grant Park Bus Line, providing greatly improved service to and from the Grant Park section of Atlanta, will go into operation Sunday, June 22.

At the same time service will be discontinued on the Grant Street-Grant Park, Cherokee-Grant Park and East Fair-Grant Park street car lines, which have been operating into the same area that will be served by the new Bus Line.

Frequent Schedules

Route of the Grant Park Buses is shown clearly on the map by the heavy black line. Buses will run every 10 minutes during non-rush hours and every 4½ to 6½ minutes during rush hours, according to volume of passenger traffic. These frequent schedules will afford much better service than could be given by any of the three street car lines.

Brand-new Buses of 45-passenger seating capacity — the largest in the Atlanta transportation system—will be operated on the new line, supplemented during rush hours by modern 36-passenger Buses.

Outbound Buses to Grant Park will be marked "Memorial Drive-Grant Park" and inbound Buses will be marked either "Piedmont-Ansley" or "Piedmont-Morningside." Buses will operate through in both directions between Grant Park on the south and Ansley Park and Morningside on the north.

The Grant Park Feeder Bus will operate on a revised routing as indicated on the map by the cross-hatched line. Service will be at intervals of every 20 minutes and will connect on Cherokee Avenue with the Georgia Avenue-Grant Park and Capitol-Grant Park street car lines, or passengers may transfer to the Grant Park Bus by walking two blocks on Boulevard between Robinson and Atlanta Avenues.

Other Important Changes

Please note the following other changes of service going into effect Sunday, June 22:

1. The Stewart Avenue Bus Line will turn around downtown. Buses inbound on Whitehall will turn right onto Wall Street and then left onto Pryor, proceeding north on Pryor, west on Auburn and back on Peachtree and Whitehall on the outbound trip.

2. The Magnolia Street and West Fair street car lines will be joined and cars will enter and leave the downtown area on the following loop: Mitchell Street to Broad, to Marietta, to Forsyth and back to Mitchell.

3. With discontinuance of the East Fair-Grant Park line, the Marietta-Howell Mill Road and Marietta-Inman Yards street car lines will connect as a through route with the Decatur Street car line.

Films, Beauties Will Aid Drive For Air Cadets

Junior League, Atlanta Girl Fliers Will Co-operate.

The traveling Air Cadet Board's drive to enlist Atlanta young men as flying cadets in Uncle Sam's rapidly expanding Air Corps zoomed forward yesterday.

Principal developments included:

1. Films depicting life in the Air Corps will be shown on request in the board's headquarters at 37 Walton street.

2. Atlanta Junior League pledged co-operation and promised to have several attractive members on hand at the headquarters as receptionists.

3. A group of Atlanta girl fliers said they would interest their boy friends and other young men in forming a cadet unit.

The Atlanta drive to enlist young men from this city in the Army Air Corps got under way as a steady stream of youths called at the headquarters to obtain information.

Six Examined.

"We had many callers all day," said Major John F. Guillet, Air Corps officer in charge of the Air Cadet Board, "and we had six young men take the physical examination. So far, we are highly gratified at the response here and feel confident we will enlist many youung men as flying cadets."

To give the applicants a visual idea of the pilot training, as well as life in the Air Corps, two films will be shown at any time upon request at the headquarters. They are "Flying Cadets," which takes an hour to run, and "Wings of the Army," which takes 45 minutes to run.

Major Guillet said the motion picture projector and screen have been set up in the headquarters, and any person who desires to see the films may do so simply by requesting them.

Major Guillet also conferred with officials of the Atlanta Junior League, who pledged co-operation in interesting young men in becoming air corps pilots.

Recruiting With "Oomph."

Beginning Monday, two or three pretty members of the League will be at the Walton street headquarters, acting as receptionists. They will make applicants and those seeking information feel at home, as well as adding "oomph" to the recruiting.

At the same time, a group of Atlanta girl aviators, members of the former Southern Aviatrix Assocaition, announced wholehearted support of the enlistment drive.

Helen (Chick) Roberts, former president of the association; Margaret McHan and Dorothy Norris, members of the original group, told Major Guillet they would "help all we can."

Speaking for the group, Miss Roberts said:

"There are hundreds of young men in this city interested in aviation and in becoming Army air corps pilots. We'll talk to as many as we know and get them to call at your headquarters and talk to you. It seems to me there shouldn't be much trouble signing 'em up. They're here all right."

The girl aviators also said they would attempt to sponsor a unit of 20 young men. In this connection, Major Guillet said that he hopes to sign up many units in this city.

Units to Stay Put.

"These groups of 20 would train together and remain together as a distinct unti. They would also compete in sports and athletics. What we are aiming at is several inter-city units. They can have any name they like. We hope to interest many organizations in sponsoring these units."

Major Guillet said the headquarters will be open from 8 o'clock in the morning 'til 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The personnel of the headquarters includes Leutenant Carl J. Weinmeister and Lieutenant Forrest H. Coons, air corps officers, and Lieutenant Percy Sutley and Leutenant Charles Melcher, medical officers.

"Anyone who cannot get to the headquarters during the day can telephone Walnut 8924, ask for room 305 in the Healey building, and we will arrange to interview at night," said Major Guillet.

Applicants must be more than 20 years of age and less than 27, unmarried, American citizens, and with the equivalent of two years' college education. If the applicant does not have a college education, he may take a written examination.

State Welfare Officials See Fund Release

Federal Money Expected Today After Parley in Washington.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS,
Constitution Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—After a final conference today with officials of the Social Security Board, members of the State Department of Public Welfare left for Atlanta tonight expressing confidence that all differences with the federal agency over operations of the merit system in Georgia have been worked out and that all old-age pension funds due the state will be released.

Max L. McRae, assistant to Director B. S. Miller, of the State Welfare Department, said today's conference with Washington officials was entirely satisfactory. He predicted that the Georgia funds, representing social security allotments for the month of June, will be released by the federal agency tomorrow.

Leaders in Parley.

Accompanied by Director Miller and J. A. Boatright, supervisor of the state merit system, McRae conferred with Oscar M. Powell, executive director of the Social Security Board, and other officials of the agency. An initial conference was held by the group here yesterday.

"There are a few details yet to be worked out," said McRae, "but I am satisfied from the assurances we received from officials that the board will release the Georgia funds immediately, probably tomorrow."

Assistant Director McRae said about $350,000 of Georgia funds is involved. The questions discussed with officials here concerned details and routine matters affecting operation of the merit system as applied to social said.

McRae said that while the question of publication of lists of beneficiaries of social security payments in Georgia is not yet an issue, the matter was discussed with board members here and that officials had been given assurance such lists will not be published after July 1.

TAKES PILOT TRAINING.

Not to be outdone, W. R. Pate, president of Peru (Neb.) State Teachers' College, joined nine students in the school's student pilot training course.

ing, no matter if the plane is clearly a United States Army plane or a passenger ship. Object is to thoroughly train the entire 30,000 to quickly observe planes, to estimate their height, speed, type and direction. Thus, when the service is in operation, a plane flying over Georgia should be reported by every single observation post it passes over from border to border.

The Army of the United States pays for the telephone calls, an "Army Flash" call being automatically charged.

The air warning service, once set up, will continue as long as there is need and whenever the Third Interceptor Command orders.

Raid on Hotel Leads to Probe By Grand Jury

Eighteen Called To Testify on Alleged Gaming Den.

Fulton county grand jury today will hear 18 witnesses summoned as a result of a raid on what officers allege was a gaming den at the Postal hotel, 87 1-2 Fairlie street, Wednesday night.

The raid took place while a radio in the four-room suite on the third floor of the hotel blared a round-by-round description of the Louis-Conn fight, and officers said they are convinced a loud speaker system tipped off the occupants of the room so that when raiding police arrived they found only equipment to indicate what the suite was used for.

A stock market ticker, a large round table with a padded top, two decks of cards, and several penciled memoranda were among the equipment. Officers said the table is like those used in poker games.

The 18 summoned, according to Charlie Stewart, assistant solicitor, are Nathan Manos, Fred R. Dillard, Raymond Norman Fishel, M. C. Greenway, Glenn M. Mathis Sr., W. S. Allen, J. R. Kidd, W. G. Chapman, Charlie Pearce, Clarence W. Coursey, Tony Sampson, John H. Strong, Charlie Silverman, Walter Levy, J. B. Stone, Sanford P. Michael, and Jack Carter and Jesse Reid, porters at the hotel.

GOVERNORS ON TAXIS.

In the midst of a traffic safety campaign, Billy Bob Watt, manager of a Fort Worth cab company, has made certain his drivers do not exceed the 30-mile speed limit. He has installed speed governors which begin blowing the horn when the car exceeds 30 miles an hour. At 40, the motor cuts off.

'Britain Fares Better Than in June of 1940'

ranged the transportation system. The Balkans, as a source of food, oil, and metals, are, to an incalculable extent, less of an asset to Hitler than they were a year ago.

According to plan, the Italians should have conquered Egypt during the winter, and had actually prepared a huge force for a two-pronged attack from Libya and Ethiopia.

Instead, Italy had been eliminated by the Greeks and the British as a fighting force. More than one-half of the Italian navy has been destroyed. Her air force is demoralized. Italy's huge East African empire has been conquered, releasing substantial forces to deal with an attack from Syria. Britain has also reconquered Iraq from an enemy government and possibly in a week or two may have Syria in her hands with the help of General de Gaulle.

Hitler has promises from Stalin that will be reaffirmed over and over again and not kept.

Even if the Germans go into the Ukraine to organize it, what they will get will be of doubtful quantity.

In this respect, the experience of the last war must be taken into account. Then, also, Germany held the whole Ukraine. But she was never able to bring order into the Russian chaos.

The political situation in Europe is dreadful.

The German armies have looted Europe once. They cannot do it again.

From Norway to the Iberian peninsula the hatred of Hitler is sullen. It affects the work capacity of the population. Though treated like the worst coolies and watched at every step by the Gestapo, the Polish laborers commit acts of sabotage day in and day out.

Norway is defiant. Holland is full of self-appointed agents for the British. Spain is starving, and Portugal has been warned by the President about the Azores, backed up by the government of Brazil.

The population of Italy is bitterly disillusioned by the realization that they are at the mercy of the Germans whom they have always loathed, while there is every indication that Hitler is prepared to shatter Mussolini's dream of a great African empire for the sake of "collaboration" with Vichy.

Not Self-Supporting.

The whole continent of Europe is not self-supporting in respect to either food or raw materials.

An enormous amount of freight transportation from one part of Europe to another has always been routed by the seaways, which are now blocked by the British.

Meanwhile, what has happened in the United States is nothing short of a miracle.

Despite strikes, opposition and a general feeling on the part of the public that not nearly enough has been accomplished, the United States has actually accomplished in one year what it took Hitler eight years to do.

America has put her resources freely at Britain's disposal. She has geared the immense industrial machine to war production and tooled it up to the point where the production problem is solved. From now on it will snowball.

She is in the midst of the greatest ship-building production the world has ever seen, both for merchant ships and naval vessels, the whole program being way ahead of schedule.

She is building a fantastic air force, and in heavy bombing planes is producing machines of unequaled speed and accuracy.

And despite Communist cells and Nazi sympathizers the people of this country are behind Roosevelt. At not one point has he been seriously opposed.

Hitler has a doubtfully benevolent and economically stagnant Russia. Churchill has a genuinely benevolent and fantastically productive America.

When one considers that a year ago, Britain was looked upon as lost except to the almost idiotically sanguine, the gains of Hitler in 12 months are relatively trifling compared with the gains of Britain.

True, they have been accomplished with a heroism in suffering on the part of the British people that has no parallel in human history.

Britain has shown herself and shown the world that a great people do not simply drop out of history. Britain is where she is today only because the people of Britain have demonstrated themselves to be unconquerable by terror.

From the unevacuated child-princesses, one of them heir to the throne, to the last cockney firewarden, they have demonstrated the sort of heroism that one expects of the kingly.

The balance sheet is of June, 1941, compared with June, 1940.

It would be fatuous to pretend that the balance may not be swung in a worse direction tomorrow—by some fiendish new type of all-out attack on the British Isles.

But on the anniversary of the fall of France, one can still lay a bet on the triumph of freedom.

State To Have 30,000 Spotters

carefully selecting the 2,000 observation posts for the 159 counties of Georgia. The State Defense Corps furnished the department maps of every county and the Army officials will select points that are high—each with a view of six square miles.

The observation posts will be near telephones for rapid communication and Major Warren declared that information of any plane seen over Georgia will be transmitted to the Third Interceptor Command within 15 seconds.

Each post will be located so that there will be no spot of sky, day or night, over Georgia that is not watched!

All the maps showing selected observation posts have not been returned but in each county the local state defense commander is already rounding up observers, the major asserted.

Each one of the 2,000 Georgia observation posts will be staffed with from 12 to 15 men, who will serve as sky-watchers from two to four hours each day or night. Chief observers will be named for each station also, it was said.

The state defense corps is seeking men of unquestioned loyalty to the United States, who will volunteer to give air warning service in hours that will not conflict with regular duties. The persons selected must have good eyesight, good hearing and in reasonably good physical condition. Each must be near a telephone and none selected will be members of the state defense corps.

The Third Interceptor Command will take over training, operating and maintaining the Georgia civilian air warning service after it is organized by the state defense corps, the major said.

Call for Training.

Plans call for training by the Third Interceptor Command to begin within about two or three weeks and for the first big test of the air warning service to come in the early fall, when Army maneuvers begin over the section.

Major Warren said that the air observers will report every plane coming within their sight or hear-

Sitdown Strike Achieves End Against In-Laws

Relatives of Indiana Man Promise To Move After Action.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., June 19.—(UP)—Walter Stanford's 24-hour, front-yard sitdown strike to force "in-laws and out-laws" to leave his home ended tonight in success—"I guess."

Even John—the rag dummy who spelled Stanford at the lounge-chair picket post under bright lights on the front lawn—was gone. This last symbol of defiance against a household of seven relatives and seven children was pulled down almost exactly 24 hours after Stanford began his demonstration Wednesday.

"Dad on sit-down till in-laws and out-laws move," he painted on two signs tacked to the front of his house. Then he rigged up John to stand proxy during lunch and "emergencies."

Today, his mother-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Fromm, said she and her husband and sons, Robert, 17, and Calvin, 19, would move out—"just as soon as we can find another place, believe me." She figured Robert's earnings from the National Youth Administration and Calvin's job at a pump factory would provide a home.

Another son lived with them occasionally and Mrs. Fromm guessed he'd go too. That was all right with Stanford.

"Just so they go," said Stanford, a 42-year-old WPA worker and World War veteran. "I don't expect them to move right away—until they find a home. I'm satisfied if they just get out. They were breaking up my home. I guess I've won my point."

Mrs. Fromm said her son-in-law's action was "a surprise, to say the least."

"You know, he reads a lot," she explained. "Maybe he got to studying too hard or something. Why, we'd a never moved in if we'd knowed for a minute Walt minded."

Mrs. Fromm said her family had paid "as high as $8 a month" rental to Mrs. Stanford since last March. But Stanford said he'd heard nothing about the rent.

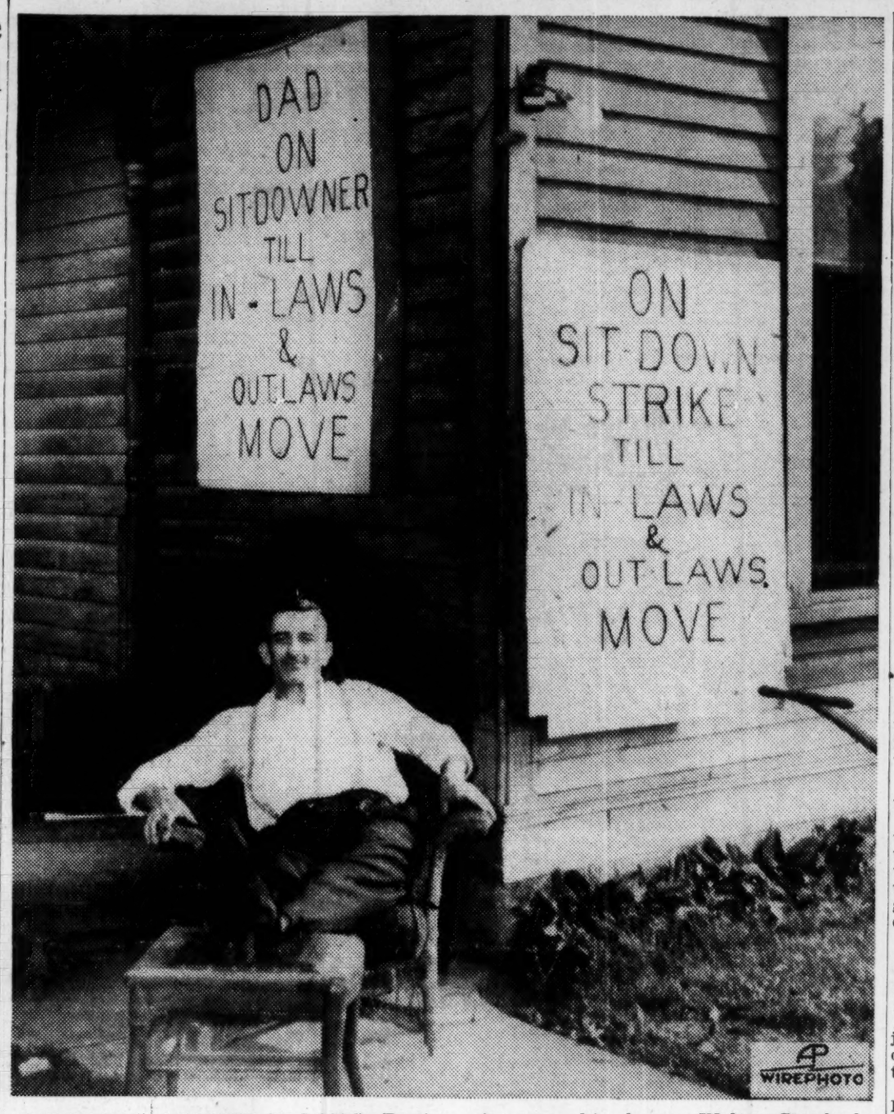
"All I know is they just moved in," he declared. "I stood it as long as I could—finally, I struck."

He nailed up his signs, placed John-the-dummy on a wicker davenport by the front porch, sat down in an unholstered lounge chair and announced: "I'll stay till hell freezes over—or they move."

When traffic in front of the house became a hazard because of gaping motorists, police warned Stanford against creating a disturbance. So Stanford retired to the house, leaving John to carry on the fight alone.

This morning, after a tentative settlement, Stanford pulled down the signs, "but John will stay there till it's really settled." He said his wife, Georgia, was "pretty broke up about it." Then he pulled in John, too.

"I'm sorry if somebody's feelings were hurt," Stanford said, "but I feel I had to make an honest defense of the American home."



"SITDOWN" AGAINST IN-LAWS—Posting signs on his house, Walter Stanford (above), 42-year-old WPA worker, went on a "sitdown strike" against his in-laws yesterday at Fort Wayne, Ind. Police made Stanford move, so he put the dummy on the settee behind him on duty, but he said his strike would last until seven in-laws move.

'Rowdy' Given To Army Fliers For Mascot

Terrier Beats Execution Plan After Much Intervening.

OAKLAND, Cal., June 19.—(UP)—Rowdy apparently was headed for the Army today.

The little tan and white fox terrier, condemned to death by his mistress' will, will be turned over to a special administrator by Mrs. Barbara Nelson, his present custodian, with the understanding that he be given to Army fliers at Hamilton Field, Cal., for a mascot.

Rowdy went to court today and watched attorneys fight to save his life before Superior Judge T. W. Harris.

Harris postponed all court action until he could determine who should be custodian of Rowdy.

And the attorneys, taking no chances of a slip-up in powerful "Rowdy defense committee" operations, agreed that his savior, Mrs. Nelson, of San Francisco, should give the dog to Frank Paramino, the administrator.

Life Trial Lengthy.

The life trial of Rowdy was continued until Monday.

Mrs. Nelson took Rowdy for a walk last week when the police tried to carry out the terms of the will of the late Mrs. Clara Edgarton, who feared the dog would grieve for her. She has kept him ever since.

Paramin insisted he had no desire to see the dog killed. He said he would file an affidavit with the court Monday, pledging that no harm would come to Rowdy.

Judge Harris' courtroom was jammed by some of the thousands of amateur attorneys who swear they will not let Rowdy die.

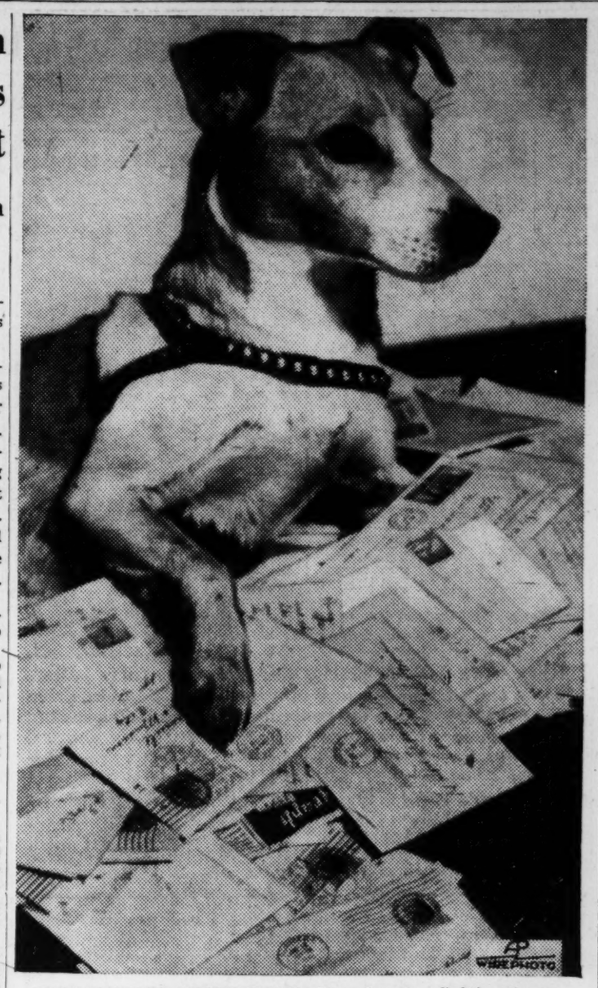
Despite Mrs. Edgarton's fears, Rowdy has not had much chance to get lonesome.

5,000 Telegrams.

He has received more than 5,000 telegrams and letters pledging support of the battle for his life. His legal counsel is being enlarged each day. The Army, Navy and Marine Corps fought for his custody at a recent United Service Organization parade.

Mrs. Edgarton, who died recently while visiting relatives in Illinois, picked up Rowdy five years ago when he was a stray dog. She said her love for animals was so great she wanted him "painlessly" executed immediately after she died, lest he be friendless and lonesome.

Rowdy has been formally invited to a British war relief party in Sausalito this weekend.



HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW—Rowdy, the California terrier whose escape from the legal executioner last week resulted in a deluge of fan mail, is scheduled to become mascot for Army fliers at Hamilton Field pending result of his life trial, continued until Monday. An affidavit will be filed in an effort to spare Rowdy, condemned in the will of his late owner, fearful he would grieve.

Genola College Leader Dies In Classroom

Heart Attack Fatal to Professor Watson; Rites Today.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

GENOLA, Ga., June 19.—Professor Gordon Watson, 40, head of the English department of West Georgia College, died unexpectedly of a heart attack in his classroom at the college this morning.

Professor Watson was graduated from Emory University in the class of '23. He received his master's degree from the same institution in 1927.

After spending a year at Harvard he accepted a position as professor of English at Georgia State College for Men at Tifton. He had previously been an instructor at Emory.

Watson came to West Georgia College to direct the English department from Jacksonville State Teachers' College in Alabama. He was a recipient in 1937 of a Julius Rosenwald scholarship for study at the University of North Carolina. He traveled abroad with the Emory singers and distinguished himself at West Georgia as director of the Glee Club and as secretary of the faculty.

In 1936 he was married to Mabel Carpenter, of Atlanta, who survives him. He also is survived by his mother, Mrs. S. S. Watson, of Rome and Carrollton, and a brother, Marion N. Watson, of Atlanta.

Girl Bob Hope Promised Job Will Replace Him

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—(AP)—Meeting 14-year-old Ann Gillis on her movie set, Bob Hope quipped "come over to NBC some time and I'll make you a radio star."

Bob was plenty surprised when titian-haired Ann showed up. But he figured he could squirm out of a tight spot by introducing her to Producer Bill Lawrence.

Lawrence promptly hired Ann—to star in a light summer serial comedy "A Date With Judy."

Ann will replace Hope, himself, who's taking a summer vacation.

Key Positions Fall in Drive On Damascus

British Report Comeback in Their Fortunes of War.

LONDON, June 19.—(AP)—The British reported a comeback in their fortunes in Syria today, with important positions taken in a hard-fisted drive on Damascus, the French counter-offensive stayed on the central front, and progress made along the coast toward Beirut.

Warned at last of the resolute nature of their foe by the sudden French counter-offensive between Damascus and Beirut which reached almost to the Palestine frontier, the British were reported to have done with parleys before Damascus and unleashed an attack on the Syrian capital which was converging from the east, south and west.

Apparently the French had not responded to a reported ultimatum by the British commander, General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, demanding surrender of the capital by 5:30 a. m. Thursday.

The middle east command announced the taking of important positions just to the south of the city, while a British military spokesman in Jerusalem previously had reported the capture of Mezze, important airport but 3 1-2 miles to the west.

In the rough central district, the command announced the recapture of Kuneitra, which the British reached on the first day of the campaign, and the surrounding of the French forces which had recaptured Merdjayoun. Both places are near the Palestine frontier.

On the Lebanon coast, the British said their forces made further progress after having come within sight of Beirut.

A French communique from Vichy admitted the French counter-offensive had run its course for lack of fresh man power. The French forces were described as exhausted by the 12-day-old "unequal" struggle.

Turkish-Nazi Pact Is Hailed in Berlin

BERLIN, June 19.—(AP)—The Turkish-German nonaggression treaty was hailed tonight as a triumph equal to a military victory, as Adolf Hitler received the Turkish ambassador in the Reich-chancellery.

The envoy, Huesrev Gerede, delivered to Hitler a written message from Turkish President Ismet Inonu.

Berlin's reaction to the pact was colored by the fact that it was signed at the moment German troops were reporting large-scale successes in the North African fighting near Salum, Egypt. A headline writer observed:

"Churchill takes two on the chin."

Broadcasters Ask Suspension Of New Rules

Spokesman Says U. S. 'Getting Awfully Close to Censorship.'

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—Contending that this country was "getting awful close to censorship," a spokesman for radio broadcasters urged senators today to suspend new regulations regarding chain broadcasting until congress had investigated the radio industry and existing federal laws and controls.

Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, told the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee that owners of broadcasting stations could not test regulations of the Federal Communication Commission in the courts "without risking their entire investment" because they were subject to FCC licenses.

"Radio stations are in a fearful state of mind," he said. "We're getting awful close to censorship. Whether or not a station may carry a speech may rest upon the attitude of those in control. We're getting to the place where we may lose the freedom of speech in radio."

Miller testified in support of a resolution by Senator White, Republican, Maine, which would suspend new FCC rules governing chain broadcasting and network relationships until an investigation had been made of present laws and FCC administration of them.

Moultrie Girl Winner In Baptist Contest

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

ROME, Ga., June 19.—Her address on "Building a Christian Community" won for Miss Merry Elizabeth Hicks, of Moultrie, the speakers' tournament here Tuesday night, a feature of the Baptist Training Union assembly now in session at Shorter College.

Miss Hicks will represent Georgia Baptist young people in the southwide speakers' contest at Ridgecrest, N. C., in July. Winner of second place in the contest here was Lamar Haley, of Canton.

The annual business meeting of the assembly was held today and state unions which have done the best work were organized. Other features of today's program were two talks given by Dr. John L. Hill, book editor of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist convention. The annual assembly concludes tomorrow at noon.

Atlantan Gets Letter Telling Of Convoy Trip

Jimmy Warburg, Former Resident Here, Writes Carpenter.

A first-hand account of a convoy trip across the north Atlantic and the story of how the convoy was attacked by German bombers was penned by a young British subject in a letter which arrived yesterday to a friend here.

The letter was addressed to Paul Carpenter Jr., and written by Jimmy Warburg, English youth, who, after a year's stay in Atlanta, returned recently on a convoyed freighter to join the RAF, where he is now engaged in home guard work in Cornwall. He said he is enjoying it and that "Jerry is going to have some job when and if he comes."

In the letter, Warburg stated his homefolk are "well-off for food now, with a slight shortage of luxuries like cigarets and jam," adding "the basic rations of petrol (gas) are enough to get along with."

With reference to his trip over, young Warburg said the journey was "quite a holiday compared to what I had expected though we had a narrow escape when we were attacked from the air. All the same the whole convoy (censor scratched out line here) got through without a hitch."

"A few nights ago, a German (german spelled with little g) dropped some "H. E.'s" (high explosives) fairly near—no damage done," he wrote.

While in Atlanta, Warburg lived at 781 West Peachtree street.

Meat Packers Indicted; Price Plot Charged

Accused of Conspiracy To Fix Cost of Sheep.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Three huge meat-packing firms and nine other organizations and officials were indicted by a federal grand jury today on charges of conspiracy to fix the price of sheep sold on the Chicago livestock market.

The indictment, the second returned in the last four days in the Chicago phase of the Justice Department's nation-wide inquiry aimed at lowering the cost of food, named these defendants:

Armour & Co.; Swift & Co.; Wilson & Co.; the American Meat Institute, a national association of meat packers; Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of the board of Wilson & Co.; Charles R. Hood, vice president of Wilson & Co.; John Holmes, president of Swift & Co.; Paul C. Smith, vice president of Swift & Co.; William F. Monia and Walter A. Netsch, sheep buyers for Armour & Co.; L. Aubrey Williams, listed as an order buyer for eastern packers, and the sheep section of the Chicago subcommittee of the Joint Marketing Improvement Committee, an organization of buyers and sellers.

Daniel Britt, special assistant to the attorney general, said that more than 90 per cent of the sheep sold here was purchased by Armour, Swift, Wilson and Williams—the Chicago concerns for slaughter here and Williams for shipment to packers in other states.

Russo-German War Not Likely, Duranty Says

Ambassador Cripps Thinks Hitler Planning Early Invasion.

By WALTER DURANTY,
North American Newspaper Alliance.

NEW YORK, June 19.—It is not wholly an accident that reports of an impending clash between Russia and Germany coincide with the arrival in London of Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's ambassador to U. S. S. R. As early as February last, Sir Stafford made no secret of his belief that Germany would attack Russia this summer, probably before the end of July.

The ambassador argued that Adolf Hitler alread. realized he would be unable to reach a quick decision against Britain and that he must therefore seek "a solid foundation" for subsequent peace proposals by occupying the Ukraine and perhaps part of the North Caucasus. That sounded reasonable enough, but few people in Moscow thought anything of the kind would occur this year.

However, Sir Stafford maintained that Hitler knew better than anyone the degree, speed and volume of the current upswing in Soviet industrial—especially military—production, in labor discipline generally and in the reorganization and the reinforcement of the Red army and air force. Germany, therefore, had more to lose than to gain by waiting, because the relative strength of the U. S. S. R. was increasing faster than Germany's, and delay would enhance the possibilities of British bombing or other counter-operations against Germany in the west.

Anticipate Action.

The British ambassador's views were not shared by well-informed foreign circles in Moscow, who thought he was overready to accept Soviet figures and assertions at their face value; but it is worth noting that I have just received an uncensored letter from a competent friend in Moscow, dated April 27, stating: "Various indications are that the Germans intend eastward action in June. Many folks here now take it very seriously."

The recent Tass (Soviet official news agency) denial of friction between the U. S. S. R. and Germany, alleged to have resulted from the failure of negotiations which Tass rather ambiguously disavows, contains a definite Soviet recognition of heavy German troop concentrations along Russia's western frontier.

Nothing of course was said about corresponding Soviet measures, but I learned in Siberia that the protection of the eastern maritime provinces had been entrusted to the long-term-service frontier guard (say a quarter million strong) and local territorial units, while the rest of the former "special Far Eastern army" had been moved westward. The neutrality pact with Japan would give further reassurance to Soviet eastern security, although, before the pact was signed, I was told, "we have taught the Japanese two lessons already, at Lake Khasan and Lomenhan, and feel sure the troops we have here are all that we need for the present."

Ambassador Recalled.

There are other items which appear to herald a speedy Russo-German clash, improbable as it still appears to me. The Soviet ambassador to Rumania, Lavrentief, has just been recalled to Moscow. The Finns announce restriction measures for frontier travel, and the presence of German troops in Finland is admitted, although their number is disputed. A dispatch from Sweden states new "classes" have been mobilized in Germany and that almost all leave has been canceled in the German army until October 1. Passenger traffic has been reduced to a minimum to permit the transit of troops and equipment. (A similar step was taken during the preparation for the German attack from Bulgaria on Greece and Yugoslavia.)

From Istanbul and Ankara we hear that tension between Turkey and Germany is less acute and that Turkish anxiety has diminished. Finally, there is the fact, neglected by war prophets and pundits, that climatic conditions at this time of the year in the South Palestine-North Arabian desert and the Lybian desert, the two land approaches to Egypt, are more like hell than anything on earth save the crater of a volcano.

In that terrific heat the human body dries so rapidly that lots of water is imperative. There has been talk of an air-cooling system for German tanks, and I suppose it could be installed, theoretically. But if one reflects that in the summer down there your finger blisters if you touch the outside of a tank and that they wrap first-aid bandages round the metalwork of rifles to avoid burns, you don't need to believe fantastic stories about the gasoline in tank or trucks exploding from sheer heat, in order to understand that big-scale military operations are virtually impossible.

Distracting Britain.

On the other hand Hitler may be preparing his long-promised invasion of Britain and trying, characteristically, to distract British attention by rumors of war against Russia. Don't forget, too, that German troops have to spend their "rest" or inactive period somewhere, and that there is more food in Rumania than in Bulgaria, and the Rumanian population, both masculine and feminine, is easier and more docile than the tough Bulgarian mountaineers.

In the last analysis it all comes to an estimate of possible causes and signs of conflict—now—between Russia and Germany. There is the mastery of the Black sea and the Bosphorus and the narrow straits below, where Greeks once fought Trojans for control. And the German conquest of the Slav outposts, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. The question who shall be Suzerain over Turkey and Persia, and whether Russian aid to China must be stopped so that Japan can draw breath to fulfill its pledges to the Axis. And Soviet shipments of oil, ore and manganese and foodstuffs, which Russia needs itself, and the matter of shipments of vital war materials from the east across the U. S. S. R.

Despite the Tass statement that "Germany did not present any claims to the U. S. S. R. and does not propose any new clear agreement"—this phrasing is far from ingenuous — Russo-German discussions, covering all the points listed above, have been in progress for many weeks. Secondly, during the past three months, Joseph Stalin has indicated indirectly, but unmistakably that he wasn't any too pleased with some of Hitler's doings.

Although Sir Stafford's political affiliation may incline him to credulity where Russia is concerned, there has been a big and unmistakable advance on the Soviet home front in morale and materially also, and the Russians may not be wholly wrong in saying that it's as unfair to condemn the Red army for its initial setbacks in Finland as to have thought—which some people did—that the British Empire was cracking when Boer farmers chased British soldiers almost into the sea more than 40 years ago.

So Stalin doubtless has been making it clear that he can't be ridden over roughshod. From what we know of Hitler nothing would be more likely than a "pressure" riposte, with German troops movements, which as Tass blandly remarks, "should be assumed to be connected with motives having no bearing on Soviet-German relations," although Tass does not fail to add that the "summer camp drills of Red army reservists and forthcoming maneuvers" have also no ulterior purpose, least of all one "inimical to Germany."

In short it looks as though there was some rift in the lute, but I shall be surprised if a clash occurs now. A big dicker is in progress between two well-matched adversaries, neither of whom is hampered by lack of scruple or any rules have their own. The brew may go sour or boil over, as some day I think it will, but today the odds are in favor of handclasps rather than blows.

'Frantic' Red Military Moves Are Reported

2,000,000 German Soldiers Rumored Poised on Frontier.

LONDON, June 19.—(AP)—Increasing belief that war between Germany and Soviet Russia is drawing nearer was expressed tonight by diplomatic observers at the end of the day of mounting reports and rumors.

One of the reports considered most significant was an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Goteborg, Sweden, quoting a message from Stockholm that travelers from Russia to Finland had seen a "frantic mobilization" along the railway from Moscow to Leningrad.

There was no substantiated news of any further concrete move since yesterday's signature of the German-Turkish friendship pact. The reports and rumors, however, flew thick and fast.

Announcement of the friendship accord was interpreted here as an infallible sign that Adolf Hitler is planning some bold new military stroke.

Official quarters said their latest reports were that some 2,000,000 German troops are poised along the Russian-German frontier from the Baltic to the Black sea, facing the Soviet armies. Among other reports was one that the Tiflis radio in southern Russia had declared the Soviet union would make no further attempts to appease Hitler and that henceforth Germany's demands would be refused. The report drew a reference in the daily account by the diplomatic correspondent of the Press Association (British News Service).

Order Reduces Primary Nickel in Stainless Steel

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) E. R. Stettinius Jr., defense director of priorities, issued an order today requiring that the amount of primary nickel in stainless steel be reduced to 40 per cent of the total nickel content.

The net effect of the order, officials said, is that for every 100 pounds of nickel going into stainless steel only 40 pounds can be primary metal and the other 60 must come from scrap.

Kiwanis Ends Parley, Names Charles Donley

Eugene Cox and George Googe Address Session on Capital, Labor.

Kiwanis International, represented by more than 5,400 members from the United States and Canada, wound up its 25th annual convention here yesterday by installing Charles S. Donley, of Pittsburgh, as international president to succeed Mark A. Smith, Macon educator.

The Kiwanis convention closed with a flurry of clashing opinions regarding labor and capital in a symposium participated in by representatives of labor, capital, consumers and government, featured by differences between George Googe, southern director of A. F. of L., and Congressman Eugene Cox, of Camilla.

Cox said he favored elimination of defense industry strikes "if it takes every soldier in the army."

As the Kiwanians said "goodbye" to Atlanta, officials of the convention estimated the visitors spent more than $500,000 in this city during the five-day meet. They selected Cleveland as the next convention city.

Railroad Expert.

Donley, a railroad transportation expert, defeated Dr. Eugene Wolcott, of Des Moines, for the service group's presidency in secret balloting conducted Wednesday but not announced until the closing session at the Fox yesterday. He has been an active Kiwanian since 1923 and has held many high positions in the organization.

Other international officers installed included: Dr. Charles S. Holman, of St. Louis, vice president for the United States; Fred G. McAllister, of London, Ontario, vice president for Canada; Donald B. Rice, of Oakland, Cal., treasurer; and David H. Elton, Lethbridge, Alberta; Ben Dean, Grand Rapids, Mich.; W. D. Cotton, Rayville, La.; James P. Gallegher, of Newton, Mass.; the Rev. Philip E. Auer, of Galion, Ohio, and J. Hudson Huffard, of Bluefield, W. Va., as two-year trustees. Guy H. Vande Bogart, of Havre, Mont., was named to fill a one-year unexpired term.

Googe, Cox, Hugh MaGill, president of the American Federation of Investors; Herbert C. Stockham, director of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Mrs. Alford Blackburn, past president of the American Legion auxiliary, participants in the symposium, unanimously agreed that every American group should unite in all-out defense so that there will be "two anti-aircraft guns on every sand dune instead of two cars in every garage."

But when Dr. W. J. Carrington, of Atlantic City, acting as moderator, brought up the subject of strikes, opinions began to differ.

Googe, the labor man, favored disciplinary action against members of unions in unauthorized strikes, which, when it was pointed out that many such strikes are voted by the workers upon inspiration supplied by Communist leaders, led Congressman Cox to brand all such strikes "gangsterism" and to call for the army.

The congressman asserted that the wave of strikes has been due partially to "government coddling of labor with the idea of nationalizing business."

Stockham accused labor of exploiting capital through its strikes.

All the speakers expressed apprehension over the cost of defense and the effect of inflation and several declared for a more widespread income tax law.

The convention closed with praise for Atlanta as the host city.

Uncle Remus To Be Keynote Of 'Cavalcade'

Former Constitution Editor, Atlantan To Be Praised on NBC.

Uncle Remus is going on the air.

The Radio Cavalcade of America will devote its broadcast Monday night over the red network of the National Broadcasting Company to a dramatization of the life of Atlanta's beloved Joel Chandler Harris, one-time writer for The Constitution.

In the starring role, portraying the great teller of tales, will be Karl Swenson. The broadcast will be presented between 9:30 and 10 o'clock Atlanta time Monday night.

Announcing the program for Monday, the du Pont company, sponsors of the program, had Dr. Frank Monaghan, professor of history at Yale, and historical consultant for the Cavalcade of America, write the following.

"Sober, wise and judicious were the stately editorial columns of The Atlanta Constitution during the period of its famous and esteemed journalist, Joel Chandler Harris. Nevertheless, Joel Harris was not solely concerned with radiating forceful editorial opinion in one of our nation's great and distinguished newspapers.

Stories Beloved.

"From the hills and backwoods of America's southland, he gathered experiences and material from the dreams and lives of humble folk and translated their meaning and spirit into a rich American legacy, the stories beloved through generations in the name of 'Uncle Remus.'

"The writings of Joel Chandler Harris bear the authentic touch of American humor. As with Oliver Wendell Holmes, Bill Nye and Will Rogers it is humor that is permanent because it is gentle, dignified by a profound understanding of its natural subject matter—mankind.

"Not for Joel Harris the temporary elegance of sharp, caustic and vicious sophistry that occasionally passes for wit at the hands of literary pranksters. The genuine American humorist wrote kindly and sympathetically and with lasting brilliance and of their ran. Joel Chandler Harris was more than typical. His name is as imperishable as his glowing humor.

"The story of this great southern editor and humorist of the best American tradition will be told by the Cavalcade Players on Monday night's broadcast of the Cavalcade of America."

Dunaway Program Includes Dancer

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

NEWNAN, Ga., June 19.—Edwin Strawbridge, famed aesthetic dancer, and his group of professional dance artists, will open their season with a concert Friday evening in the Hettie Jane Dunaway Gardens near Newnan. Strawbridge and his troupe arrived last Saturday from New York to spend the next five weeks in the gardens in study and preparation for lectures and concerts.

Miss Virginia Miller will again be Strawbridge's partner. An added attraction to the ensemble is Tashamira, of London, England, noted folk-dance exponent, who will appear in concert and teach classes. At the end of the season, she will stage a folk-dance festival in the natural amphitheater in the gardens.

Many students from throughout the United States have registered for the annual school of the dance, which offers training in all forms of ballet, oriental, classical and folk dancing.

EMPORIA, Va., June 19.—(AP)—The box mill of the Emporia Manufacturing Company, which was turning out gas mask containers for the government, was destroyed by fire today.

The loss was estimated at $150,000 by H. T. Blake, plant manager. Two box cars loaded with gas mask boxes were burned.

New Textbook Row Threatens State Colleges

Legion Leader To Probe Volumes Used by Dr. Pittman.

Georgia appeared to be headed for another textbook row yesterday as Al Henson, assistant attorney general in the Labor Department and a leader of the Georgia American Legion, announced he planned to make a personal investigation of books used in the University System of Georgia.

Indications were that the textbook issue would spring up in the hearing for Dr. Marvin S. Pittman, president of the Georgia Teachers' College at Statesboro, which is scheduled before the State Board of Regents July 14.

Henson requested that a committee from the American Legion be permitted to examine the books recommended by Dr. Pittman for use at his institution and that a report be made by Dr. Pittman.

Particular criticism, Henson said, has been directed at a book entitled "Calling America," and another, "Modern Man in the Making."

"Both are texts on social science and sharply challenge our American way of life," he said.

Pittman Investigated.

Henson also said he was investigating charges that Pittman had avoided a ruling of the State Board of Education by which the Rugg textbooks were barred from use.

The Legionnaire added it was his understanding that the Teachers' College of Columbia University had been making an effort to extend its influence into the Statesboro institution.

He also charged that "many of our colleges have to sell their souls" in order to get endowment money from the north.

"In almost every instance they require that we accept a 'professor of race relations' of their choosing and he comes down and drills into Georgia boys and girls the idea that they should associate with Negroes," he said.

"One female college, as a grand finale to a year's lectures on race relations, sent its entire class of girls over to Tuskegee Institute, where they lived on the campus for a couple of days with these Negroes and attended their parties and intermingled with them socially," Henson charged.

Henson, who was a leader in the fight to have the Rugg textbooks barred from Georgia, said "we must look to our loyal men and women in the teaching profession to preserve Americanism as our fathers knew it, and to our school officials."

Cox Visits Talmadge.

Representative E. E. Cox, of Camilla, who was on a visit from Washington, was in the Governor's office yesterday and charged that "radicalism has taken root in many of our educational institutions, particularly the larger ones."

He said he knew "nothing about the merit of the complaints made against certain Georgia educators," and was expressing no opinion about them.

Nevertheless, he continued, "it is high time that somebody were telling unsuspecting fathers and mothers the kind of influence that their boys and girls are being subjected to."

"Our people do not want to be communized. They do not want to be mongrelized, but it is going to take place if the people do not open their eyes and take account of what is going on."

Gasoline Ration Cards May Be Issued in East

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The possibility of gasoline ration cards for eastern motorists arose today as officials considered ways of combating a threatened oil shortage in this area of the country.

Interior Secretary Ickes told his press conference that a ration card system was "one of the things under consideration," if rigid restrictions on nonessential use of automobiles became necessary. He previously had indicated, however, that the first step would be a government appeal for voluntary conservation by motorists.

Asked how a ration system would work, Ickes, who is oil coordinator, said no details had been worked out.

Ickes previously had told an emergency conference of approximately 800 representatives of the $12,000,000,000 oil industry that unity of effort was imperative "to defend democracy."

ATLANTA, GA., FRIDAY MORNING, JUNE 20, 1941.

Wine With Meals

Certain foods blend in flavor particularly well with certain wines. Table wines, such as good but not superior claret, red Rhone, or red Italian wine, do not usually claim a particular postion in a meal. They may be served throughout informal meals. In general, though, where there is some attempt at formal service, these rules apply: A white wine is served with fish, and a red wine with meat. Sweet wines are served with dessert or at the end of a meal. If several wines are included in a menu (rarely more than three are ever served), less superior and light wines are served first, leading up to a very fine red wine with roast or game. Sweet wines are served with dessert and never before a dry wine.

The following table will prove a help in selecting the most appropriate wines, though these rules need not be strictly followed:

Vermouth: Use as an appetizer, or mixed. Serve cold.

Sherry, dry: Use as an appetizer or with clear soups. Serve slightly chilled.

Sherry, sweet: Use with dessert. Serve at room temperature.

Sauterne: Use with dessert, fruit, or with fish. Serve cold.

White Burgundy: Use with oysters, fish, or throughout meal. Serve cold.

Claret: Use with roast, steak and other red meats, with game, cold meats, or throughout meal. Serve at room temperature.

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Fruit Cheese.

Submitted by Mrs. Ralph Lee,
Murrayville, Ga., Route 1.

1-2 pound raisins.
1-2 pound currants.
1-2 pound blanched almonds.
1-2 pound English walnuts.
1-2 pound dates.
1-2 pound figs.

Grind all together and mix well. Pack tight and leave for two or three days. Then cut in squares and roll in powdered sugar.

Glazed Banana Rolls.

Submitted by
Mrs. H. A. Metcalf Jr.,
1433 Hartford Ave., S. W.
Atlanta, Ga.

Turn on oven and set at hot (425 degrees). Grease sides but not bottom of a dozen 2-inch muffin tins. Put in bottom of tins equal portions of 2 tablespoons melted butter. Cover butter with equal portions of 1-4 cup light brown sugar, lightly packed. Put in mixing bowl 2 cups of prepared biscuit flour. Stir in with fork 1-2 cup evaporated milk diluted with 1-4 cup of water. Beat vigorously for 30 seconds. Turn out on floured paper. Roll into a sheet 1-4 inch thick and measuring 8 by 12 inches. Spread dough with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Completely cover with thinly sliced bananas. Sprinkle with a mixture of 1-4 cup light brown sugar and 1-2 teaspoon cinnamon. Starting at 12-inch side, and with aid of paper, roll up like a jelly roll. Cut into 1-inch slices. Put cut side down into prepared tins. Bake 15 minutes or until browned. Turn out while hot and sprinkle with chopped buttered nuts. These small inch slices puff up into a normal size roll. They can be served at once, or can be kept, for they do not get soggy or hard.

Spiced Cherries.

Submitted by
Mrs. A. M. Ward,
R. F. D. 2,
Elberton, Ga.

Pick over the cherries, leaving about an inch of stem on each cherry. Pack them into well sterilized jars, putting in a layer of cherries and then a layer of powdered sugar. When jars are filled, pour into them spiced vinegar to cover the cherries. This vinegar is spiced, cooked and then cooled before putting over the fruit. For each quart of vinegar use 1 tablespoon whole cloves, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon allspice and 1 teaspoon salt. Bring this to a boil in the vinegar. Cool and pour over cherries, filling jars full. Seal and set away. This makes a delicious relish with cold meats.

Oven Fried Chicken.

Submitted by
H. J. Arnold,
Palmetto, Ga., R. F. D. No. 1.

2 fryers (about 2 pounds each).
1-3 cup flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
1-4 teaspoon paprika.
1-8 teaspoon white pepper.
1-8 teaspoon celery salt.
1-2 cup fat (part butter).
1-4 cup boiling water.

Wash and cut fryers into serving pieces. Chill until time to cook. Coat with flour and seasonings shaken together in paper sack. (Add two pieces of chicken at a time to coat). Heat fat in frying pan. Add chicken and brown well. Transfer to baking pan (shallow kind) pour in water and cover tightly. Bake an hour in moderate oven (350 degrees).

A platter of French fried seafood will make a hit with the man of the house.

Men Like French Fried Seafood

The man of the house will beam with pleasure over a main dish of fried seafood, such as this. Scallops and shrimps make a fine French fried pair, or you might add small pieces of fish fillets. Here's how to make the dish as pictured:

Seafood Platter, French Fried.

Wash scallops in cold water and drain on absorbent paper. Clean shrimp (either fresh ones that have been boiled or canned ones) by removing the sand line. Place on absorbent paper. Dip each piece in frying batter and fry until a rich brown, in oil or shortening heated to 370 degrees. Never allow frying oil to get so hot it smokes. If you do not have a frying thermometer test fat by dropping a 1-inch cube of bread into it. The temperature is right if the cube of bread browns in 50 to 60 seconds. Drain all fried foods on absorbent paper.

Frying Batter for Cooked Meat and Seafood.

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 egg well beaten
1 tablespoon salad oil or melted shortening
1 cup milk

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt together. Mix egg, melted shortening or oil and milk and stir into flour mixture, beating until smooth. The thickness of this batter may be adjusted to individual needs by increasing or decreasing the amount of milk. But for most foods 1 cup of milk will make a batter of right thickness.

Since the shrimp will be a last-minute preparation let your vegetables be ones that can be all prepared before hand. Try a casserole of baked carrots and potatoes:

Baked Carrots and Potatoes.

4 medium-sized potatoes
4 medium-sized carrots
1 large onion
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup condensed milk, diluted with 1-2 cup hot water
1-2 cup hot water
1-4 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon salt

Peel and slice potatoes, carrots and onion. Grease a baking dish and place vegetables in alternative layers in the baking dish. Season and dot with butter. Continue until potatoes, carrots and onions are all used. Pour milk and hot water over this and cook until tender.

For a finished meal serve these two dishes with a salad bowl of slaw or raw vegetables.

PASTRY TIPS

The making of a good pie crust is not difficult, as the beginner imagines. It depends mainly upon, (1) the person's belief that she can make a good pie, (2) a recipe, and (3) a light, quick handling of the dough.

For a beginner, or one who has not been able to produce a good crust, this recipe is boon.

Hot Water Pie Crust.

1 cup plain flour, sifted before measuring
1-4 cup shortening
1-4 teaspoon baking powder
3 tablespoons boiling water
1-2 teaspoon salt

Sift together the dry ingredients. Cut in fat with a knife, keeping mixture flaky. Then add boiling water and chill in refrigerator before rolling.

A recipe calling for a cup of flour is sufficient to make a large one-crust pie with the crust built up around edge, or 2 small pies. It saves time and energy to make several crusts at a time. To keep pie crusts roll out about 1-4 inch thick, dust sparingly with flour, roll up in waxed paper and keep in refrigerator. These will keep a week or two.

Don't these pies remind you that summer is here and it's time to make fruit pies? Delicious, seasonal fruits and berries tucked neatly into crunchy pastry are one of the chief joys of summertime.

Tongue Is Good Summer Meat

In looking for foods with which to vary summer meals don't overlook the possibilities of tongue. Smoked or fresh, tongue is considered quite a delicacy and may be served either hot or cold with sauces, spicy or sweet. Tongue is a particularly good meat for the cold platter or for luncheon plates because it produces neat slices, with no fat or waste. Hot or cold tongue is excellent with a sharp horseradish sauce, and equally tasty with raisin sauce.

To Cook Tongue.

Select beef, veal or lamb tongue, either smoked or fresh. If tongue is not smoked cover with salted water and simmer, in covered kettle, until tongue is tender. A large beef tongue may require three or four hours cooking at simmering temperature. When tender, plunge tongue in cold water, which makes it easier to remove the thick skin covering. Tongue then may be reheated or chilled to slice. If smoked tongue is being cooked, simmer as directed above, in water to which no salt is added.

Horseradish Sauce.

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
1-4 cup grated horseradish
1-4 teaspoon mustard

Melt butter, stir in flour to blend. Gradually add milk and cook, stirring to keep mixture smooth. Add seasonings and cook about three minutes. Place over hot water to keep warm and to keep crust from forming. Serve over hot or cold sliced tongue. Also good with boiled or corned beef.

If you would prefer a cold horseradish sauce make it this way:

Fluffy Horseradish Sauce.

1-2 cup heavy cream, sweet or sour
4 to 6 tablespoons prepared horseradish
1-2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Whip cream until stiff, then fold in horseradish and seasonings.

Raisin Sauce.

(To serve with tongue or ham.)

1-3 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1 tablespoon flour
1-2 tablespoon dry mustard
Dash of salt and pepper
1 3-4 cups boiling water
1-4 cup vinegar
1-4 cup seedless raisins
1 tablespoon butter or margarine

Mix dry ingredients, add water and vinegar. Blend. Simmer slowly about 10 minutes. Add raisins and cook 2 minutes longer, or until raisins are plump. Add butter or margarine, and serve hot.

Try this recipe with tongue:

Tongue a la Maryland.

1 beef tongue
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1-2 teaspoon salt
Bay leaf
1 tablespoon whole cloves
3-4 cup brown sugar
1 1-2 cups canned or cooked cherries
1 cup broth
1-2 lemon sliced

Simmer tongue in water to cover until it is tender. Remove skin, and place in a saucepan or casserole with cover. Add salt (if tongue is fresh), cloves, butter, brown sugar, cherries, sliced lemon and 1 cup broth in which tongue was cooked. Cover and simmer gently in oven or on top of stove until tongue is heated and sauce thickened.

The housekeeper with a small family might not want to cook a whole tongue, even though the smaller lamb or pork tongues are available. Excellent lunch tongue can be bought in cans, about the right size for smaller families. Here is a jellied salad using a small can of lunch tongue.

Jellied Tongue Salad.

1 bouillon cube
1 cup boiling water
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 small onion sliced
Few grains celery salt
1 teaspoon salt
1 peppercorn
1-2 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons plain gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
1 cup chopped celery
1 small can lunch tongue

Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, add tomato and seasonings. Cook 15 minutes, strain and stir into it the softened gelatin. Cool. Add celery. Pour into large mold and chill until set. Unmold and top with slices of tongue. Cut through gelatine mixture with each serving of the meat. Garnish with watercress and serve with mustard.

Luncheon Suggestions.

Serve sliced tongue, canned or cooked with potato or vegetable salad. Or serve slices of tongue over freshly cooked, buttered spinach. Tongue may be sliced and serve plank style, with a border of vegetables such as small potatoes sprinkled with parsley, diced carrots and string beans split French style.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Make chopped beef or veal into flat cakes an inch thick and about 2 1-2 inches in diameter. Spread each lightly with prepared mustard, cover with a thick slice of tomato, sprinkle the tomato with a whole fresh mushroom cap dipped in melted butter or salad oil. Place all the meat cakes in a shallow pan, sprinkle in the chopped mushroom stems and add 1 or 2 tablespoons water. Bake in a hot oven—500 degrees—for 10 minutes, basting once with the liquid in the pan. Serve with gravy made from the liquid.

Rice, Celery and Egg Salad.

Cut young celery into very fine slices and crisp for at least an hour in ice water, then drain thoroughly. Cook 4 eggs until hard, chill, and peel them. Mix 2 cups cooked, cold rice with 1 cup cut celery and the chopped whites of the eggs, add 1 teaspoon chopped sweet pickle and enough well seasoned mayonnaise to moisten. Heap on a bed of crisp lettuce, sprinkle with the egg yolks rubbed through a strainer and garnish with radish roses and celery curls.

Potato and Pimiento Souffle.

Cut 2 canned pimentos in very small pieces and mix with 1 teaspoon chopped green onions or chives. Spread in a very thin layer in the bottom of a greased baking dish. Reheat 2 cups left-over mashed potatoes in a double boiler with 1-2 cup milk, mixing the milk in with a fork and heating the mixture until perfectly smooth. When very hot, add 2 tablespoons butter, a little white pepper, 1 teaspoon prepared mustard and the well beaten yolks of 2 eggs. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites and pour the potato mixture on top of the pimientos. Bake in a hot oven for 20 minutes, or until well puffed and delicately browned. Serve very hot.

Easy Chocolate Pie.

Melt 2 squares unsweetened chocolate in top of a double boiler. Add 1 1-3 cups sweetened condensed milk (large can) and stir over rapidly boiling water 5 minutes until mixture thickens. Remove from heat. Add 1-2 cup water and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Stir until thoroughly blended. When cool, add 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into baked pie shell or cooked crumb crust. (See recipe for this below). Garnish with whipped cream.

Vanilla Wafer Pie Crust—Roll enough vanilla wafers to make 3-4 cup of crumbs. Cut enough vanilla wafers in halves to stand around edge of pie plate and put them in place. Cover bottom of plate with crumbs and fill in space between halved wafers. Pour in filling.

Peel raw young beets, cut in quarters and run them through the food chopper. Put the chopped beets in a heavy saucepan adding 2 tablespoons butter or margarine to each 2 cups of beets, 1 teaspoon of salt and 1-2 teaspoon sugar. Cover closely and cook for 10 minutes, shaking the pan frequently to keep the beets from sticking. Uncover, sprinkle with lemon juice and serve hot.

Coffee Jelly.

Soak 3 tablespoons of gelatine in 1-2 cup of cold water for five minutes. Add 1 cup of boiling water, 1-2 cup of sugar and the juice of 1 lemon. Stir until the gelatine is dissolved. Then add 3 cups of strong hot coffee and strain the mixture into a cold wet mold or into sherbet glasses. Chill and serve with whipped or plain cream.

Cheese sticks, made of pie paste with cheese added, and cut into strips for baking, are crisp contrast to soft-textured salads.

Fruit Pies in Season

It's open season for fresh fruit pies: Berries and fruits baked in a pie plate or deep dish style are not only popular summer dessert but from a nutrional point of view they're good, since they offer opportunity to get another fruit into the day's diet.

The making of fruit pies need not be a problem. All fruit pies follow the same general rule: If fruit is large it should be washed, peeled and sliced. If small, such as berries, it should be washed and picked over. The sugar should be mixed with the fruit. To prevent bottom crust from becoming soggy, strew over it, before putting in the fruit, two tablespoons of fine cracker crumbs or dust with a scant tablespoon of flour. Put in the fruit, add three tablespoons of water, unless fruit is very juicy; place on the top crust, dust with granulated sugar, and bake in moderate oven.

If fruit is very juicy, you may prefer the juice thickened with quick-cooking tapioca. Here's the proportion for this method: To 3 cups prepared fruit add 2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca, 1 to 1 1-4 cups sugar, 1-4 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted. Let stand 15 minutes before placing in pie shell. This will fill 9-inch pie.

Chanteuse or Selectee; It's All the Same to Him

FORT JACKSON, S. C., June 19.—(AP)—A soldier asked Yola Galli, soprano singer with a troupe of entertainers sent on a tour of Army camps by a New York citizens' committee, if she were a "prima donna."

"Of course not," she answered. "I'm a chanteuse."

The soldier thought a minute and said:

"Well, well, I'm a selectee; shake."

Suicide Squads Of Nazis Given Baptism of Fire

Crack Machinegunners Battle British at Desert Pass.

By RICHARD D. McMILLAN.

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN WESTERN DESERT, June 19.—(UP)—German suicide squads of crack machinegunners, given seven days of rations and ordered to fight to the last bullet, have had their baptism of fire in the battle of Halfaya (Hellfire) Pass which raged through the past four days.

The men were recruited and trained as model parachute troops and dive bomber airmen. The newest German robots were placed in machinegun nests at vital desert points, given food and water for seven days, and ordered to fight to the end.

Great Battle.

I watched the seven-day-ration men in the great battle which has been going on in the western desert. They used all types of machineguns, particularly the heavy naval pompoms which throbbed in the moonlit night like a huge native war drum.

I watched British Tommies and Indian hillmen advance under intense fire and climb the dusty crevices of Hellfire Pass. It was covered with a pall of snuff-colored desert dust mixed with the grayish-black smoke of bursting shells.

It seemed that the whole escarpment side wall was spouting fire.

Two Attacks.

Two attacks by the British almost mastered the pass, but the seven-day-ration men held out in the isolated one-man forts in inaccessible clefts in the wadis.

As the molten sun disappeared, the suicide Nazis began signaling to their distant comrades for aid.

The signal system used by the Germans was similar to that of parachutists. The signals indicated that all was well or help was needed at a certain point. In the latter case efforts were made to send supplies or reinforcements under cover of darkness, avoiding British fire behind the boulder-strewn pass.

During the second British attack nearly every German was killed, but the Nazis succeeded in refilling the isolated forts with fresh men.

Only Conflict To Bring War, George Declares

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP) Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, asserted today that if this country enters the war, it will not go because of "maneuvers on the diplomatic field," but because of "actual conflict." He said he believed the United States would not seize French possessions "unless there is a definite Axis move westward to the Atlantic."

Industry Takes Upswing Here In May, June

Following April Decline, Wholesale and Retail Prices Increase.

Industrial activity in Atlanta's Federal Reserve district increased during May and the first half of June, after a slight decline in April, the board of governors reported yesterday.

Wholesale commodity prices during the period showed considerable advance and retail prices also increased. The board's seasonal index of industrial production for May showed a 149 per cent increase over the 1935-39 average, as compared with 140 per cent in April and 143 in March.

Department store sales showed a continued rise, but variety store sales declined slightly more than usual. Sales of new and used cars increased for the period.

Marking a rise in coal shipments, freight car loadings increased in May. In the first half of June total loadings were maintained at the advanced level.

Commercial loans by banks in 101 cities in the district rose during the four weeks ending June 11. Deposits also continued to increase.

Harrison's Condition Seen as 'Still Serious'

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) Aides of Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, said today that while his condition was still serious, his physicians considered it satisfactory.

Harrison underwent an operation at Emergency hospital Monday for an intestinal obstruction.

Court Upheld In Dismissal of Dugas Action

Gold Miner Sued Darden for $100,000 in Diamond Case.

The state court of appeals yesterday upheld the dismissal of a $100,000 damage suit brought by Graham C. Dugas, Dahlonega gold miner and former state legislator, against Allen Darden, director of the income tax unit of the State Department of Revenue.

Dugas had alleged that Darden, whom he called the "self-styled boss of north Georgia politics," had "ruined" his reputation by causing his indictment on a charge of larceny after trust in connection with the sale of a $500 diamond ring.

Dugas set forth that he had given Darden a promissory note, upon which he had made several payments, in "complete and full payment" for the ring and that Darden knew he "had not stolen" the ring.

As a result of the charge, Dugas said, he had been "intimidated" from making the race for the senate in 1940, and had been placed "under suspicion as a gem thief and a common racketeer."

The court of appeals, in sustaining the Forsyth county superior court in dismissing the damage suit, held that no misuse of process had been shown, primarily on the grounds that the larceny charge against Dugas was still pending.

Northern Mines Sign Agreement

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—Northern soft coal producers and the United Mine Workers' union signed a two-year wage agreement this afternoon providing vacations with pay and wage increases for miners in the northern Appalachian fields.

The conclusion of the agreement as a result of negotiations begun early last March put into permanent effect the temporary agreements raising the day wage rate in the north from $6 to $7 and corresponding increases for miners paid on a tonnage basis.

With the signing of the two-year contract, the union and northern operators agreed upon a revised vacation with pay plan.

The union and the southern Appalachian producers have not yet agreed on a wage contract. Union officials said they were hopeful that the negotiations with the south, which have been deadlocked over the vacation-with-pay question, would be brought to a conclusion in a few days.

3 Firemen Hurt In New York Blaze

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—Three firemen were injured tonight in extinguishing a blaze of undetermined origin which destroyed between 40 and 50 old wooden elevated cars in the Interborough Rapid Transit storage yard in the Bronx. Damage was not estimated.

Hundreds of old wooden elevated cars and creosote-soaked railroad ties are stored in the yard. The blaze was believed to have started in the ties and spread to the cars.

Stiff Tax Levy Given Approval By House Body

Income Surtax Likely To Run From 5 to 75 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) Major provisions of the stiffest tax bill in the nation's history, more than doubling the amount to be collected from millions of individual taxpayers and assessing corporations about $1,255,000,000 more than at present, won tentative approval today from the House Ways and Means Committee.

Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, announced the committee had voted to recommend a graduated system of individual income surtaxes starting at five per cent on the first dollar of taxable income and rising to 75 per cent, the present maximum, on incomes over $5,000,000.

Surtaxes of five per cent would be imposed on corporation net incomes up to $25,000 and six per cent on those above that figure.

Corporation Profits.

In addition, corporations would be required to revise their method of computing excess profits in a manner that would sharply increase the amount of their surtaxes. They would not be allowed to deduct regular income taxes and surtaxes in computing their excess profits, but would be allowed to deduct the excess profits taxes in figuring regular taxes. This is just the reverse of the present system, and committee members said the change would produce an estimated $1,118,000,000 additional.

In an effort to reach the incomes of some corporations which have substantial defense contracts, but which would escape the regular excess profits tax under the proposed system, the committee tentatively indorsed a special excess profits levy of 10 per cent, which would be computed according to a special formula recommended by the Treasury department. It was estimated that it would produce approximately $65,000,000 annually.

Treasury Suggestion.

The committee-approved individual income surtaxes are lower than those proposed by the Treasury. The latter suggested a levy starting at 11 per cent on the first dollar of taxable income.

No change was made by the committee in the existing normal income tax rate of four per cent, or in the personal exemptions of $2,000 for married persons, plus $400 for each dependent, and of $800 for single persons.

The present 10 per cent "supertax" also would apply to the surtaxes. Thus a taxpayer would figure his surtax by the rate prescribed in his income tax bracket, then add 10 per cent.

This would make the lowest effective surtax rate 5.5 per cent. It would apply to income in excess of personal exemptions and without any deduction for earned income.

In addition, the taxpayer would have to pay the existing normal income tax, unchanged from present law.

P.-T. A. SESSION.

ATHENS, Ga., June 19.—(AP)—Leaders of Parent-Teacher organizations in Georgia will meet here June 24 for the 19th annual three-day institute of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers.

Prison Farm To Be Studied

A four-man committee from city council and four members of the Fulton county grand jury will attempt to work out the controversial issue over administration of the city prison farm, it was announced yesterday.

Mayor LeCraw acceded to a request of M. Graham Clark Jr., chairman of a special committee from the grand jury, and named Aldermen L. O. Moseley, J. Frank Reynolds and Lester R. Brewer, and Councilman Cecil W. Hester as the council group. Serving with Clark on the grand jury committee are C. B. Smith, N. H. Alford and John A. Burgess.

Clark said he was attempting to arrange a meeting of the joint council-grand jury group to begin study of the problem, which probably will include the following phases:

1. An attempt to iron out differences between H. H. Gibson, superintendent of the farm, and several powerful administration leaders. This is for the purpose of establishing harmony which "will be beneficial to the people of Atlanta and Fulton county," Clark and W. W. (Skipper) Burns, grand jury foreman said.

2. Initiation of some plan for completion of the $60,000 new prison building on which work has been suspended since the first of the year. The city has only about $4,000 left in the building fund and estimates are that it will cost about $25,000 to complete the structure.

The mayor has said the city has no money available to resume work on the project at this time because of restrictions in the city budget law.

DEFENSE BANQUET—Speakers at the annual banquet of the DeKalb County Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce last night were Lieutenant Commander J. J. Schieffelin who directs the Naval Air Reserve ground crew at Camp Gordon; A. M. Chandler, president of the chamber, and Captain Earl C. Lowry, assistant chief of the surgical service of the medical corps at Lawson General Hospital. National defense was the theme stressed by speakers at the banquet.

Pay Boost Announced By International Shoe

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—(AP)—International Shoe Company announced today a further increase in wages would be made July 13 for 25,000 for its factory piecework and hourly paid employes.

The increase, together with other adjustments made in recent weeks, amounts to about 10 per cent on the average although it varies somewhat in different plants, the company said.

An official estimated the increase would add $2,500,000 to $3,000,000 to the annual pay roll.

Defense Topic Discussed by DeKalb Group

Co-operation Asked in Completion of Stone Mountain Memorial.

National defense was the theme last night of the annual banquet of the DeKalb County Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce, held at the East Lake Country Club.

Members of the organization adopted unanimously a resolution introduced by Hugh Trotti, vice president and general manager of The Constitution, asking congress, the WPA and the RFC to co-operate with the Georgia Parks Authority in completing the Stone Mountain Memorial.

A. M. Chandler, president of the chamber, presided over the meeting, and DeKalb County Commissioner Scott Candler acted as toastmaster.

Flag Saluted.

On the program were Judge James C. Davis, who gave the invocation; Mrs. Guy Hudson, who read the Flag Symphony; Lieutenant Commander J. J. Schieffelin, of the Naval Reserve Air Base at Camp Gordon, who led the salute to the flag.

Mrs. Russell Harralson led in the singing of the national anthem, which was followed by the Stone Mountain resolution. Miss Sara Weaver, county home demonstration agent, talked on "Nutrition for Defense." Mrs. Thelma Guerrard, of the county farm security administration, outlined her work.

Reid H. Cofer, DeKalb county businessman, discussed the cotton stamp plan, and Fred Cannon described the farm projects of chamber members. Little Miss Rita Woodall sang "God Bless America," which was followed by group singing led by Parris Lee.

Defense Discussed.

Lieutenant Commander Schieffelin outlined the activities of the air base and Captain Earl C. Lowry, of the Army Medical Corps, described the new Law on General hospital. Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, led a round-table discussion on national defense in which he described his recent tour of defense industries.

Distinguished guests were Harry Harman, state WPA administrator; Scott Allen, Roy Ulrich, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Evan McConnell and Scott Candler.

The committee in charge of the defense dinner consisted of Guy Rutland, Scott Candler, Vernon Frank, Frank B. Graham Jr., Leon Hollingsworth and Frank Thomas.

2 State Patrol Letters Bare Dramatic Story

One Tells of Warning, Other of Death of Truck Driver.

Coincidence taught a grim lesson at Georgia State Patrol headquarters yesterday.

Captain J. J. Elliott, commanding officer, picked up two envelopes from his mail—one postmarked Albany and the other Americus.

The Albany envelope contained a report from Trooper R. H. Bingham, telling of a warning he gave Jay Bee Lee, 32, of Springvale, Ga., at 5 o'clock June 16 against driving his truck too fast near Albany.

The Americus envelope bore a report from Sergeant J. Beauchamp. It gave details of an accident on State Route 62 near Leary, Ga. at 9 o'clock the same night. The report said a truck and trailer went out of control, plowed into a ditch, killing the driver. The driver was Jay Bee Lee.

Radio Stations Of State Patrol Are Authorized

Sending and Receiving Sets Enable 2-Way Communication.

The Georgia State Patrol yesterday was authorized by the Federal Communications Commission to construct 25 portable radio stations, each with separate call letters and separate license, to be built in cruise cars of the patrol.

The new sending and receiving sets will enable each car to communicate both ways with headquarters stations in Atlanta, Albany, or Swainsboro, or with each other, at a distance of 200 miles, Captain J. J. Elliott, commanding officer of the patrol, said.

Two cars have already been equipped with the new units which operate with an antenna constructed of a 10-foot bamboo pole wound with copper wire. Kirk Simmons, formerly radio engineer with the Atlanta Police Department, worked out technical details of the new sets.

The portable stations are being installed in seven cars now, and others of the 25 will be equipped within the next six months, Captain Elliott said.

Mrs. Pauline Sims Disappears Here

City police last night were investigating the mysterious disappearance of Mrs. Pauline Sims, 38, of 386 Alaska avenue, N. E., who was last seen by a neighbor about 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

While visiting the neighbor, police were told, a Negro woman informed Mrs. Sims that the telephone in her home was ringing. Leaving to answer it, she has not been seen or heard from since.

She is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 140 pounds and has auburn hair and gray eyes.

Kentucky To View Truck Proposal

Commissioner of Agriculture Tom Linder said yesterday he was attempting to work out a reciprocity agreement with Kentucky, whereby it would allow trucks from other states to exceed its gross weight truck law limits.

Kentucky legal officials previously had taken the position such agreements would be illegal.

Linder said he talked by telephone with Lyter Donaldson, a Kentucky highway official, and was informed the state granted special permits for movement of overweight truck loads only in emergencies, but added he would pursue the matter further.

ight Hitler, Wickard Urges

YRACUSE, N. Y., June 19—(AP) retary of Agriculture Wickard lared today the United States s going to help Great Britain h "all the means at its dis- al" because "when we fight Hitlerism we are fighting for ourselves."

"The people have decided," he said, "and there isn't any use arguing about it any longer. We are going ahead—regardless."

The cabinet member, in a speech prepared for a meeting of the Dairymen's League Co-operative Association, predicted the war may finally come down to the issue of "who can feed the hungry people of Europe—the democracies or the dictatorships."

"In this case," he declared, "the answer is—the democracies."

Read Label on Dog Food

Meat is the basis of most dogs' iets. If you want to be sure that eat dominates in the dog food at you buy, take time to read the bel on the can, for the govern- ent requires that ingredients be sted in the order of greatest quan- ty.

For instance, the label on every an of Strongheart Dog Rations hows meat at the top of the list. ourishing cereals and vegetables, mportant to a well-proportioned iet, follow.

This high quality has made Strongheart a favorite and the huge volume of distribution has made possible the moderate cost. So, "compare STRONGHEART with any dog food at any price," and benefit by the money that Strongheart saves.

If your grocer does not yet carry Strongheart, tell him he can get it quickly from local warehouse stock. Demand Strongheart. Accept no substitute. (Advertisement)

U. S. O. Appeal Is Law's First Act in Office

Shriners' Potentate Says Strengthening of Morale Is Urgent.

The "first official pronouncement" of Atlanta's own Tom Law, after being chosen imperial potentate of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine in Indianapolis last week, was to issue an appeal for support of the United Service Organization campaign to finance community centers and recreation programs for service men, says the "USO Bulletin," official publication distributed to workers throughout the country yesterday.

He is quoted as saying: "There is an urgent need for strengthening the morale of the men in service, and contributing to the USO is the finest way I know that individual citizens can do their part in backing up the men who are giving their best efforts to insure the safety of our country."

The June issue of the National Legionnaire, official organ of the American Legion, carries a similar statement from Milo J. Warner, national commander and a member of the national board of directors of USO.

$38,000 To Go.

Atlanta's campaign to raise $90,000 toward the national fund of nearly $11,000,000, moved forward yesterday as reports from division and team leaders in the field were dispatched to headquarters, 82 broad street, by a group of Boy Scouts. Major Trammell Scott, campaign chairman for Fulton and DeKalb counties, said $40,140 in cash and pledges had been received since the fund appeal started, and that there is from $12,000 to $15,000 "in sight," chiefly subscriptions in the hands of suburban committees and team leaders.

"We still have about $38,000 to raise, and if Atlanta citizens who have been waiting on a campaign worker to call will send their subscriptions to headquarters or phone us, we'll soon be in sight of our goal."

Billy Beard, veteran black-face comedian, who did his part as an entertainer in war camps in '17 and '18, visited headquarters yesterday to leave a cash subscription.

"I wish it was a million dollars," he said as he pushed a piece of "folding money" through the auditor's cage. "I know what USO means to the boys in service."

WITH LOVE FROM THE FOLKS—The country will soon be dotted with service clubs like this. More than 360 homelike structures, providing ample facilities for reading, writing, games, social activities, and personal counsel, are planned by the United Service Organziations for national defense. The clubs will serve soldiers, sailors and isolated defense workers.

Service Men's Families in U. S. O. Setup

By MRS. HENRY A. INGRAM, Vice President of United Service Organizations.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

I have confidence in the youth of America, in its ideals and loyalties. A boy who volunteered for the Army told me: "My grandfather was an immigrant. This country was good to him and to my father. Not only do I want to repay, but I want to keep it good for others."

That boy, I believe, is an average American youth with an average youth's spirit. So it is my wish, and I believe the duty of us all, to keep alive that spirit.

Many problems have arisen for youth because of national defense. Most of these problems the United Service Organizations hopes to solve. I, as a woman and as national board president of Y. W. C. A., am interested primarily in the problems of women affected by the national emergency; the wives, sweethearts, mothers and families of the men in training, the families of the defense workers, and the girls themselves in defense industries.

I know a girl who followed her husband to his assigned station when he was called for active duty in the Naval Reserve. She left her job, her friends and the comfortable feeling of stability one has in a place called "home," only to discover that her husband was on sea duty and on the ocean or changing ports most of the time. She had a difficult emotional adjustment to make when she was alone in a strange community, unable to find a job.

Many Unhappy Wives.

She is one among many bewildered, discouraged, unhappy women who today are struggling to adjust themselves to a life turned topsy-turvy. Such girls are not the most useful citizens. They are being hurt and becoming bitter, and finding it hard to appreciate the advantage of living in a democracy.

We propose to cheer, help and guide these girls. The government has promised to build more than 360 service clubs near army and navy bases and defense industries. The USO will provide funds to operate them. The clubhouses will be adapted to the needs of the individual community, and housing, recreational and welfare facilities as well as personal guidance by professionally trained leaders will be provided.

Because the defense program has suddenly and greatly increased the population of certain areas, the housing problem is tremendous, particularly in smaller communities. In the camp areas, in many cases, women and girl office workers and laundresses have had no provision made for them. Families of defense workers have difficulty finding homes. Visiting families and sweethearts have no place to rest overnight.

We will advise these homeseekers, and will provide for them a register of desirable rooms available in the community.

Not only will games and dramatics be provided for in the clubhouses, but dances and social gatherings will be arranged.

Wives of service men will be given opportunities to make friends, to join clubs and hobby groups, and establish places for themselves in the community. Factory employes will find relaxation after work. Men in service will have a center for amusement and social contacts in off-duty hours.

Emotional adjustment must be made in these times. Wives, like the one of which I spoke, who follow their husbands and meet frustration and loneliness in a strange community, must be advised and helped to "find themselves."

Job Counsellors, Too.

Other wives, whose husbands are among the selectees, or families from whom the principal provider is taken and who find that service pay does not meet their needs, must themselves turn breadwinner.

Many such girls have never worked, and they become psychologically upset at changed conditions, particularly in cases where they are separated from husband or sweetheart. These must be advised, and adjusted to the responsibilities and routine of a job. Counsellors with special knowledge of employment problems will be available at U. S. O. units.

Many girls, some very young, attracted by the glamor of "brass buttons" and the hope of getting a job in the mushrooming small business of a community near a base, need help in getting a position that will not be dangerous. And they need special counsel on their personal, social and health problems.

The letters that a draftee writes his mother and the letters she writes him certainly affect the morale. It hopes to be helpful in keeping a contact between men in service and their families.

Men who come to U. S. O. units for guidance will be urged to write their families often, and mothers who do not hear from their sons may learn about them by inquiring of the U. S. O.

The agencies embraced by the U. S. O., which have had long experience in social service, must participate now to a greater degree than ever before with citizens in the communities concerned, in order to understand special area problems and to co-operate fully in helping solve them.

A Spiritual Challenge.

We are challenged to overcome vice and suffering and to promote opportunities for health and harmony. It is a social and spiritual challenge.

Our youth may come into contact with organizations which are undemocratic.

Our government stands for freedom and justice, and therefore we in the U. S. O. shall help to sustain America's defense by helping to overcome injustice and thereby strengthen our country's morale. The interdependence of freedom and justice and morale must be recognized by all of us.

The agencies making up the U. S. C. include the Y. M. C. A., the National Catholic Community Service, the Salvation Army, the Y. W. C. A., the Jewish Welfare Board, and the National Travelers' Aid Association.

The total cost of the co-ordinated program has been estimated at $10,765,000 for the first year. Under the national chairmanship of Thomas E. Dewey a country-wide campaign for this amount was launched by U. S. O. June 3.

U. S. Honors Two Pioneer Georgia Fliers

Army Fields Are Named After Atkinson and Cochran.

Two Georgia pioneers in army aviation yesterday received posthumous honors from the nation they served when the War Department announced the naming of airfields for them.

Atkinson field in British Guiana gets its name from Major Bert M. Atkinson, of Newnan, commander of the first aerial combat unit sent into action in France during the World War.

Cochran field, at Macon, derives its name from First Lieutenant Robert J. Cochran, of Camilla, who was killed in action while flying over enemy lines during the St. Mihiel offensive October 10, 1918.

Major Atkinson was among the most famous of the early army pilots, and besides his excellent record in the army is credited with establishing the first aerial forest fire fighting unit.

Born in 1889.

Born March 20, 1889, the son of a former Governor of Georgia and Mrs. William Yates Atkinson, he entered the Army as a second lieutenant in 1911. He took his first plane ride and soloed in 1915 and was active as a flyer during the Mexican border troubles. In France he commanded the 94th Aero Squadron and won the distinguished service medal, was cited twice for meritorious service and received the Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with Palm from the French government.

He was a member of the Early Birds, an organization of pilots who flew prior to December 17, 1916. He was retired in 1922 and died in 1937.

First Lieutenant R. James Cochran, son of Mrs. G. B. Cochran and the late G. B. Cochran, of Camilla, was born August 22, 1895, and was killed in action while on observation duty at Toul, France, on October 11, 1918.

Enlisted While Student.

Enlisting while still a senior at the University of Georgia, Cochran entered the first ofifcers' training school at Fort McPherson and was given rank as a first lieutenant after three months' service. Then entering air training school, he soon finished the Austin, Texas, school and embarked for France March 12, 1918, as a member of the Eighth Aero Squadron, 82nd Division. Assigned to observation duties, he was killed when his plane was attacked by a superior German force.

Lieutenant Cochran was reported killed instantly, but his pilot jumped from the burning plane, only to have the falling plane strike him and carry him likewise to his death. It was reported Lieutenant Cochran was the only Georgia Army Air Corps flyer killed in action in the last war.

His brother, A. B. Cochran, is assistant vice president of a Camilla bank.

Teacher Convicted In Flogging Case

CAMDENTON, Mo., June 19.—A jury of Ozark menfolk convicted School Teacher Aldythea Keeth of common assault today for her part in the cat-o'-nine-tails flogging of 23-year-old Max Caldwell. Circuit Judge C. H. Jackson fined her $100, then set July 23 for hearing of a motion for a new trial.

The jury deliberated two hours after hearing the 26-year-old teacher relate that she struck Caldwell "only three or four times, lightly," and then only because she feared Dr. Robert Murrell would shoot her if she did not obey him. She said the Eldon (Mo.) osteopath handed her the whip and told her to "give him (Caldwell) a few lashes for the sake of womanhood."

On cross-examination, however, the prosecution elicited from Miss Keeth that at no time during the whipping had Dr. Murrell actually threatened her.

Miss Keeth was tried on a charge of felonious assault.

The Army IN GEORGIA

"I'm ready for my finger bowl now, Sergeant Marshall."

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 19.—Lieutenant Colonel Fred C. Nelson, United States Air Corps, designated as commander of the Valdosta Bombardier Base, has arrived and is busy selecting a downtown location for a joint office for the chief of engineers and for himself.

A three-story building on West Hill avenue was tentatively selected and a quartermaster's clerk is expected to reach the city Monday next to close the lease for the building. Lieutenant Colonel William M. Robinson Jr., United States Engineers' Corps, in charge of construction, with his force, will jointly occupy the building with Lieutenant Colonel Nelson. Both officers momentarily expect to receive the "go" signal from the War Department in Washington, D. C., and get construction work under way.

Tentative plans for the railway yard facilities at the base have been made, Chief Engineer Holmes of the Georgia & Florida Railroad, has gone over the ground with the Army engineers and determined the approximate number of miles of trackage to be constructed. While no official decision has been reached, it is believed that the new station to be established by the G. & F. at the base will be called Davis, in compliment to the late T. J. Davis, who owned the cleared land which the camp occupies, the property having been known for years throughout this section as Davis farms. The name of the bombardier camp will be selected by the War Department, and announced sometime later. Many Valdostans wanted it called Weaver Field, in honor of General Walter R. Weaver, but learned from Washington that names for such camps were selected from among "dead heroes and not living heroes."

WEST POINT STAFF LEAVES FORT BENNING

Brigadier General Robert L. Eichelberger, superintendent of the United States Military Academy, and six other academy officers, left Fort Benning by plane this week for West Point, N. Y., after having witnessed part of a five-day program now in progress at the post to acquaint the 1942 graduating class of cadets with the latest techniques of blitzkrieg warfare.

General Eichelberger expressed keen satisfaction with the progress made Monday and Tuesday by the 378 cadets receiving the instruction.

With General Eichelberger were Colonel Oscar J. Gatchell, chief of the academy staff; Lieutenant Colonel F. A. Irving, commandant of cadets; Major Frank S. Bowen Jr. and Major Cecil W. Nist, aides to General Eichelberger; Major John M. Weikert, officer in charge of air activities at the academy, and Captain Richard A. Legg, pilot of the plane in which the group was traveling.

SOLDIERS TO SPEND WEEKEND IN FLORIDA

Approximately 200 soldiers of the various nondivisional units at Fort Benning will leave today to spend the weekend at the new Army Recreation Center at Panama City, Fla., it was announced by Major George A. Sossaman, post morale officer.

The recreation center, designed especially for Fort Benning soldiers on furlough or pass, was formally opened last Saturday with ceremonies participated in by military, city, and state officials. About 400 men from Benning were transported there in Army trucks to spend the weekend.

The quota this weekend was cut because neither the Second Armored Division nor the Fourth Division will be able to send any men. The Second Armored is on maneuvers in Tennessee and the Fourth is in the midst of maneuvers on the reservation.

SERVICE PERSONALS.

Technical Sergeant Gilbert D. Starnes, detachment of the Fifth Signal Service Company, Fort Benning, was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Signal Corps this week. He is a brother of Representative Joe Starnes, of Alabama, who is scheduled to visit the post this weekend.

Taylor Scott Womack, of 415 Altoona place, Atlanta, has accepted appointment in the Officers' Reserve Corps as a second lieutenant of engineers.

Nine young men from Atlanta and near-by points have been enlisted this week in the Navy through the Atlanta recruiting office. They are James I. Chapman, Guy F. Hill, James M. Leftwitch, R. H. Thompson, E. A. Veal Jr. and Carl O. Blalock, all of Atlanta, and Julian R. Sellers, of Loganville; Ewell A. Nix, of Bremen, and Winton D. McClain, of Alpharetta.

Second Lieutenant Bennett Aycock, of 888 Gilbert street, Atlanta, has been promoted to first lieutenant, according to announcement from Camp Polk, La. He is with the 18th Ordnance Battalion of the Third Armored Division.

Liquor Stills Go Groundhog To Shun Planes

Farmers Charged With Conspiracy To Violate Revenue Law.

Georgia moonshiners are abandoning the historical "steamer" type of still for the more unobtrusive "groundhog" type—to avoid detection from the air!

This was disclosed here yesterday by Harvey H. Tysinger and Raymond W. Martin, assistant United States attorneys, on their return from Newnan, where they handled the government's end of the criminal court calendar before District Judge Robert L. Russell.

The federal officials said two Spalding county farmers, Theron Johnson, 37, and Jesse Durham, were convicted on charges of conspiracy to violate the internal revenue laws. Johnson received a 15-month sentence and Durham 20 months.

Testimony at the trial, which ended yesterday, revealed that moonshiners are now preferring the "groundhog" type of still, in which the still is sunk in the ground and a furnace built around the sides, eliminating telltale smoke.

In the old-fashioned "steamer" type, a boiler is visible above ground. The stills allegedly operated by the defendants were "spotted" by Coast Guard and customs planes.

Mother Has To Pay $1 For Backseat Driving

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—(AP)—A backseat driver paid today for her advice.

Mrs. George Byrne told Municipal Judge Edmund B. Smith she insisted on her daughter, Genevieve, making a turn even though the daughter kept saying it was wrong.

Judge Smith canceled the $1.50 traffic ticket given the daughter and assessed the mother $1 in court costs, adding:

"If you are going to drive from the back seat you will have to learn to watch the signs."

FOLLOWING THE WAR . . . WHAT?

Can 80,000,000 Americans Be Made Permanently Richer?

(This is the second of a series of articles on what official Washington thinks ought to be done to reform our economic system in order to meet the crisis that is bound to come after the war.)

By BLAIR MOODY
For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—For months there have been fighting for President Roosevelt's favor two groups determined that their thinking shall dominate the future economy of the United States and, thus, the post-war living standards of its people.

One composed of some—but not all—the business men called in to help drive the defense program, and some—but not all—of his own official family, is fighting a desperate, rear-guard battle to block any basic change in the traditional theory of American business: Don't produce for a market you can't see in advance.

The other group, which includes the capital's most progressive economists and a few business men who have taken a long look at the future, contends that this philosophy, even when not selfishly based, is not only stupid but a menace to democracy and the future of the very system of initiative, incentive and profits that the traditionalists are struggling to preserve.

Where Is Market?

To the trite cries of mythical "overproduction," and "where is the market?" and "if we step up production of farm and factory, who will buy?" the progressives answer: "The greatest market in the world is waiting for you, if you'll only open your eyes and see it, and make the adjustments necessary to bring it truly within the scope of the 'incentive' system."

This market is the 80,000,000 Americans who are members of families that earn less than $1,500 a year, whose average income is only $826 a year—$69 a month!

The traditionalists, of course, think that talk of this sort is simply nuts. If thehy haven't the money, they cry, how can all these people buy?

The traditionalists see, of course, the terrifying threat of what is bound to happen under their scheme of things once government-spending - shots-in-the-arm cease. But they fail to see that as basic fault is not the President's palliatives, which have served to "keep the patient alive," but the undermining of the country's economic constitution by the drastic dissipations of those who won dominance over the economic life of the country and then proved they were not big enough to manage it.

Killed Own Argument.

As the capital's progressives see it, the traditionalists have already completely killed their own argument, made it utterly unworthwhile for the people to follow them. For they warn—war or no war—of inflation or repudiation if government spending does not ultimately stop, and predict a terrible deflationary post-boom crash when it does.

If the shrunken giants of the past can offer the people only such terrifying alternatives of disaster, is it not time to re-examine the whole problem and find fresh leadership that is not strangled in advance by its own preconceived prejudices?

That is the question that is being persistently put to the President by his progressive economists. They are telling him they think they have the answer. It is still charted only roughly, as it must be, first because precise plans cannot be laid until the war's demands on our country are known and, second, because the rejuvenation of an industrial and agricultural system, riddled by the fallacies of "scarcity" is an infinitely difficult and complex task which must be undertaken with caution.

More Production.

But it is better than sitting by stupidly while the whole works careens off a cliff and that, as the progressives see it, is the alternative.

Their answer can be boiled down to two words: More production.

To those who ceased to keep an open mind when—or before—their kind ceased to control the government, the proposals of these progressives appear "radical" and impossible. But there is nothing radical about them (and certainly nothing new.

For years they have provided the basic approach of the best-informed members of the Federal Reserve Board, and of Thurman Arnold's anti-trust campaign in the Department of Justice. Ever since the deal started, the Brookings Institution, which is probably the best informed and most intelligently objective economic organization in the country (at the very least, no group of wild-eyes) has hammered such policies as NRA and AAA. Why? Because, even though they were conceived to meet by measures of scarcity-control certain specific emergencies, Brookings felt them angerous stimulants of a conception threatening to choke the nation's future hopes of real prosperity.

Wake Up Cries.

Brookings for years has been demanding that the country wake up, use its power to produce, make its profits through greater volume and more sales rather than sustained ide profit-margins. This would improve standards of living by giving everyone, including the 80,000,000 whose unfilled needs could glut industry with profits for years, the benefits of an expanding economy with rising real-wages and greater total profits, obtained by greater production and sales at static or falling prices. Vice President Henry A. Wallace has a phrase for it: "Balanced abundance."

A pipe dream? Well—can you imagine what sort of a village Detroit would be today if the early motor-makers had decided in 1915 to get together on an "NRA code" of fixed prices instead of competing with steadily improving products, made at good wages but sold at steadily falling prices? Auto production has been limited only by the fact that other industries, by failing to follow similar policies, have constricted the growth of aggregate purchasing power and helped to strangle even greater markets.

Jobs in Detroit.

How many jobs would there be in Detroit automobile factories if tin lizzies still sold for $1,500 or $2,000? And—would automobile stockholders be better off or worse off?

The answer is obvious. And what his progressive advisers are now telling Mr. Roosevelt is that exactly that sort of a strangled situation has existed throughout sectors of American indust They urge that if he will now use his powers to apply on a nation-wide basis, in a manner geared to the specific problems of the '40's, the sort of courage, daring and imagination that made the auto industry grow, other industries will grow, too, and the jobs that will result will give America a real green light to permanent prosperity at last.

It has been chiefly due to the selfish short-sightedness of powerful industrial and financial bigwigs that this has not become the dominant policy of the country and the same forces have resisted any basic changes in slant and are still resisting it.

But Mr. Roosevelt has never been afraid to tackle them before when he was convinced they were hamstringing progress. And the national crisis has now catapulted before him the alarming pattern of what will happen when the war-boom is over unless he firmly sets the nation's course toward expansion now.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—The day favors business and domestic affairs, and things should progress smoothly before 3 p. m. However, do not try to force issues. Before 3 p. m. and 6:47 p. m., dealings with the opposite sex should be handled tactfully. After 6:47 p. m. favors relaxation.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—While new beginnings may have a tendency to run into obstacles if started before 12:28 p. m., old practical ideas may be pushed forward to advantage. Before 6:04 p. m. favors matters pertaining to land and property. The remainder of the day suggests using moderation in all things.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—The hours previous to 5:33 p. m. favor all matters where an active mind is required. An especially good period for creative work, literature, art, music. Between 12:17 p. m. and 4:05 p. m. use care in written matters of all kinds.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—The tendency will be to hurry through things, to answer too quickly and possibly too shortly. Guard against this tendency, else there may be much to regret later.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The predominating influences for the day suggest attention to your health and being cautious and moderate in all that you do. After 2:43 p. m. financial efforts should meet with favorable results and you are likely to meet generosity and understanding in conferences, dealings with relatives and while traveling.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—During the entire day and until 8:38 p. m. indicates a time when you should look closely at everything, business, personal affairs, new friendships and all new propositions that are set up to you. After 8:38 p. m. favors new beginnings and sociability.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Between 8:27 a. m. and 5:08 p. m. favors correspondence, conferences, dealings with those in high positions.

October 23rd and November 21st SCORPIO)—Previous to 12:36 p. m. favors expansion along financial lines. An excellent period for dealing in education, legal and banking interests. During the afternoon and evening proceed cautiously in dealings of an unusual nature.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Previous to noon favors dealings with those in advanced or superior positions. If you are wanting to attain a material, social, business or professional triumph, see what you can do about it this morning. During the remainder of the day more will be accomplished by acting with deliberation.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—New beginnings today are likely to demand much hard work with small remuneration. You may find it difficult to remain cheerful, but by attending to work already started, much good can be accomplished.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The better vibrations of the day operate between 9:53 a. m. and 5:14 p. m. An excellent period for undertaking new plans and carrying out old ideas. After 5:14 p. m. being alone or at least holding your feelings in check, more will be accomplished.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—This should be a very favorable day for ideas that start and finish now. Optimism should be curbed, and if these traits are held in reserve the day favors domestic, financial affairs, sociability and mechanical interests.

Serum Checks Quail Disease

A means of combatting the dread "quail disease" that has reduced the quail population of Louisiana to a new all-time low apparently has been discovered.

Dr. C. C. Bass, retired dean of Tulane University's medical school, New Orleans, didn't start out to find a solution to this problem, however. He was interested in nutritional problems, but selected quail as his guinea pigs.

Unfortunately, his quail died before he could finish his experiments. Every morning when Dr. Bass and his assistant visited the pens, they found dead birds.

Dr. Bass rolled up his sleeves and started toward the bottom of the trouble. He successfully isolated the bacteria that caused the trouble and then produced a vaccine of the dead bacteria. This produced a high degree of immunity.

"I found that certain birds acted as carriers, just as some people do for other diseases," he said. "These carrier birds lived as long as 11 months before dying."

No work toward isolating the disease had been done until Dr. Bass began his experiments. Consequently, he had to fashion his own cages, figure out clearances that would allow free movement without escape, invent a special water free from contamination and put a stop to quail cannibalism.

Major James Brown, director of Louisiana's fisheries and wild life division, said that "the results will tremendously benefit the conservation work of game wardens and commercial breeders throughout the United States." He was unstinted in his praise of the vaccine.

Brown said that a study is being made of the state's scanty quail population. He said most of the study is being made of the birds in their natural habitat.

'Pep' Justo in Army As $21 Boxing Coach

Ten years ago Joseph "Pep" Justo was in the money. He had been through 48 middleweight fights and had won 46. He had hobnobbed with the great and near-great in the boxing world, having played an exhibition tour with Barney Ross and Jack Dempsey.

Today Justo is still in the boxing game, but he's not in the money any more. He's a boxing coach now and he's doing it for Uncle Sam and $21 a month. He is coaching the 61st Infantry Training Battalion at Camp Wolters, Texas.

Vitamin Needs Found Ignored

More than 4 per cent of the population never heard of a vitamin and 8½ per cent does not know a protein from a carburetor. Therefore, experts on nutrition agree that people should allow science—not their appetite—to govern diet.

A nation-wide survey shows that 48 per cent of the people admit the scientific diet is better, but 40 per cent still hold out for the decision of their stomachs. Science as a food selector is advised by 56 per cent of the doctors, 64 per cent of the dentists, and 85 per cent of the home economics teachers.

Other facts brought to light by the survey are:

Only 30 per cent of the people actually do something to insure getting sufficient vitamins.

Only three-tenths of 1 per cent of all doctors say that fish is "brain food."

Rural people eat three times as much meat as those in the city.

Greer Garson Stars Tonight On 'Premiere'

'Blossoms in the Dust' To Be Presented by Louella Parsons.

Greer Garson and Walter Pidgeon will top the cast of "Blossoms in the Dust," which will be offered by "Hollywood Premiere" tonight at 8:30 over WGST. The show will be based on the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture and will be presented by Louella O. Parsons, Hollywood's most famous columnist, who is hostess of this program.

The story of "Blossoms in the Dust" has Greer Garson fall in love with a young Texan engaged in the flour milling business. Eventually, they marry and tragedy enters their lives when their child is killed. Desperately trying to blot out the horror of this incident, the mother embarks on a social career. The couple lose their fortune and other dramatic circumstances attend their efforts to find happiness. The role affords Miss Garson the greatest opportunities of her acting career.

MANNERS, GRAHAM SING OPERA SELECTIONS

Lucille Manners and Ross Graham will each present a selection from an opera during the "Friday Concert" program to be heard over WSB tonight at 7 o'clock. The orchestra will be under the direction of Dr. Frank Black.

The program in detail:
Dance of the Archers, from "Prince Igor," by Borodin (Orchestra).
Il Bacio, by Arditti (Miss Speaks).
Old MacDonald Had a Farm, Traditional (Choir).
Heart Bow'd Down, from "Bohemian Girl," by Balfe (Graham).

Four-Engine Plane Production Brings Pilot Crisis to the Fore

U. S. Aims at 500 of Giants a Month But Has a Mere 222 Pilots Who Can Handle Them, and No Schools.

By JOSEPH S. EDGERTON,
For North American Newspaper Alliance.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Increasing pressure for the mass production of the giant, long-range four-engined bombardment airplanes of the flying fortress type and larger is rapidly creating a serious problem in pilot training.

There are few pilots in the Army or in civil aviation today capable of handling these big warplanes and such pilots cannot be trained overnight. There is today no school for the large-scale training of pilots for four-engined planes either in military or civil aviation.

The Army air corps now is putting into operation several schools for the training of pilots in the operation of two-engined airplanes and has a large number of two-engined trainers available or on order. Canada also has two-engined training in progress.

Require More Skill.

Four-engined bombers, however, are a far different proposition and require more skill, experience and judgment in handling than the smaller ships. When it came to selection of a pilot for the giant Douglas B-19 bomber now nearing flight test stage at Santa Monica, Cal., for example, the choice narrowed down to two men, one of whom was eliminated by accidental injuries. The choice has fallen on Major Stanley M. Umstead, chief test pilot of the Army Air Corps. There probably are not a dozen other men in the United States capable of handling the new giant.

Even the smaller four-engined bombers of the Consolidated B-24 and the Boeing B-17E types now in production require pilots of long experience, skill and judgment. The War Department has been aiming for a production of 500 a month of these big ships and is now seeking to double this rate to meet urgent requirements of the future for long-range equipment which is becoming increasingly vital to American security.

More Difficult.

While the problem of producing four-engined bombers is largely one of funds and mechanics, both of which are being solved without trouble, the problem of producing pilots and crews capable of handling the great fleets of these big aircraft is likely to be difficult of solution.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority records show that there are only 22 pilots on the domestic airlines who hold certificates for four-engined plane operation. They are all employed by Transcontinental & Western Air, which is using the big four-engined Boeing Stratoliners on its transcontinental service. Pan-American Airways has a few additional four-engined landplane pilots on the Caribbean and South American east coast division runs.

Fewer Than 200.

The Army air corps probably has fewer than 200 pilots, all told, who are capable of flying four-engined bombers. It has been unable to train more because of the diversion of four-engined bombers to Great Britain. Four-engined bomber pilots, obviously, cannot be trained in anything but four-engined planes. Nor can they be trained very rapidly.

With years of experience in the handling of two-engined equipment, the commercial airlines have decided that it is unwise to give any pilot responsibility for even two-engined planes until he has had at least 1,000 to 1,200 hours of flying time. An additional 50 hours, at the absolute minimum, is required to convert a capable, qualified two-engine pilot into a four-engine pilot, the airlines have determined.

The Army Air Corps has adopted the command pilot system to provide experienced men to command its four-engine bombers. It was determined that 10 years of experience was a desirable minimum for the commander of one of the big bombers.

Obviously, with four-engined bombers coming off the production lines at a rate of 1,000 a month, or even 500 a month, the Army very quickly is going to have to reduce its qualifications for pilots who will command them.

It also is evident that the Army is not going to be able to meet the air transport standard of 1,000 to 1,200 hours of experience for its big-plane pilots. The Army will have many two-engine pilots in its bombardment squadrons after no more than 100 hours of flight training and it is probable that it will have to use some men with perhaps not more than 200 hours in its four-engined bombers, certainly as co-pilots, if not as pilots.

Correspondent Is Injured in Middle East

James Aldridge Being Sent to Home in Sydney.

CAIRO, June 19.—(NANA)—James Aldridge, war correspondent for the North American Newspaper Alliance and The Constitution, is being invalided to his home in Sydney, Australia, by the British military authorities as a result of injuries received in line of duty. He will be sent home by airplane via Singapore.

Aldridge has been reporting the wars in Europe and Africa for almost two years. From London he went to Finland to cover the Russo-Finnish war and made the long trek from the Lapland front to the Karelian isthmus. He dashed into Norway when the Germans invaded that country and then went to Egypt for a taste of desert warfare on the Libyan front.

Later he went to Albania with the Greek forces fighting the Italians and on one occasion made a flight in a British bomber raiding the Italian base at Brindisi. He accompanied the Australian forces fighting the Germans in Greece and was evacuated from Piraeus to Egypt.

Rites in Valdosta For John Brinson

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

VALDOSTA, Ga., June 19.—Funeral services will be conducted here tomorrow for John Campbell Brinson, 33, whose body was found in the Delaware river, near Philadelphia, Tuesday. Interment will be in Sunset cemetery.

Mr. Brinson, a native of Valdosta, left here in August, 1940, to accept a position on an oil tanker operating between Port Arthur, Texas, and Philadelphia. The tanker was in dry dock at Philadelphia, and Tuesday morning the body of Mr. Brinson was found floating in the Delaware river, near the boat. It is not known whether he fell from the tanker or from the dock, or what caused his death.

Before leaving Valdosta, he was connected with the Valdosta post office.

Mr. Brinson was the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Brinson, a pioneer family of this city. Other survivors are his wife and a three-year-old daughter; two brothers, William T. Brinson and J. Y. Brinson, all of Valdosta, and one sister, Mrs. Roy Marshall, of Jasper, Fla.

Rain Needed In Many Areas, Report Says

Sections of State Are Still Drouth-Seared, Athens Service States.

ATHENS, Ga., June 19.—(AP)—Rain and more rain still is needed by drouth-seared produce in many Georgia sections although rainfalls the first two weeks of June effectively eased dust bowl conditions.

Some heavy-producing areas have felt little or no moisture and vegetable crops are parching, the Georgia Crop Reporting Service said in its statement as of June 15.

The watermelon and cantaloup harvest is moving with increasing speed and volume, the south Georgia cabbage and snap bean season is ended and Irish potato shipments are waning.

The first truck loads of cantaloups were delivered in Atlanta as early as June 8 but the season crush of deliveries from the Sylvester, McRae and Claxton-Glennville area did not begin until this week.

The service said the protracted drouth resulted in more than the usual number of small and misshapen watermelons and it is too late to "punch" melons off the vines and obtain a second crop.

The central Georgia melon crop was reported faring somewhat better than that in south Georgia, chiefly because it was not so far advanced.

The pimiento crop was a chief sufferer from the drouth and the present pepper outlook was described "far from encouraging."

The severe moisture deficiency also shortened the tomato crop in the principal producing areas around Pelham, Claxton and Glennville. Georgia's 1941 carlot movement through June 7 was five cars compared with 37 cars to the same date last year.

BEHEADS COPPERHEAD.

Charles Collins, working with a scythe on a road-clearing project at Seaford, Del., was annoyed by a hissing sound coming from the long grass under his feet. He felt the scythe strike something soft and the noise stopped. A foot from his leg was a decapitated copperhead.

Fatigued Hitler Has Pallor Of Prisoner, Cudahy Reports

Interviewer Says Fuehrer Appears as One Whose Nervous Energy Is Nearly Spent From Overstrain.

(Mr. Cudahy, American ambassador to Belgium in 1939-40, recently returned to New York after a three-month visit in Germany to write a series of articles on the Nazi regime and its war aims. His interview with Adolf Hitler, the first granted to an American correspondent in a year, was published in this newspaper on June 6. This article is being released simultaneously by Life magazine and the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

By JOHN CUDAHY.

Few people had ever heard of Berchtesgaden until a few years ago. Now, there are few where language is printed or spoken who have not heard of this little old town in the Bavarian Alps. And the man on the mountain there.

When I went to Berchtesgaden, spring was making its late debut. Dr. Sallet, a Harvard graduate, the American press representative of the foreign office, had come with me from Berlin, and also Dr. Frohlich, another Harvard man. We rode from the airfield to a spacious mountain hotel where, on a sun-lighted dining veranda, Paul Schmidt, the celebrated interpreter, was waiting for us.

Talk Is American.

A big, well-set-up man, he had about him an air of electric energy—his whole brisk bearing indicative of his photographic quinlingual mental processes. Schmidt speaks, thinks and acts German, French, Spanish, English and American. He is especially proud of the last accomplishment and knows all our idioms and cracks, which he says he absorbed from the motion pictures. When he speaks German he talks with all the mannerisms of a German, and when he is talking American you would swear he was a professional man, probably a lawyer, from a central western city.

Suddenly Dr. Sallet looked at his watch and said it was time to leave. We got into a tremendous shining black Mercedes-Benz automobile, and drove down a curving road by a row of shops under a Medieval arcade. We left the town and climbed up a long incline where there was a gate with a lodge. The custodian poked his head out of the door, gave one quick look, and we went on. A quarter of a mile further we were stopped at another gate and there was a colloquy. The gatekeeper knew the chauffeur, who was in German military uniform, and he knew well the big shining black automobile, but nothing is left to chance in guarding the Fuehrer of all the Germans. "He is shy of civilians," Schmidt explained; "no one ever comes this way now, except people from the army."

Nothing Original.

A little further on, the mountain road took a sharp turn and we stopped before a white cottage resembling a duoble-decked California bungalow. Hitler's ruling passion is architecture. But I saw nothing original or decorative in the first aspect of his berghof. Entering the berghof, we went along a passageway where servants appeared every few steps, as if by magic. They missed not a single detail of my entry, my conduct, or the content of my pockets between the hallway and the anteroom. We left our hats and coats before we passed through a double doorway to enter the great hall with its enormous bay window.

The dramatic spectacle of the great mountain, the lurid light and shadow below in the green valley, all held me spellbound, until Schmidt suddenly galvanized to rigid attention and whispered, stagelike, "The Fuehrer." Schmidt crossed the room and raised his hand on high, to which Hitler replied with the same gesture. Without a word, Hitler extended his hand to me and shook hands with no display of enthusiasm.

I had seen Hitler at Brown Shirt meetings when I visited Berlin during my four years in Poland, and only two weeks before in the Reichstag, when he addressed that body on the campaign in Greece. In these appearances he had looked so much taller, so much more commanding that at first I could hardly identify him with the slight, frail figure before me now.

Above all, I was struck by the unhealthy pallor of his skin. He had the same look that prisoners have who have been denied the sun during a long period of confinement. He looked dyspeptic and dog-tired, with swollen, puffed eyes, febrile bright. Since the beginning of the war, the story went, he got less than four hours' rest each night, and now he gave the impression of being utterly fatigued—one whose nervous energy is nearly spent from overstrain.

Stared Back.

Directly after our introduction, Hitler crossed the room and without a word sat down in an easy chair by the round table near the window. A grandfather clock in the corner struck 3; Hitler was on time, to the dot. I stood awaiting an invitation from my host to sit down until Schmidt whispered that I should take the seat next the Fuehrer while Schmidt sat at my right and Walter Hewel, the foreign office laison officer, sat directly opposite Hitler.

Hitler stared at me and I stared back. He continued to stare so long that I wondered if this staring duel would ever end. His expression was one of cold hostility. Finally he dropped his eyes and after that only looked at me casually from time to time. His eyes were truly remarkable and gave the impression of light, so intense they were. They were the arresting feature of his face, harsh, metallic eyes, indicative of an intense, indomitable will, geared to a frenzy.

Fanatical Eyes.

In color the eyes were so pale that at first you could not identify the pigment of the pupils. Perhaps they had been seared by the blindness which Hitler suffered after being gassed at Ypres during the last days of fighting in 1918. As our talk developed, I had a chance to examine them carefully and decided they were that pale translucent green one sees in certain moods of the sea. Above all they were hard, unyielding, fanatical eyes, harsh as the facial lineaments were harsh, without one compromising note of sympathy or kindliness.

As he sat there, Hitler's attitude was that of a man who faced a disagreeable ordeal and wanted to get it over with as soon as possible. He crossed his knees and teetered one foot up and down impatiently. He was dressed in a gray-green coat, like a military tunic, with a double row of brass buttons and wide lapels, wore dark civilian trousers, a white shirt with a soft collar and black tie with a silver swastika scarf pin. After we had talked for a few minutes, he draped one arm about the back of his chair and I had an opportunity to study the hand, a small hand with short, square fingertips, a white and lifeless hand of unseen veins like the hands of one dead. All through the conversation he held this hand motionless and never did he gesticulate with either hand.

Harsh Voice.

In this conversation my questions were directed to the interpreter, Schmidt, but Hitler strangely, when he answered, spoke to Hewell, an old comrade of the first "putsch" days, and seemed to find a response and receptiveness in him, rather than in the interpreter.

I had always been told that Hitler's emotional processes were emotional rather than intellectual, but that was not my experience at this meeting. He answered all questions, more responsively than many men of state I had interviewed under the cloak of confidence and secrecy when I was in the foreign service. His voice was utterly lacking in any sympathetic timber and had the harsh, frayed quality one associates with political orators at the close of a hard campaign. I did not find Hitler a monologist or given to a great volume of words. So many people had told me about his ranting and raving, yet in this conference his voice was never once raised and never did he give sign of any agitation; nor did he gesticulate, but spoke with the utmost composure, never betraying vocally the intensity indicated by the taut lineaments of his face.

Humorless Face.

His hair was a plastered mouse-brown mop, the moustache showing at the temple and back of the ears. The forehead showed a remarkable protuberance above the eyebrows, which the phrenologists call the perceptive cranial area. The upper forehead receded and did not indicate great contemplative capacity. The nose was thick and heavy, without clean-cut lines, and the lower face, although not heavily boned or projected, gave an impression of great energy and aggressiveness. When I spoke about the German menace to the western hemisphere, he laughed a harsh, strident laugh, disagreeable as a rasping automobile gear. His face looked as if spontaneous mirthful laughter had taken a long holiday. It was a humorless face and a desperately hard one.

As we talked on, the clock in the corner struck at several intervals with rasping regularity. During one of these clanging outbursts Hitler rose to his feet as abruptly as he had sat down. Schmidt sprang instantly to attention with hand upheld in the Nazi salute. Hitler shook hands with me with the same unmollified hostility he had displayed at the outset. I told him I would report honestly and objectively, without comment, but had no idea of how American editors might construe and interpret his remarks. We mounted the marble steps and, at the threshold of the Berghof hall, Schmidt turned again and raised his hand ceremonially in farewell. We went away.

Unimportant

Comments from London, following signing the mutual territorial integrity treaty between Turkey and Germany, stressed that the new pact was, actually, not of great importance.

Of course it is unimportant. But not for the reasons or because of the arguments advanced in London.

It is unimportant for one, outstanding fact. That is, that the Nazi government of Germany has, to date, violated every treaty or international agreement it ever made. To the nazis a treaty is only made to be observed so long as it serves their purpose. It is, in their estimate of the facts of life, neither more nor less than a scrap of paper. Useful, perhaps, to be honest, unsuspecting men and nations into the Nazi trap. But, in so far as the Nazis themselves are obligated, it might as well not exist. It is but as a torn scrap of paper flying into nonentity in the wind.

How could a treaty with such as the treaty-spurning Nazis be of any importance whatsoever?

An eastern college class votes its dream girl combination of Ginger Rogers, Olivia de Havland and Hedy Lamarr, with scattered votes for the Boston cookbook.

A New Economy

It is good to know that leaders at Washington are already giving deep study to the problems which inevitably will face the nation after the Nazi menace is destroyed and there is no longer necessity for concentration upon the production of the tools of war.

Under the old economic system there can be no doubt that the aftermath of this most destructive of all wars would be a depression compared to which the troubled years of the early '30's would be as nothing. The national economy came near collapse then. It would be tragic if, after winning the rights of freedom for all men, on the fields of battle, this nation should go down into the depths of economic disruption.

There is no need for any such tragic aftermath. The resources of this country are such that it can produce more than enough for every man, woman and child in the nation. It has the wealth and the capacity to turn that wealth into plenty—even into luxury—for everyone. All that is required is sufficient wisdom to so harness that wealth and that capacity to proper distribution that none shall lack, none shall go hungry or cold or unemployed.

America can rightfully boast of the most efficient system of industrial production in the world. Miracles are but everyday commonplaces of the genius of America's industrial engineering.

American workers receive, on an average, greater recompense, measured by purchasing power, than any others. America's retail outlets for the products of her mills and factories, over rivers and fields and forests, are organized marvellously.

The great gap has been between the manufacturer and the retailer. It is in distribution that we have failed.

It is absurd to talk about "saturation points" or consumption of any desirable goods in a country such as this. While any individual lacks a necessity, yes, even a comfort, of life there can be no saturation point.

The problem is complex and vast. Yet it need not be too great for solution. Trained, comprehensive and daring minds may find the road to a new economic order that will bring a security and a happiness to all Americans undreamed in the days that are gone.

Yet, whatever the solution, one thing is sure. It will be solution on the American way. It will be a solution of free citizens of a democracy, and not the dictated solution of autocratic totalitarianism.

The American devotion to freedom and the democratic way of solving all problems is sufficient to solve this in full accord with the historic American way of life.

Who, in these mad times, can remember when an "imperial crisis" signified that Gandhi and his boys were lying down in the car tracks?

American Realism

For too long has the United States government temporized and permitted agents of enemy powers to work as termites in this country. Now, however, it is evident that the federal authorities will brook no more of this subversive activity. Official actions of recent days have forcefully demonstrated this fact. Berlin and Rome must realize, today, that no longer can they plant saboteurs and propagandists in this country to undermine the national strength.

German consulates have been ordered closed and their staffs shipped back to Germany. German protest at this action will be bluntly rejected, as it deserves. Precautions have been taken to see that these Germans go back to their own land, that they do not escape into Latin America, there to continue their underground work.

However, what is probably the most striking evidence of American realism, in this issue, of all, is the instructions sent American consular agents abroad not to issue visas for admittance to this country to any who have relatives in "countries occupied by another nation." The reason is plain. It is too easy for Germany, by threatening the life or safety of a relative under her control, to force the otherwise innocent, well-intentioned individual, to serve her particular nefarious purposes.

It may work hardship in some individual cases. But Uncle Sam at last realizes he is in a war with the most ruthless gang of ambition-mad criminals the world has ever known. And, to defeat such a gang, toughness is essential.

Uncle Sam may be a little late, but today the old gentleman is getting completely "tough" in all his dealings with Nazidom. Which is the realistic, and only method of dealing with such gentry.

"Stop me if you've heard this," said the saboteur, as he tossed the lighted cigar aside in the powder mill.

Lower Case

A recent item of news from London told how the Dowager Queen Mary never uses a capital letter in writing of nazis or germans. She considers lower case all they deserve.

While the idea will not contribute materially to the strength of British or American arms, nor is it apt to lessen the ferocity of any german blitzkrieg, yet it has merit. For it would be, if universally adopted, a constant reminder of the ignominy which has come to be attached to those words in the free world and would contribute something to disabusing public mind as to the invincibility of the nazi armed forces.

That they are not invincible, every intelligent and informed observer knows. Only when given the advantage of tremendously superior mechanical force can nazis sweep on to victory. That they have, so far, possessed this force in almost all their battles, means nothing. For the day is fast approaching when the superiority of mechanical equipment will be on the other side. Just give a few months more and American war production will accelerate to a point where it can overwhelm any, or all, in the world.

Already the germans have shown themselves vastly inferior to the British forces opposing them, when the fight is man to man, on equal footing.

Suppose somebody starts a campaign to use only lower case letters in writing of german or nazi? It would be but a forecast of the less than lower case repute they will hold in world estimation after their retribution catches up with them and the war is won by the free peoples.

A milliner to the old carriage trade thinks the hats now worn are ridiculous. But that's the point. Unless one looks ridiculous, one is.

Georgia Editors Say:

THE WORST WAY.

(From The Moultrie Observer.)

Cook county voted against the bond proposal by the county commissioners to enable them to pay up the present indebtedness and to establish a cash basis for the county, but the amendment appears to have won in the state and will probably be adopted as a majority of those voting in the state supported the measure, it appears.—Adel News.

This is an illustration of the way our clumsy and out-of-date method of amending our constitution works. Here is a case where one of the smaller counties was divided in sentiment as to the best way of handling county finances. The fight is carried to the legislature where no one was interested except the representatives of that county. A constitutional amendment was proposed and passed on favorably by the legislature. Then it was submitted to a vote of the entire state. Voters in 158 counties came to the Cook county amendment and knew nothing about the merits or the demerits of the proposal. How could they know? Nine out of ten would naturally assume that Cook county wanted the change, and if they wanted it were entitled to have it. But it develops that a majority of the people of the county did not approve of the plan. They voted against it, but voters throughout the state who had no information voted it upon them.

How much better it would have been had the legislature provided one amendment making it possible for cities and counties to settle the questions of local government. This would have removed a burden from the legislature, making it possible to shorten the sessions, and would have given people the right of home government and majority rule.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS AND KENNETH G. CRAWFORD.

HARDER VIEWS ON RELIEF WASHINGTON, June 19.—Latest information contained in American diplomatic pouches from abroad is highly discouraging to the success of various relief missions, sponsored by former President Hoover and others, for the shipment of large quantities of surplus American foodstuffs to France and Spain. The information has hardened the attitude of our own State Department in support of the British, who long have objected to any wholesale shipment of American supplies to Europe on the grounds that the relief material would ultimately find its way into Germany.

One of the most recent reports from our corps of diplomats in Europe warns that under present conditions in unoccupied France any attempt at general relief would be misplaced, tending to definitely assist Germany in the conduct of the war. If the supplies themselves did not find their way into German hands, they would enable the Germans to remove other supplies from France, it was claimed.

The situation reported in Spain was even more clear. Doubt was expressed in the first place that any Spanish relief organization could be trusted to see that the supplies reach the persons for whom they are intended. The suggestion was made that a large part of the supplies would undoubtedly fall into the hands of speculators and various Spanish organizations which would be unable to give sufficient guarantees that the material would not be exported. Over and above this the confidential reports projected the thesis that poverty is such an immemorial condition in Spain that no Spaniard can be convinced it can be removed or that there is any reason for attempting to relieve it. Consequently, the recommendation was made that no relief measure be undertaken until such time as the allied military position will assure proper control and administration of relief.

FRENCH EMBITTERED While no actual shortage of essential foodstuffs is reported in France, the people there are portrayed as apathetic, tremendously cast down by their situation, and becoming embittered against the world in general. This is accepted as an explanation of the growing collaboration between the Vichy government and Berlin.

The Germans still have the border tightly sealed between occupied and unoccupied France. Orders have been promulgated prohibiting any movement of people from one zone to another without the consent of German authorities. Not even a French businessman can move from one town to another without the required permit. Actually the occupied section of France is said to have ceased to be France since it was occupied a year ago this week, except for the intangible dangling by the German authorities of the possibility that it might be returned as a part of France if the Vichy government behaves itself and collaborates.

STRIPPING AREA The same diplomatic sources confirm reports that have trickled out in cable dispatches from time to time that the Germans are actually stripping occupied France by buying its products with paper money under their own direction. All France has to redeem this money. Unoccupied France has little industry, no surplus foods. It is largely a wine and fruit-producing area, with some grain. Mainly it depended on the occupied portion of the country for food supplies. Yet even here the Germans are reported to be taking over grain cargoes and other shipments of supplies from Africa, transporting them on to Germany.

In short, France is represented to be so completely dominated by the Germans that continental France is to be regarded as entirely out of the war picture. The whole country is so completely supervised by German military, commercial and industrial agencies that any program of relief is out of the question. At least, these are the findings of our diplomatic agents. The fact that they sustain the British position against official sanction of relief missions may have a significant bearing on the future attitude of the American government, which thus far has indicated that sentiment will not be allowed to enter too far in the question.

Comparative Strengths.

The war will be won by the side which has the greater resources in materials essential to mechanized warfare and which can organize itself for the most rapid transformation of those materials into the instruments of warfare — planes, tanks, guns, ships, bombs, etc.

It is important therefore to evaluate the material resources of the opposing sides in the conflict. On the one hand we must consider how much, in these essentials, there is in all of Europe under German domination—not forgetting to make generous allowance for contributions the Nazis may exact from Russia, Finland and Turkey. On the other hand evaluate these same resources for the United States and the British Commonwealth.

Compare the two, and it is difficult to understand how the most ardent of appeasers or the most pessimistic of defeatists can envisage Hitler victory in the long run.

As for industrial organization, the man who says that Germanized Europe can outstrip this country in industrial efficiency and speed, once America swings into full stride—which will be the case in just a few more months—just doesn't know his history or his national characters.

And as for raw materials, the resources, look at this table.

Germany Has One—We Have Many.

The table is based upon denominating Germany's supply of the power in question as one unit. That of the United States and Britain is then given in comparative figures.

	Germanized Europe	United States British Emp.
Population	1	2.0
Steel Capacity	1	2.4
Production of
Automobiles	1	4.7
Oil	1	22.6
Coal	1	2.2
Copper ore	1	8.8
Nickel	1	54.4
Lead ore	1	3.7
Zinc ore	1	2.4
Tin ore	1	83.5
Rubber	1	12.0
Wool	1	4.5
Cotton	1	64.4

Germany cannot hope to produce as many planes as we can. And, for every gallon of oil with which to power those planes which Germany can produce, we can offer 22 1-2 gallons. For every ton of steel that Germany can put into tanks and guns and shells, we can put in two and a half tons. For every pound of tin ore—an essential—that Germany can command, we have 83 1-2 pounds. And so it goes.

There is sound sense to those, both in and out of Germany, who admit that Hitler's cause is already doomed.

Defense of Atlanta.

A day or three ago I had an editorial on this page urging active leadership for the training of civilians in important tasks of defense at home, during war times.

I knew, at the time, that thousands of good Atlantans are impatiently seeking opportunity to secure the training that would be needed before they could perform effective service as auxiliary fire fighters, directors of community feeding, members of salvage squads, etc.

There may be but slight danger of Atlanta being bombed by Nazi air raiders, but there is constant danger of attempts at sabotage. There are, perhaps but a handful of strange folks among us who would like to see Hitler defeat all the world, including us. But it wouldn't take many such fanatics to start serious fires in important Army or defense industry centers here. A few sticks of dynamite are not so difficult to acquire and, placed in the right spots, they could do quite a lot of damage.

I think of these saboteurs in our midst every time I hear the fire department answer an alarm.

It is not too early for a lot of us civilians to begin preparing ourselves to serve our home defense in more ways than one. Quite a few people have phoned me, since that editorial appeared, asking where and to whom they can go to volunteer for such training.

I wish I knew how to answer those questions. Can anyone tell me?

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Tuesday, June 20, 1916:

"Washington, June 19.—The question of war with Mexico hinges upon General Carranza's reception of the stern refusal to heed his demands for recall of General Pershing's troops, in the opinion of President Wilson's close advisers."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Saturday, June 20, 1891:

"Mr. W. O. Groce, a young journalist of ability and experience, will start a new weekly in Atlanta next Saturday. It will be an eight-page paper and will be called The Commercial Courier."

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

F. Fraser Bond, author of "Give Yourself Background," says: "Knowing how to speak correctly opens the first door to success in business. It is the first test of the educated man or woman. Without this ability, we feel hampered, diffident, and uncouth. Our manner betrays this sense of inferiority. The world, which takes us at our face value, sees our uncertainty and draws its own conclusions. No one can afford to let himself be marked down.

"The secret of success is conscious effort. Those of us who speak incorrectly do so because we are too lazy to speak otherwise. Many of us deny ourselves the use of words whose meanings we know well, simply because we are too indolent and too indifferent to find the correct way to pronounce them.

"The present age, with radio and the talking picture, places more emphasis than ever on the spoken word. Their value to us lies in the fact that they do speak and that we are thus enabled to hear. If we made the right use of them as mentors, we have available tutors in pronunciation of which our forefathers never dreamed. . . . As we listen to speeches by men and women of accepted culture in a hall or over the radio, we should make deliberate note of the way they pronounce certain words, if their way happens to differ from ours."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Has Changed Opinion NEW YORK, June 19.—There was a time a few years ago when I might have said in a glib, unthinking way that a government of laborites—meaning professional unioneers—would be a fine thing for this country. I mean an abrupt change from our accustomed makeup and balance to an outright labor administration under a labor President and with a labor majority in congress.

Since then I have learned lessons about the intelligence, political and personal ethics of our unioneers which convince me that there is not a single individual in the whole movement who can run a union, much less the United States, without ripping the Constitution to tatters. It is not merely that the leadership is infested with low-grade, ignorant union politicians of the Tammany or Jersey City type, racketeers, convicts and Communists to such an extent that the average is far below that of the Republican and Democratic parties at their worst.

That fact is alarming enough, but to that fact we must add the truth that wherever the laborite finds himself in full power he immediately proceeds to abuse it like a lower-case Mussolini or Hitler. Or if he isn't burly enough by nature to abuse the power himself he permits others to abuse it in his name, as Dave Beck, of Seattle, has abused the power delegated to him by that pious and earnest but ineffective old monument, Dan Tobin, of the teamsters. Mr. Tobin is a living summary of all the civic, domestic and religious virtues, but, for efficiency's sake, he appointed Beck as his Colonel House or Harry Hopkins, and Beck, thus muscled and armed, proceeded to establish a dictatorship as arbirtrary as any in Europe. He remains Mr. Tobin's appointee, because the old man let him grow too big and tough and might lose his own position in a showdown.

Appeal At Peril In a parallel case a labor President of the United States would appoint regional gauleiters to shove the people around, tax them at will, govern by decree, limit the number of delicatessens, laundries and pubs in any given area and determine who must positively not be hired and fired. Also, in a parallel case, the citizen would appeal to the public courts only at his grave peril, for the unioneers are all dead set against the courts, although you may be sure that Mr. Tobin, for example, would appeal to them within the hour were I to call him a crook, as I ardently do not.

The union movement is so laced together by ties of loyalty, politics, venality and mutual interest that a labor President and a labor congress could not give the whole community a fair administration without violating their first loyalty, which is given to the unions. Or if the President and a scattering among labor's congressional majority had the conscience to attempt to serve the country impartially, the rest of labor's congressional strength would gang up on them, picket the White House with goons in lock step and four deep and declare war on any foreign power whose ambassador sneaked in the back way to talk over serious matters with the incumbent Mr. Big.

The leadership of the organized unions has produced no man as yet who could be trusted with the dangerous responsibility of high national office, except he be surrounded and outranked by officials of normal mind to veto his errors. John Wrong Lewis was one of the strongest leaders, and he made a good press for himself with a coterie of politically callow bleeding-hearts of the Fourth Estate in the early days of the New Deal. But events have shown him to be erratic, dictatorial and a man who made words pass for wisdom until he finally talked himself out of the picture with a campaign speech that sounded like the Fourth of July oration of an old-time county chairman.

But even at his height Lewis did not trust all his own rank and file to vote their choice or pay their dues willingly, and that fact may be taken as a faint indication of the fate the common citizen would have suffered under him as President.

Ignored By Law In the matter of graft and exploitation of office for profit the union leadership taken as a whole suffers much even by comparison with the old parties. One reason has been that the law has presumed the unioneer to be a sort of consecrated man and the union a holy organization no more to be challenged in its private affairs than a church. Another is that because the union was ignored by the law the leader has been free to rob and persecute members, nonmembers, businessmen and, more recently, the whole community, with only his conscience for a cop.

I believe that seven or eight years ago a great many Americans would have said it was time to give labor a chance to run the country. But nowadays the proposal would be howled down in wild alarm, and most angrily by workers who know by experience what a calamity that would be.

Study in U. S.

Four groups of Brazilian civil servants will be sent to the United States this year for special studies, it is reported in Rio de Janeiro. Office workers, librarians and others will be in the group. They have been instructed not to take jobs in the United States and are forbidden to accept any kind of commercial position, within three years after their return to Brazil, which would require the use of knowledge obtained in the United States study courses. While in the United States they must refrain from manifesting themselves publicly on political, religious or racial questions and must not publish articles on the political, social or administrative situation in Brazil.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

ANNOYING VISITOR This fellow I am talking about came in right after the fellow who said that God had told him to build a radio station in Atlanta. Before him there had been a fellow who had found a tree out on Soap creek, the leaf of which, if eaten, would cure cancer.

But this fellow I am talking about came in right after the radio man. The man who had had a personal message from God said that God told him to build a radio station in Atlanta powerful enough to be heard around the world. There would be nothing broadcast on this station except sermons, hymns and religious talks.

This, he said, would do away with the necessity of sending missionaries to foreign lands. We could get language experts to speak to the Hindus, the Hottentots, the Zulus, the Chinese, the Japanese, the Germans, and all others, he said, who were Godless.

He wanted a small donation and an indorsement. I gave him both, two bits, to be exact, and a fine, unreserved indorsement of the radio station to reach the Godless of other lands.

There are a lot of odd people running loose today. I think it is the war talk that has done it. A lot of brains which are just on the borderline get tipped over on the shadowy side by the excitement of the war.

A psychiatrist I know says that all of us, more or less, are a little crazy. So, I am very patient with all these people who have had personal messages.

Oh, yes, I asked him how he got the message from God. He said that he woke up one night and God was standing by his bed. He said that God pointed a finger at him and told him to get out and get the money to build this station.

As I said, you get a lot of funny ones and some annoying ones. There was, for instance, the fellow who came in right after the solicitor for the new radio station. He was one of the most annoying persons I had in the office all day long.

"A LIE, OFTEN REPEATED—" "There are two kinds of people in your town who give me an acute pain," he said.

"Who are they?" I asked, wearily.

"Well," he said, "there are those who keep writing about saving democracy abroad and who won't look under their noses. Then there are those who grow greatly excited, and demand of the police a clean-up, if some juke joint gets out of line, but who will let a vast slum produce viciousness, prostitution of young girls and all that goes with such a section, and never grow excited at all."

"Go on," I said, patiently.

"Instead of trying to do something about improving racial relations, we see people who ought to know better fanning the embers apparently trying to make them burst into flames of troubles. There always is a sensible approach rather than a violent one which will stir up the prejudices of ignorance and prejudice. One day of that can outdo the constructive work of a year.

"The old Hitler technique, of taking a man's words and twisting them into a meaning never intended, is a simple and effective one.

"We now have a great campaign against any proposal for social equality of the races and a common university campus, when no equality or no such campus has been proposed. Yet the charges, repeated over and over again, will become effective. There will be many who will believe them. It is an unfortunate technique, albeit an effective one. No one has proposed it. Therefore, let us shout loudly against it. It's cute, but ugly. Hitler brought it to perfection.

" 'Repeat a lie often enough,' he said, 'and the people will believe it.'

"Not many persons," he said, "get aroused about such a thing. Apathy—the deadly apathy which causes people to lose their self-respect and their freedoms—is one of our troubles."

HERE AT HOME I kept wishing he would leave, but he stayed.

"You talk about saving democracy. Remember the boy in south Georgia who killed his father in conditions of poverty and misery? Did you read about the girl who killed her mother in conditions of poverty and ignorance?

"Every time I read about the ministers or some civic group protesting against some small sore spot, I become very angry and wish they could quit trying to kill flies and would go out after big game.

"There are conditions, within the area roughly defined as "back of Formwalt," which will horrify you. Mere children have been pushed into vice. All sorts of vicious influences are at work. The cure is not to lock them up, but to cure the cause. I do not mean to say all such conditions are confined to that area. It is just that investigators find it probably the worst.

"It grows out of poverty, sickness and neglect. Multiply all that and all the sordid killings, all the juvenile delinquency which gets publicized in the trial courts, by hundreds and you'll get the answer.

"We ought to be equally concerned with that and with democracy in the world. The juke joints raided, the street walker picked up—they are just flies buzzing about the carcass. What I wish is they'd remove the carcass."

"A lot of unusual people visit newspaper offices," I said. "I just had a fellow in before you who said God told him to build a radio station."

"I hope he gets it," he said, as he took his hat and left, "if he also can reach the ones here at home."

Men Of Every Age Behave Much Alike in Like Situations

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

People in all sections of the country are discussing the prophecy of Daniel and applying it to the current conflict, as others did 25 years ago.

You may scoff at their faith and still find the prophecy interesting. The following extracts from the 11th chapter give the gist of it:

"And they that understand among the people shall instruct many: yet they shall fall by the sword, and by flame, by captivity, and by spoil . . .

"Now when they shall fall, they shall be holpen with a little help: but many shall cleave to them with flatteries . . .

"And the king shall do according to his will; and he shall exalt himself, and magnify himself above every god . . .

"Neither shall he regard the God of his father, nor the desire of women . . .

"But in his estate shall he honor the God of forces . . .

"Thus shall he do in the most strongholds with a strange god . . . and he shall cause them to rule over many, and shall divide the land for gain.

"And at the time of the end shall the king of the south push at him; and the king of the north shall come against him like a whirlwind, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with many ships; and he shall enter into the countries and overflow and pass over . . .

"He shall stretch forth his hand also upon the countries: and the land of Egypt shall not escape.

"But he shall have power over the treasures of gold and of silver, and over all the precious things of Egypt: and the Libyans and the Ethiopians shall be at his steps.

"But tidings out of the east and out of the north shall trouble him: therefore he shall go forth with great fury to destroy, and utterly to make away many.

"And he shall plant the tabernacles of his palace between the seas in the glorious holy mountain; yet he shall come to his end, and none shall help him."

With the help of a little imagination, the prophecy can be made to fit any conqueror; but no imagination is needed to make the last clause accurate. It fits all of them with equal exactitude.

In Which O. Reeves Wonders How Folks Used To Survive

How entertaining are the ads portraying all the feeding fads. They make us wonder how our folks, the simple-hearted country blokes, grew up and entered man's estate, the way they lived and drank and ate.

Now, Uncle Joe became a man but never tasted breakfast bran. He thought cracked corn and bran or oats were only fit for hogs or goats and, there was Uncle Mallory who never saw a calorie, but he could eat a pot of beans and wash them down with turnip greens, absorb a hunk of steer or cow or gnaw the shin bones of a sow.

Great-Uncle Eli was a dope who never heard of shaving soap; he rubbed some lye soap on his chin and with his fingers worked it in and used a keen old-fashioned blade . . . the kind that Wade and Butcher made. But Cousin Oscar was a whiz . . . he didn't know of Ramos fizz yet he could down a pint of rye or corn and never bat an eye. Grandfather was a queer galoot who never had a tailored suit but now and then he went to town and bought a ten-buck "hand-me-down," and sweet, old-fashioned Aunt Janet would never smoke a cigaret; she always thought a box of snuff and sweet-gum tooth brush good enough.

Well . . . every now and then someone turned out to be a simpleton—but they ignored his mental quirk and made him do the heavy work; they didn't call psychiatrists to straighten out their mental twists and yet they got along somehow with nothing much above the brow.

Though most of them have gone to dust and left behind no marble bust, nor had the honor of the name inscribed upon the halls of fame, when their dull ignorance I recall I wonder that they lived at all —OLLIE REEVES.

Income vs. Patriotism

Joseph Alsop and Robert Kintner, who have been turning out "The Capital Parade," a column of Washington political gossip, for years, have "joined up." One with the Army, the other with the Navy.

Alsop and Kintner have made a lot of money. They have enjoyed big incomes.

When they discontinued their column, I assume, that income stopped.

Certainly, if any two men were in position to exert a "pull" in politics they were this pair. They could surely have ducked the service. They could have pleaded they were so much more valuable to the nation in Washington than in the service. They could have found a dozen reasons.

But they didn't try. They cleared off their desks and swapped dinner clothes for uniforms.

I haven't heard of any of the movie stars ducking service, either. I don't know how many volunteered but a good many have been drafted.

In their cases, under certain circumstances, I think exceptions should be made. Not a permanent release. But if an important actor is half-through a picture which is costing his producer a million dollars—and some of them do—they might let him postpone reporting until it is finished. To scrap a picture would be penalizing the producer and a thousand or so employes. And a little delay wouldn't hurt.

All This for a Dime

Much talk of mass production as applied to tanks, airplanes and big guns. It takes a long time to get started but after that they roll off the line.

For years I have been impressed with how cheaply various gadgets can be bought.

Week or so ago I desired to fix up a handle for a razor blade so I could clip items out of newspapers without severing a finger. It took me an hour. It was a poor thing and ugly as a mud fence and it didn't work very well.

Caller in my office remarked: "You can buy a good one at a hardware counter."

So I did. I hadn't known they were made.

This one is of shiny bright metal. It works two ways, for you can swing the business end around to make it either a scraper or a knife. It has six parts, including a thumbscrew. The parts were stamped out by a machine, but it required human hands to put them together.

And it retailed at a dime. I don't know what it cost the store—what the manufacturer got.

If it bore the label "Made in Japan" I could understand it. But this was made in America, where factory folk don't live on 3 cents' worth of rice a day.

We complain about high prices—and they're going up. Maybe many things do cost us too much.

But the stores are full of gadgets and dingbats which serve useful purposes—at prices which seem hardly possible. Mass production—and machinery—is the answer.

GEORGIAN NAMED.

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 19.—(AP) S. D. Copeland, superintendent of Augusta public schools, has received notification of his appointment to head the Pan-American Institute meeting in Guatemala during July and August.

Amazing results in improving the looks... boosting vitality... pep!

Weak, run-down people suffering from sluggishness, underweight, poor digestion, lack of appetite now may restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize the body with rich, red blood.

If you are one of those unfortunates who have been ill, or have suffered with colds, the flu, worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper foods, or have been vexed by overtaxing worries... yet have no organic trouble or focal infection... and your red-blood-cells have become reduced in vitality and number... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is good news for you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build back deficient blood strength... to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... pep... become animated... more attractive!

Feel and look like yourself again

Yes, when you tone up the stomach and get its digestive juices flowing freely, you should enjoy again that old-time zest for food... stomach digestive miseries should vanish. S.S.S. Tonic also gives you the mineral matter in soluble and digestive form to restore your blood to its rich, red color... this makes for greater strength... color in your cheeks ...resistance against disease attacks.

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Make the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. You will be delighted with results. Scientific research shows that S.S.S. Tonic usually gets results. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits it has brought to them—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Tonic builds sturdy health and makes you feel like yourself again." © S.S.S. Co.

PipeLine Office Will Be Opened Here Monday

Work To Be Directed on Baton Rouge to Greensboro Main.

Plantation Pipe Line Company will open main offices in the Healey building here Monday to direct work on construction of a 1,261-mile refined products line to run from Baton Rouge, La., to Greensboro, N. C., via Atlanta.

The office will be in charge of C. R. Younts, president; F. E. Warterfield Jr., vice president, and S. V. Kane, assistant secretary-treasurer. A staff of 15 will be employed immediately, but will be enlarged when actual construction begins, it was announced.

With the opening of the Atlanta main offices, the pipe line company will open a district office in Rome to direct surveying of rights of way, purchasing of land and construction in Georgia and Tennessee.

Between 50 and 60 employes will work out of this office which will be staffed by 10 persons.

The main headquarters of the company are being transferred to Atlanta from New York where preliminary work for the pipe line was directed.

Construction of these oil pipe lines has been proclaimed necessary for the national defense. The railroads led a determined fight against them in the last session of the Georgia legislature and succeeded in defeating a bill which would have given these private companies right of eminent domain, but congress authorized the pipe lines as a national emergency.

Two Blue Jays, Fortnight Old, Moved to City

Eye-Dropper Is Used To Feed Them Milk Preparation.

(PICTURES ON PAGE ONE)

Clarence and Clara, two weeks old and doing nicely for bluejays of that vintage, moved into town yesterday to take up permanent residence.

When about a day old they dropped out of an oak tree in front of the country home of Channing Cope in Leguin district, Newton county, and were rescued by Mrs. Cope. Using an eye-dropper frequently filled with a mixture of milk, egg and fine cornmeal, she overcame their awe of indoors and human beings. In fact, things reached the point that, when hungry, which was frequent, they would swoop up to her shoulder, settle on an outstretched finger and start yelling their heads off for some more of the same.

Young Joseph Kling Jr., nature-student son of the Georgia Power Company press representative, yesterday became their foster-father. Mrs. Cope journeyed to Atlanta and delivered them to Kling Sr., a business associate of her husband.

The transfer of the citizenship didn't please Clarence and Clara overmuch at first.

But the eyedropper and formula for the mixture went with them.

Williams Granted 30-Day Respite

Norman Williams, scheduled to die today for the slaying of Lon Fortson in Elbert county in 1937, was granted a 30-day respite yesterday by Governor Talmadge.

The stay of execution was granted, the Governor said, because he had not had time to act on Williams' plea for commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

Two members of the State Prison and Parole Commission, Chairman Clem Rainey and Vivian Stanley, had recommended that the commutation appeal be rejected, while Roy K. Mann, the third member of the commission, advocated the sentence be changed to life imprisonment.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

The Presbyterian ministers of Atlanta adopted a paper a few days ago regarding the observance of the Lord's Day which deserves careful and prayerful consideration. I quote a few of the significant sentences of this altogether significant and timely declaration:

"One of the threads woven into the fabric of the story of God at work in the Old Testament is the institution of the Sabbath Day. Its importance is recognized because, in the Divine declaration at Sinai of the principles forever governing man's relation toward God and his fellowmen, God made provision for a holy day. Thus God made possible a setting of worship and meditation wherein He would continually speak to the inner heart of man. Wherever the day was neglected, the prophets could and did predict the decline of the people.

"We share with Jesus His regard for the day. He planted His feet firmly upon the great declaration, 'Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God.' The special and peculiar fellowship of this weekly holy day will for all time keep men aware of a gracious association always open between God their Father and all of His devoted children. . . .

"With the church of the apostles, loyal to the great principles of the religion of their people and of our people, we commit ourselves to observe the Lord's Day—not a day merely to follow our own inclinations, but to follow His will. . . .

"We believe that the state should heed the wisdom of the ages and recognize that the highest welfare of its people depends upon a day of rest and human sympathy and worship. . . ."

With all of which I most heartily agree. And I would call attention to the declaration of our Presbyterian friends as coming at a most timely hour—just now when many industries are asking for permission to operate on Sunday as a result of the rationing of electric power. Unless an industry is certified by the government as producing essential materials for the national defense program, it certainly should not presume to violate the laws of God and man by operating on Sunday. Electric power and all other natural resources—God's good gifts—should be shared and shared alike by industry, except for those rare instances where the government has certified industries that should be on full-time production.

If our country is to continue, we must observe the laws of God and man. Any sanction from any source encouraging a further disregard for law is a disservice to the state and its citizens, and this tendency to follow selfish inclinations rather than the clearly expressed will of God is bound to result in unspeakable grief for individuals, families, institutions, communities and the nation. "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord," declared the Psalmist. Let us faithfully seek to build our nation according to His blessed will and way.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

SAYS STRONG UNIONS GUARANTEE DEFENSE

Editor Constitution: People question whether labor has a right to organize during the national emergency. Denial of the right to stop work or strike is denial of the right to organize and leaves labor helpless in bargaining with employers. It is evident that the economic democracy achieved by unions is better for labor and for society than to leave autocratic power over the lives of working people and their families in the hands of even the most enlightened and just employers.

In the present emergency, strong labor unions are the best guarantee for national defense because their contracts with management provide machinery for adjusting all differences without interruption of work.

For example, in the spring of 1937, the United States Steel Corporation signed a contract with the steel union of the CIO after weeks of negotiation conducted on the side chiefly by John Lewis and Philip Murray. This spring United States Steel entered its fifth year of contractual relations with the union, covering 261,000 workers. Throughout this entire period not an hour has been lost because of industrial disputes. Many other corporations have followed this constructive pattern of labor relations with equally good results.

Other companies have bitterly fought unions and caused long strikes, but in the end have signed agreements with them and discovered that responsibility and stability took the place of unrest and work stoppages.

Philip Murray, president of the CIO, and the presidents of various CIO unions have shown their determination to remove from leadership union officials who call unauthorized strikes.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE AND DEFENSE JOBS

Editor Constitution: In June 15 issue of The Constitution was a timely editorial headed "Workers For Defense." It mentioned the importance of the United States Employment Service in its mission of placing workers in defense industries and gave good advice to people seeking defense jobs.

In connection with the work of the United States Employment Service it might be mentioned that the new post office building is thronged daily with applicants for civil service jobs and others trying to find out where to register for defense work. It would help greatly if the United States Employment Service would give wider publicity as to where applicants should register, and what they should do in order to get defense jobs. C. A. SEALS.

HELPFULNESS TYPICAL OF THE CONSTITUTION

Editor, Constitution: On behalf of my colleagues, fellow committee members and the entire membership of the Atlanta Associational Baptist Training Union, please accept this token of our recognition and appreciation for the splendid publicity accorded by you to our Lakewood barbecue held June 12.

Doubtlessly, both the quality and the extent of this welcomed publicity accounted in great measure for the unusually large attendance at this function.

It goes without saying that the helpful community spirit displayed by The Atlanta Constitution on this occasion is but typical of the many instances in which it has helped to awaken the kind of consciousness so vitally needed for church progress and advancement.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Frequent buying spurts during execution of orders placed by mills, possibly in connection with flour business, and by previous "short" sellers lifted wheat prices at times today a cent a bushel from the two weeks' low point to which they receded yesterday.

The market closed on one of these bulges, with net gains of ½ to 1 cent compared with yesterday. Corn finished unchanged to ¼ higher. Oats unchanged to ⅛ lower; soybeans 1⅞ to 2⅜ higher; rye unchanged to ½ higher and lard unchanged to 3 higher.

Part of the strength of wheat was associated with fresh gains in the soybean pit. Trade restricted, however, by rumors about German-Russian relations. Increased hedging and spreading sales, as well as the prospects of expanding harvesting operations and wheat movement, checked demand.

Eastern reports indicated that flour activity has improved the past two days, with sales aggregating possibly as much as 150,000 bushels and more business pending.

NEW ORLEANS SPOT COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—Spot cotton closed steady, 17 points higher. Sales 952. Low middling 12.67; middling 13.97; good middling 14.42. Receipts 1,525; stock 489,679.

ATLANTA SPOT COTTON.

Atlanta spot cotton closed steady, middling 14.35.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16-inch cotton today at 10 southern designated spot markets was 15 points higher at 14.04 cents a pound (new season high); average for the past 30 market days, 13.11; middling ⅞-inch average, 13.82.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—Abruptly changing its course in late trading today, cotton futures erased substantial losses and closed 13 to 17 points higher.

The market turned on a stepping-up of trade and mill demand with some aggressive bidding for account of New Orleans interests.

Buying interest broadened in the Worth street textile market, but again scarcity of fabrics for nearby deliveries reduced volume. Prices were firm.

Exports Wednesday nil; season so far, 998,886 bales. Port receipts, 8,608. Port stocks, 3,327,349.

COTTON ADVANCES AFTER EARLY LOSSES

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—(AP) Cotton futures advanced today after early losses.

The advance, attributed to trade buying and reports of weevil infestation in some sections of the belt gave the market a firm closing 15 to 21 points net higher.

Building, Loan Company Votes 27th Dividend

The board of directors of the Decatur Building & Loan Association yesterday announced the company's twenty-seventh consecutive dividend at 4 per cent interest per year.

According to President W. H. Bowen, the dividend will distribute about $57,000 among the stockholders. The company's total assets now exceed $3,250,000.

New Car Registrations Surpass Peak of 1929

DETROIT, June 19.—(AP)—R. L. Polk & Co. reported today that new passenger car registrations during April this year totaled 489,074 units surpassing the previous high month of April, 1929, by 7,399 cars. New truck registrations totaled 70,269, up 2,390 units over the previous high month of April, 1937.

A complication for the first four months of this year show new passenger car registrations totaled 1,508,777 compared to 1,314,827 in the like period of 1929.

Du Pont Company Cuts Selling Prices of Nylon

WILMINGTON, Del., June 19. (AP)—E. I. du Pont-de Nemours & Company yesterday announced a reduction in the selling prices of nylon of from 10 to 30 cents per pound on various deniers.

The price drop is the second during the one and one-half years nylon has been on the market. It is believed the present demand for nylon yarns exceeds the company's ability to produce.

Sugar and Coffee.

SUGAR.

Dixie To Need 680,711 Cars For Shipping

Freight Loadings Increase of 11.7 Per Cent Predicted.

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—The southeast will require 680,717 freight cars during the third quarter of this year to handle traffic resulting from accelerated industrial, agricultural and defense activities, a special meeting of the National Association of Shippers Advisory Boards was told here today.

O. H. Weaver, Griffin, Ga., general chairman Southeast Shippers Advisory Board, said the required cars represent a net increase of 71,663 cars—11.7 per cent—over loadings for the corresponding period last year.

He attributed the increased demand to the program calling for the enlargement or construction of 42 military bases in the section, industrial expansion both private and governmental, shipbuilding and shipyard construction, bumper crops and stimulated private business.

For Fourth Quarter.

For the fourth quarter, Weaver estimated, the southeast will need 838,986 cars, or 104,922 more than were needed the same period in 1940.

Weaver said he believed that "in the fall and winter months the business volume of the southeast will approach, if not equal and exceed, all previous high records. . . ."

In a brief summary of expected demands for the remainder of this year, Weaver said:

The pulp and paper industry would require 4,500 additional cars.

"There has been a nice pickup in the business of our 12 ports, through which 25 per cent of the nation's coastwise and export traffic moves."

The business volume of the textile industry in the first part of this year has been the greatest on record and "there is no indication of a letup in sight.

Cotton Carloadings.

"Our cotton people assure us that their carloadings will be at least 25 per cent heavier than during 1940, with domestic consumption next season reaching a record 10,000,000 bales.

"Our fruit and vegetable crops have suffered by reason of a prolonged drouth in certain sections. However, citrus production, it now appears, will be about 25 per cent greater; there will be about the equivalent of 5,000 more carloads of peaches to be handled and we are, of course, at the commencement of our watermelon movement."

Increased demands for industrial coal and coke, materially greater requirements for railroads and the prospects of heavy demand for heating purposes, will "unquestionably bring the car requirements for coal and coke to 25 to 35 per cent over last lear."

Production Index Rises Nine Points

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The Federal Reserve Board said today the upswing in defense activity resulting from settlement of coal and automobile strikes boosted the index of the nation's industrial production from 140 in April to 149 in May.

The board added that further increases were shown in the first half of June.

An earlier publication of the board had predicted the May figfigure at 148. In May of last year, the index was 115.

Output of steel and other metals continued near maximum capacity, textile output gained, and production of manufactured food products was larger. In the chemical and shoe industries, activity was maintained at high levels, contrary to usual declines at this season.

Gains were reported in petroleum and anthracite coal production.

Garbarge Crisis Ends With Strike Settlement

McKEESPORT, Pa., June 19.—(AP)—The four-day strike of municipal service employes ended abruptly early tonight with the strikers heeding advice of CIO leaders and voting to end their walkout by accepting the city's offer.

As explained by Councilman Ben Rosenberg, a wage increase of 6 1-2 per cent, 8 per cent and 10 per cent for various classifications of workers will go into effect July 1 and council also will attempt to "revise upward" wages of men in the lower brackets.

Before darkness settled 72 sanitation department workers began clearing up a garbage disposal problem which was becoming serious and 55 street cleaners started sweeping away rubbish from downtown streets.

Wholesale Commodity Prices Up .9 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today an increase of 0.9 per cent in the general level of wholesale commodity prices for the week ended June 14, due largely to continuing price increases for farm products and foods.

The bureau's price index now stands at 86.7 per cent of the 1926 average as compared with 77.4 per cent a year ago.

CAMP FUNSTON PAINTED.

A crew of some 200 painters has completed the work of spreading 35,000 gallons of paint on the 918 buildings at Camp Funston, in Kansas. Interiors of some of the buildings also were painted, but most got only a coat on the outside.

Defense Plant Built, Opened In 143 Days

$16,000,000 Ordnance Works at Canton, Ohio, in Operation.

CANTON, Ohio, June 19.—(AP)—The $16,000,000 Canton Naval ordnance plant went into limited production today—several weeks ahead of schedule and only 143 days after ground was broken for the project.

The plant will make gun mounts, recoil mechanisms, torpedo tubes and similar items. Operated by the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, the plant at full production will employ about 3,000 skilled workers.

Waste Paper Industry Maintains Price Level

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) Leon Henderson, price administrator, announced today that representatives of the waste paper industry had agreed individually to maintain the present price structure pending determination of whether sufficient quantities of paper would come on the market at the present price levels.

Waste paper is used in making paper and paper board.

Western Steel Firms Propose Vast Expansion

Facilities To Cost $100,000,000 Will Add 1,556,000 Tons.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP)—The Office of Production Management announced today that steel companies have completed plans for an expansion of facilities in the Rocky Mountain and Pacific coast states to cost about $100,000,000.

The proposals would provide 1,556,000 tons of additional steel ingot capacity and additional finishing facilities.

All of the proposals call for expanded facilities at established coal and iron ore mines and steel plants.

OPM officials said that various government departments are now considering the expansion program.

Meanwhile, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported American steel companies exported more finished steel in 1940 than was taken by the largest single domestic industry.

Out of the total of 45,851,000 tons of finished steel shipped by companies representing 98 per cent of the total domestic output, 8,099,000 tons was for export, principally to England and South American nations. The leading domestic steel using industry was the automotive field,

Cotton To Get Another 'Blow,' Peters States

Leader Says State Should Get Ready for War Aftermath.

ROME, Ga., June 19.—(AP)—The "whole cotton empire is going to receive another terrific blow" in the economic aftermath of the war, James S. Peters told the Rotary Club today.

The Manchester banker and chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee warned of other economic disasters impending and urged taking "time by the forelock, husband our resources, stay out of debt, make few commitments, be conservative, then lay sensible plans for preservation of our state."

Peters said that following end of the war the government, "no doubt, will restrict very largely its aid to cotton production, while domestic consumption will decline, leaving large surpluses of cotton, already in our warehouses, unable to find a ready market."

He then asked: "Can we look with any degree of ease upon the thought that Georgia can continue to produce cotton, in the face of the condition just outlined, especially when our lands are worn out, require heavy fertilization, and we buy everything with which it requires to produce, and harvest the crop?"

Urging greater development of dairy products in an extensive program of farm diversification, the speaker said he was told four out of every five babies in Georgia drank canned milk and added "In other words, we are boarding our babies in Wisconsin."

The banker said he thought Georgians should look back to 1920, see what happened then after the World War during the period of "artificial prosperity" and "shape our advantages now so as to overcome some of the bitter experiences which came our way then."

Monroe Legion Post To Install Officers

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

MONROE, Ga., June 19.—The Lindsey-Garret post of the American Legion elected the following officers at their last monthly meeting.

Commander, P. A. Dickenson; first vice commander, H. A. Breedlove; second vice commander, J. A. Atkinson; adjutant, E. C. Patillo; service officer, Harry Burton; chaplain, C. C. Farmer.

These officers will be installed at a barbecue next Wednesday night, June 25, when the post will entertain its members, their wives and families.

Only substance known to expand under the influence of both heat and cold is water.

Pennsylvania Railroad Orders 700 Miles of New Steel Track

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—(AP)—The Pennsylvania Railroad announced today it had placed orders for 150,000 tons of new steel rail—enough, officials said, to lay almost 700 miles of track when rolled.

It was the second big order by the railroad in as many days. Yesterday the company disclosed it had placed orders for $23,000,000 worth of new equipment to meet increasing demands for shipment of defense materials.

The steel rail order is the largest such purchase made by the road since 1931. The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation will roll 75,000 tons of the order, Bethlehem Steel Company 66,000 tons and Inland Steel Company 9,000 tons.

Priorities Issued For Freight Cars

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP) Sixty freight car builders were given a priority rating today to assist them in obtaining scarce materials and speeding up their production schedules.

E. R. Stettinius Jr., defense director of priorities, said that the order was issued "because of a growing tightness in the supply of freight cars."

Stettinius also called on the builders to substitute materials that are not scarce for critical items wherever possible.

"It is suggested that wood be substituted for critical metals wherever possible and that, in addition, the car builders specify standard sizes and thicknesses of steel sheets and plates so as to minimize production difficulties."

At the same time, other defense officials reported that 120,000 new freight cars were scheduled for completion by the fall of 1942.

Lumber Company Pays Back Wages

Restitution totaling $3,501.25 has been made to 334 employes of the Johnson Lumber Company, at Cypress, Ga., representing the difference between wages and overtime pay received and what they were entitled to since October 24, 1938, under the fair labor standards act, it was announced yesterday by J. R. McLeod, regional director of the Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor.

In announcing the payments, McLeod pointed out that the consent decree providing for the payment of back wages and operation in strict compliance with the law in the future was issued with the consent of the Johnson Lumber Company. This method of settling cases has been used by the administrator, McLeod stated, in cases where investigation discloses that the violations were not deliberate and flagrant.

Georgia Urged To Consume Own Products

Miss Melba Hawkins Is Named Dairy Queen at Eatonton.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

EATONTON, Ga., June 19.—Georgia dairymen today toured leading Putnam county dairies, ate barbecue, heard speeches and saw a bathing revue and horse races as the Georgia Dairy Association staged its annual Field Day at the Rock Eagle lake here.

W. T. Anderson, of the Macon Telegraph, and Agriculture Commissioner Tom Linder told the group that Georgia must learn to consume its own products and deplored the fact the state buys most of its daily products outside the state.

Other speakers were Ernest Bull, of Savannah, president; J. O. Wall, of Eatonton, state senator; N. D. Horton, Putnam commissioner; Charles Duncan, of the State Milk Board, and C. M. McMillan, secretary of the association.

Leading milk buyers told the farmers a new day had dawned for milk producers and they were urged to produce more and better grade milk.

Miss Melba Hawkins was elected "Miss Dairy Queen" at the revue. Miss Edna Davis placed second and Miss Mary Biggs third.

Putnam harness racers staged a special event for the dairymen at the county's new track.

Betty Haverty Entertains Sub-Debs at Ponte Vedra, Fla.

By SALLY FORTH.

● ● ● FASHIONABLE Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., will be the Mecca for a group of popular Sweetbriar College students who leave tomorrow to visit their classmate, Betty Haverty. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverty, Betty's parents, have a cottage at the picturesque resort, and both Betty and her brother, Rawson, have planned house parties assembling their friends.

Catherine Tift, whose engaging charm has made her a social favorite, entrains tomorrow for Ponte Vedra, as well as Jane Tuttle and Helen Crump, who hails from Macon, and who is Catherine's roommate at Sweetbriar. The duo will spend 10 days as Betty's guests, and a diverting program of entertainment has been planned for their enjoyment, including starlight dancing, tanning on sunlit beaches and swimming in turquoise waters.

Scores of her friends are enjoying Betty's hospitality. Lovely Helen Cantey, of Columbia, S. C., is her guest this week, and last week her visitors included Jacquelin Thiesen and Betty's brother and sister, Frank and Clare Haverty Ridley.

Rawson has as his guest for this month Gus Sparks, of Macon. Bolling Jones Jr. and Elbert Tuttle Jr. have spent the past several days with him.

No sooner will Betty's house party come to an end than Catherine will be hostess at one of her own at the beach home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Tift, at St. Simons Island.

Her guests will also be a group of college friends, including Betty, Helen Crump, Ione Mercer and Emily Ann Wilkins, of New York, who will arrive at the Island on July 1.

● ● ● REBECCA WIGHT and John Cherry, who are being honored at a whirl of parties prior to their marriage on June 28, are the proud owners of a beautiful silver service. A wedding present from the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Wight, the service is in the exquisitely ornate English Gadroon pattern, and ranks among the couple's most highly prized possessions. Mr. and Mrs. N. C. Spence presented their son and his future bride their flat silver, which is in the Old Lace pattern.

Among parties honoring the pretty bride-elect will be the luncheon at which braidesmaid Jeannette Estes will be hostess today at her Lullwater road home. Tomorrow Betty Braungart will honor "Beck" at a luncheon at the Biltmore, this affair to be followed by the bridge party at which Marie Cherry Chivington, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will honor her brother's fiancee.

Helen Randall, another of "Beck's" bridesmaids, will compliment her on Tuesday at a tea, and on Wednesday Josephine Sanders, who also ranks among the bride-elect's lovely attendants, will be hostess at a smorgasbord tea in her honor.

After their marriage, which will be solemnized in the garden of the Wight home on Rumson road, "Beck" and John will establish residence in the Peachtree Hills apartments, where several of Atlanta's newlyweds have recently begun housekeeping.

● ● ● WHEN Mary Jane Campbell and Wharton Mitchell marry this evening at a fashionable ceremony at the Second-Ponce de Leon church, the wedding will be somewhat like a reunion, for many of the attendants have been in weddings together.

When the former Betty Gregg married Crawford Rainwater in Birmingham, Mary Jane and "Mit" were attendants. And Betty, you know, will be a bridesmaid this evening. Mary Jane's mother, Mrs. William E. Campbell, the former Frances Rowland, was an attendant when Betty's mother, the former Elizabeth Adair, married Robert Gregg. Dr. Campbell served as an attendant in the wedding of Dr. Glenville Giddings and the former Dorothy Arkwright, and now their daughter, Dorothy Giddings, will stand with Mary Jane and "Mit" this evening. Dr. Campbell was also in the marriage of the former Dorothy Haverty to Dr. Lon Grove, and this evening the latter will be an usher. When Mrs. Campbell as Frances Rowland became a bride, among her attendants was Mrs. Robert Gregg, the above-mentioned Elizabeth Adair.

"Mit" has been a popular attendant in weddings of his many friends, among them being Dick de Golian, David Black, John Shields, Crawford Rainwater, and Ewing Miles, all of whom will stand with him this evening.

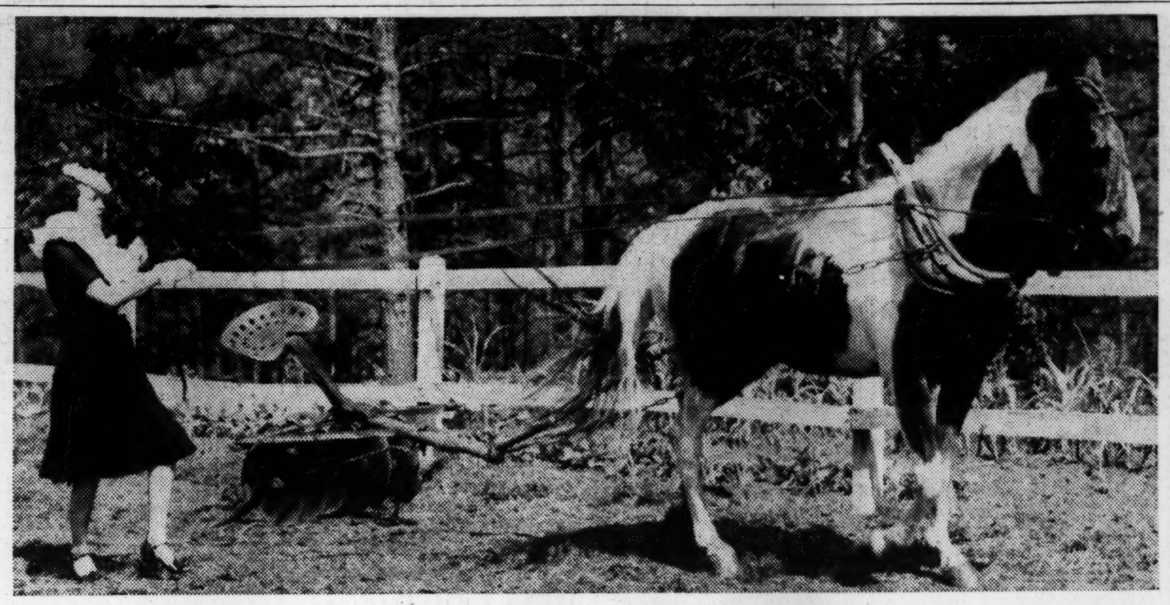
● ● ● ONE OF the most exciting vacation trips of the summer season awaits Lillian Klein, Dresden blond daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Klein, who leaves tomorrow for Panama!

Lillian will visit Betty McConnell (Mrs. Walden) Woodward, formerly of this city, who chose matrimony three years ago in preference to a formal debut here. Betty, you know, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wellington McConnell, who live on Springdale road.

Sailing from New Orleans, La., on the Ulua, the popular post-deb will spend seven glorious days and nights at sea, stopping off at Cuba for a glimpse of gay Havana.

Betty and Walden, who is a lieutenant in the U. S. Army, will herald their guest's arrival by entertaining at a tea-dance on the afternoon her boat docks at Panama. Lillian's beauty and graciousness of manner are certain to see her off to a grand start, and it is a safe prediction that she will not lack for dancing partners.

A house party at Rio Hata, one of Panama's most popular mountain resorts, is another feature of entertainment planned to delight the lovely Atlantan, and Sally hears that Betty and Walden have arranged a series of brief cruises near and around Panama in order to give Lillian a real glimpse of the glamorous spot.



When the "plantation walk class" is called at the Tuxedo Hunt Club's horse show tomorrow afternoon Mrs. C. P. Duncan will guide one of the entrants. Constitution Staff Photographer H. J. Slayton snapped this picture of Mrs. Duncan as she rehearsed for the show which begins at 11:30 o'clock Saturday at the clubhouse on Tuxedo road.

Recital By Pupils.

Mrs. Lynwood Jester presents her West End pupils in recital at the West End Woman's Club this evening at 8:15 o'clock. The program will be in the form of a floor show.

Atlantans Plan To Attend B. and P. W. Club Convention

On Monday, June 30, a large delegation will leave Atlanta for the national bienniel convention of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs, to be held in Los Angeles July 6-12. A special tour for this convention is being sponsored by the Georgia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, with Mrs. Odessa Henson, of Atlanta, as tour chairman, and members from adjoining states have been invited to join the "Dixie Special" leaving from Atlanta.

The national president is Dr. Minnie L. Maffett, of Dallas, Texas, and the theme of the convention is "Strengthen Democracy for Defense." Outstanding speakers will include the noted Chilean professional woman, Graciela Mandujano; Mary Craig McGeachey, representative in Canada and the United States of the British ministry of economic warfare, Charles P. Taft, and others.

The Atlanta club is planning to issue an invitation at the Los Angeles session for the 1943 national biennial convention to be held in Atlanta.

Those attending from this section are: Mrs. Dess Gurganus, past president, and Miss Elizabeth Woodward, tour chairman of North Carolina, with several others from that state; Miss Mary Carswell, president of the Florida federation with a nice group from that state, parties from West Virginia, Louisiana, Kentucky and Mississippi. From the state of Georgia will be Miss Elizabeth White, president, of Augusta; Mrs. Flora Thompson, Rome; Misses Ruby Davis and Jeanette Wallace, Waynesboro, and the following from the Atlanta club: Mrs. Gertrude Harris, president; Mrs. Mamie K. Taylor, third vice president; Mrs. Pearl Oastler, Miss Anise Troth, Mrs. Elsie Freeman, Miss Eunice Kilgore, Miss Leita Thompson and Mrs. Odessa Henson, first vice president of the state federation.

Couch–Mills.

Miss Helen Clarise Couch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer C. Couch, and William F. Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Mills, were married Thursday evening at the home of the bride's parents in Hapeville. Rev. Z. E. Barron, pastor of First Baptist church, performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends.

A. C. Jackson, of McDill Field, Tampa, Fla., was best man. Miss Ivey Smith, maid of honor, wore blue crepe, white accessories and a shoulder bouquet of pink carnations and baby breath.

The lovely bride wore a light blue ensemble, trimmed with covered buttons, with white accessories. Her flowers were pink roses, blue delphinium and baby breath.

Workers Needed For Red Cross.

An urgent request is made for volunteer workers at the West Peachtree branch of the American Red Cross. The need is greatest for surgical dressings and work rooms are open daily, except Saturday, from 10 to 4 o'clock.

Ragsdale-Conley.

The marriage of Miss Genevieve Jenkins Ragsdale, daughter of Mrs. Worth Ragsdale and the late Mr. Ragsdale, of Griffin, to Hugh Carmichael Conley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. D. Conley, of College Park, was solemnized Wednesday evening at the First Baptist church in Griffin. Dr. J. B. Turner performed the ceremony.

Miss Brooks and Mr. McCoa Are Married in Daytona, Fla.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., June 19.—Of wide interest is the announcement made today by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Paige Brooks, of Stovall boulevard, Atlanta, Ga., of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sarah Jane Brooks, to Nelson Eugene McCoa, son of Mrs. Ruth N. McCoa and the late Eddie Allen McCoa, of Port Gibson, Mississippi.

The ceremony was performed recently in Daytona, Fla., in the presence of the immediate families and a few close friends. The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Anne Jackson Brooks. Edgar McCoa acted as his brother's best man.

The bride graduated from Washington Seminary, and from Randolph-Macon, woman's college in Lynchburg, Va., where she was a member of the Phi Mu sorority.

The groom graduated from Chamberlain-Hunt Academy, and attended the Virginia Military Institute. He was later graduated from the Georgia School of Technology, where he was a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. recently Mr. McCoa has received a commission as ensign in the U. S. Naval Reserve.

After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. McCoa will reside in Atlanta.

Miss Venice Ruth Barton, whose engagement to Paul Carlisle Thompson has been announced, is the daughter of Mrs. Thelma Johnston. The couple's marriage will take place June 28 at noon at the home of the bride-elect's aunt, Miss Lillian Bryant, on Bolton road.

Miss Stovall, of Denver, Col., Will Marry Willett Moore

DENVER, Col., June 19.—New England pioneer stock and the charm of old Kentucky are combined in the bearing and personality of lovely Miss Barbara Stovall, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gentry Stovall, announced her engagement to Willett Sanders Moore, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson Moore, Sunday, at an informal cocktail party in their home.

The bride-elect attended Vassar College and is a member of the Junior League. Her interests are philanthropic. She is a sport enthusiast, with skiing her favorite sport. She is a member of the Arlberg Ski Club.

The bride-elect's maternal grandparents were early settlers in New Mexico, having come from New England. Charles Dyer, her great-grandfather, was a pioneer railroad executive. Her paternal grandparents came from Kentucky.

Her fiance attended the University of Colorado at Boulder before graduating from Yale in 1936. He is affiliated with the Chi Psi fraternity and the Book and Snake Senior society. He belongs to the Denver Country Club, University Club and Arlberg Ski Club.

Mr. Moore comes from a prominent southern family and is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Davis, of Atlanta, Ga. His mother is the former Miss Tochie Davis, of Atlanta, and he is the nephew of Mrs. B. M. Bailey and Mrs. Laurie Davis Webster, of Atlanta.

His great-grandfather, Billington Sanders, was the first president of Macon University at Macon, Ga. Another branch of the family, the Willetts, came from New York state and Willetts Point is named for them.

The young couple plan to be married on August 8 and they will reside in Denver.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dick, of Arthur, Ill., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Beall, having come to attend the marriage of their nephew, Sam Dick Beall, to Miss Miriam Woodall, on Saturday.

Miss Irma Jacqueline Garrett, whose engagement to Ernest Herman Burger Jr. is announced today, is the attractive young daughter of Mrs. Ether Garrett, and the sister of Julian E. Garrett. The couple's marriage will be an event of June 26, taking place at 8:30 o'clock at the West End Baptist church. The groom-elect is the son of Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Burger.

Mrs. Jones Named President By U. S. D. of 1812 Chapter.

Mrs. Robert H. Jones Jr. was unanimously elected president of the General John Floyd chapter, National Society U. S. D. 1812 at the meeting held recently. She succeeds Mrs. H. J. Gaertner, who resigned on account of illness.

Mrs. Jones has proved herself most capable in rendering many past services to the society. She has served many times as page for the Georgia Society and for the National Society, having recently served as national co-chairman of pages. She now holds the chairmanship of the correct use of the flag in the General John Floyd chapter. She is state treasurer of the Georgia Society, Children of the American Colonists, and charter treasurer of the Georgia Society, Daughters of Colonial Wars. She is a charter member of the Cherokee Chapter, Georgia Society, Daughters of the American Colonists and associate member of the James Edward Oglethorpe chapter.

The chapter met at Rhodes Memorial Hall with James D. Cromer, first vice president, presiding. Miss Annie Laurie Hill read an address on national defense delivered by Dr. Ralph Barton Perry, of Harvard University, which has received nation-wide acclaim. Mrs. DeLos Hill read an essay on "What Democracy Means to Me," by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, of Columbia University.

Mrs. Clarance D. Tebo, chairman of scholarships and medals, announced that 1812 medals had been presented by the chapter to Miss Cynthia Williams, of Washington Seminary, and Miss Elsie Crutchfield, at North Avenue Presbyterian school; also that an 1812 medal had been given to the most efficient naval cadet at the Georgia School of Technology by Mrs. John E. Lane.

Mrs. James D. Cromer gave a resume of the outstanding achievements of the society under the leadership of the retiring president, Mrs. Gaertner. The chapter won the state prize for the location of the greatest number of graves of soldiers of 1812, a total of 54. Nine volumes of "Military Affairs of Georgia from 1775 to 1842" have been bound for Rhodes Memorial Hall in honor of Mrs. Gaertner by the society, and two volumes of "Records from 1779-1843" and "Original Data Regarding the Yazoo Fraud" have been bound by Mrs. Gaertner.

The society placed an 1812 marker at the grave of Miss Nina Hornady, beloved charter member and president for 18 years, who was also an honorary national vice president. Scholarships to Washington Seminary and North Avenue Presbyterian School have been awarded. Fifty-four books have been donated to the Merchant Marine Library. Donations amounting to $36 have been given to Hospital 48, as well as many hours of service by members. The chapter voted to endorse the work of the U. S. O. and to make a contribution toward its work.

Miss Moore Weds R. B. Herrington.

MONTICELLO, Fla., June 19.—The marriage of Miss Julia Moore and Robert Benjamin Herrington was solemnized on the evening of June 7 in St. Matthews Episcopal cathedral, Dallas, Texas, with Bishop Harry T. Moore officiating.

The altar was arranged with many candles and white gladioli.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white crepe with which she wore white hat and a cluster of pink roses. She was attended by Mrs. John Cavadine, who wore black and white with cluster of white carnations.

The bridegroom was accompanied by Roy Calhoun as best man.

Following the service the couple was entertained at a dinner-dance at the Baker hotel.

Mrs. Herrington is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis Moore, of Monticello. She attended the Washington school for secretaries in Washington, D. C. She belongs to one of the oldest Florida families, each generation being noted for its musical talent and literary ability.

Mr. Herrington is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Edward Herrington, of West Newton, Mass. He is a graduate of the University of Boston.

Mrs. Thomas Honored

Mrs. Fred Thomas received tributes of appreciation as well as a handsome silver tray presented to her by the Emory University Hospital. R. S. Hudgins, superintendent of the hospital, made the presentation.

Mrs. Thomas has served in many capacities on the hospital board of the woman's auxiliary for more than 20 years, and will be missed when she leaves for Tennessee.

Expressions of appreciation were given by Mrs. W. L. Ballenger, president of the auxiliary, Mrs. Luther Medlock, who has worked with Mrs. Thomas many years, Mrs. George Lister, and others. Mrs. Thomas responded and asked to be retained on the roll and allowed to come back often.

The occasion marked the annual linen shower for Emory University Hospital. Mrs. Fred Shaefer, chairman of the committee, said 46 Methodist churches had a part in this work, 179 ladies having met on the "cutting days" to prepare the work done by groups of the churches. The total number of garments made was 5,431.

Rev. John H. Tate spoke on "The Lure To Perfection."

FAT GIRLS

Here's A Tip For You

All over America Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free-from-fat figure that seldom fails to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all the natural attractiveness that every woman possesses.

Every morning take ½ teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast; cut out pastries and fatty meats—go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream—that's all. Do this every morning. In three weeks get on the scales and note how many pounds of fat have vanished. Notice also that you've gained in energy, your skin seems clearer, your eyes sparkle with more glorious health—you feel younger in body, keener in mind.

Leading druggists America over sell Kruschen Salts, (a famous English formula) plain or new effervescent—sparkling—pleasant. You can always get it at Reed Drug Co., Liggett's, Walgreen's and all good drug stores. Try one bottle; lasts 4 weeks and costs but little. If not supremely satisfied, money back. —(adv.)

Mr. McKee is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. George Henry McKee, of Atlanta, his mother having been Miss Mary Deans, of Darlington, S. C. His maternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. John Orphelus Deans, of Darlington. On his paternal side the groom-to-be is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Henry McKee, of Darlington, S. C.

Mr. McKee graduated from Boys' High school, where he was an officer of the Alpha Pi fraternity. He later graduated from Georgia Tech with a degree in electrical engineering. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity at Tech and the Gold T, honorary athletic organization.

Rehearsal Supper Honors Couple

Miss Betsy Turner and Creighton Simpson, whose marriage takes place today, shared honors last evening at the rehearsal supper given by the former's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sington, at their home in Decatur.

The home which was illuminated entirely by candlelight, was decorated with valley lilies and wedding bells. The table in the dining room was centered with a miniature bridal scene.

Guests included Miss Turner, Mr. Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. L. O. Turner, Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Alsobrook, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Allen Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Schilling, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Lenard, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Napier Jr., Miss Elizabeth Simpson, Ben Cotton and the hosts.

Parties Are Given For Miss Stephens

Among enjoyable affairs of yesterday was the luncheon given by Mrs. Nat Hardin at the Piedmont Driving Club for Miss Louise Stephens, popular bride-elect of James E. Warren Jr.

An artistic arrangement of summer flowers, carrying out the bridal motif, graced the center of the table, and covers were laid for a group of close friends.

Last evening the betrothed couple shared honors at the dinner party given by the groom-elect's father, J. E. Warren, at Brookhaven, the Capital City Couhtry Club.

Pastel-shaded summer flowers centered the table, covers having been placed for a group of close friends of the honor guests.

lot Nights Call for Fresh Perfume

By Winifred Ware.

s the seasons change so must
As summer and its warm, ezeless nights overtakes us we y our own clothing require-its, beauty routines, and above our perfumes.
eavy, musty perfumes become ressive when the air, itself, be still and weighted, but fumes are important in sum-for waking up the spirits and ring our better selves. They st then be fragrances which are lilting and lifting, ones which make us happy!

Such a one is the little bottle of perfume which comes enchantingly packaged in a diminutive flower pot, poking its stopper up like a flower in bloom. It's an aristocrat in the perfume world, for it comes from a perfume family which has been with us many, many years.

It's as fresh and bracing as new-mown clover. There's much of the out-of-doors about it, just enough of the haunting note of nature to be subtle and wistful.

It's a perfume of late afternoon and evening, of out-of-doors dancing and enchantment . . . and it's lasting. The end of an evening's entertainment will find you still enveloped in an aura of its fragrance.

In case you don't want to pass up the fresh inspiration of this perfume, call me up and I'll be glad to tell you more about it, where you can get it and how much it costs. Call me at Walnut 6565 or write me in care of The Atlanta Constitution, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Wife Should Know Husband's Job

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

This has gotten me and I do not know which way to turn. To begin with my husband and I have been married a little over four years. We have a boy and a little girl, the latter is only two months old. Since I have been home from the hospital, my husband works almost every night until 1 and 2 o'clock. He also works in the day. Sometimes I wonder if he really works or goes out, because he never spends any of his time with us any more. My little boy is beginning to notice it. My husband seems to be crazy about the children, but does not have any time to play with them. I do not know whether to keep on living this way or not, for it is getting on my nerves, just sitting home waiting for him to come. He does not want me to go anywhere, he says I should stay home with the babies. He started going out with a girl just before my boy was born. I broke it up, however. But it has happened three times with the same girl, who knew he was married with a child. Sometimes I think I will give him up and get me a job. If any of my friends come over he acts so rude that they will never come to see me again. I am 22 years old and he is seven months younger.

WORRIED WIFE.

Has it ever occurred to you that perhaps your husband has to work at night to take care of you and the two babies? I agree with you that it takes a lot of courage to stay home night after night alone worrying about your husband and wondering if he is being unfaithful to you. If you think he is running around, let him run, as long as he is taking care of you and the children. There is nothing you can do to stop him, and you would be very foolish to walk out and face the world alone. I know your pride must be hurt to think that he would do you and the children as he does, but you say he has done it before, so I should think that by now you would know how unfaithful he is. Have you ever tried to find out what he does at night, what type of work he is doing? Men do not like to be checked upon, but I think you have a right to know what work he is doing. I think it would be a perfectly natural thing for you to discuss it with him. Have you ever tried this? I know you must wish to go out and have a good time, but you have two very important reasons for not being able to do this and these reasons are your two children. If you want to have company in the home, have it. If your husband is rude to them, it will be just a reflection upon him and not upon you. Perhaps you may be able to shame him by telling him that his young son notices his neglect and that he, (the husband), is not making a very good impression upon his son. Let him know that you realize what little respect he is showing you an the babies. If possible, just try to ignore him, but do not leave him now.

PERSONAL MAIL SHOULD BE RESPECTED

Dear Dixie:

Recently I was in the hospital and received a number of "get well cards." My wife's sister visited me one night and picked up the cards and looked at them without asking if I minded. They were lying on the table beside my autograph book. I did not mind her looking at them, but just the same, was it all right or not? If she did do wrong, do you think she should say something to me about it, or should I forget it? Please ease my mind of this.

WONDERING.

The cards were sent to you and to you alone, so therefore, they were classed as personal mail. Your sister-in-law, by all the rights of courtesy and good breeding, should not have opened the mail and looked through the messages. Of course, you did not mind, but she should have waited for you to show her the cards and waited for your suggestion that she look through them. If she had no more manners than to pick them up and look at them, I do not think you should expect her to mention the incident to you. The opportunity has passed. As rude as the act was, it was nothing so very serious, so if I were you, I would forget it. Remember, the next time you are ill, put your cards away to avoid a similar occurrence.

Drugs Used To Dull Fatigue May Be Injurious to Health

By Dr. William Brady.

An analgesic is a drug which benumbs or removes sensibility to pain, ache or other distress.

The manufacturer of a nostrum which purports to be a remedy for headache, upset stomach, indigestion, "cold" and whatnot now defies public intelligence and the federal authorities by urging use of the nostrum even for fatigue.

The only ingredient of the nostrum that has any significant medicinal effect is acetanilide.

Acetanilide is the active ingredient in innumerable proprietary (commonly called "patent," though they are not patented at all) medicines for headache, "colds," neuralgia and the like.

Aside from benumbing sensibility acetanilide has no known remedial effect.

Other drugs similar to acetanilide or practicaly identical in effect are antipyrin, phenacetin (also called acetphenetidin) and amidopyrin.

An inquiry addressed to more than 900 physicians by the U. S. Department of Agriculture some years ago elicited reports of 28 deaths in 814 cases of poisoning and 136 cases of habitual use of acetanilide, antipyrin and phenacetin.

Besides benumbing sensibility, all of these analgesics destroy red blood corpuscles and interfere more or less with the oxygen-carrying function of the blood. A characteristic sign of overdose or toxic effect is cyanosis, that is, bluish or dusky color of lips, nails, skin.

Since these drugs have no known remedial effect aside from their analgesic effect, it is surely foolish for anyone to take them in the childish belief that they can cure or correct an ailment or indisposition of any kind.

To suggest taking a dose of acetanilide for fatigue is a vicious thing for the federal authorities to countenance.

Fatigue is the natural consequence of prolonged work, play or exercise and rest is the only safe remedy for it. No drug can possibly banish fatigue or its effects, though any analgesic will benumb or dull sensibility to fatigue temporarily.

It is a wicked thing to permit children or adults to be taught that they may take a dose of acetanilide or similar drug when they feel weary and carry on indefinitely with the work, play or exercise that makes them weary.

This country needs some uncompromising health education free from the censorship of the interests that exploit popular ignorance.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Not Every Sneeze Is Allergy.

Kindly send your folder "Relief for Allergy," postcards M. C. P. It seems I sneeze almost continually till it tires me out.

Answer—If you will provide a stamped envelope bearing your address I'll send the monograph "Relief for Allergy," but the condition you describe is more likely trouble in the nose which requires examination and treatment by a physician.

Uriah Heep Hands.

Palms of my hands perspire so much I dread shaking hands with anyone . . . (R. C.)

Answer—If you don't mind the yellow stain that remains for a week or two, paint skin of palms once daily for a week with a solution of 25 grains of chromic acid in one ounce of water, and let is dry on the skin. If the if the stain is objectionable, apply to the palms each night for a week a pea-size portion of formalin ointment—a dram of 37 per cent formaldehyde solution in enough lanolin and petrolatum to make one ounce of ointment, to be dispensed in a collapsible tube.

One Soldier Has Good Teeth.

A Massachusetts selectee was found to have all 32 teeth, none of them having ever been filled or shown a cavity. He said he never brushed his teeth, and he has always eaten whatever he liked, and that other members of his family had only fair teeth, with as many cavities as the usual . . . (R. J. O'B.)

Answer—Thank you. The newspaper item reporting that anomaly says one of the causes of most rejections is defective teeth. Apparently the tooth-brusing fol-de-rol has not done much good for the teeth of credulous Wiseacres in America. I invite dentists to send a stamped addressed envelope and ask for a copy of the booklet "Save Your Teeth." Laymen enclose 25 cents for a copy. Correspondents who purport to be "Doctor" but do not reveal their degree need not apply.

Mickey Begins Ninth Andy Hardy Role

By Sheilah Graham

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—Mickey Rooney cannot make up his mind whether to go to college for the next seven years to be a lawyer—or to face life now. This is the theme of the latest and ninth Andy Hardy flicker, tentatively titled "Life Begins for Andy Hardy." Mickey, to solve his problem, takes a month off, goes to New York, and there meets Judy Garland and Patricia Dane.

The latter is a luscious-looking brunette, the sole contractual survivor of the 12 Ziegfeld beauties in the recent film. Pat, who is a wealthy girl in her ex-husband's right—her alimony is listed at $250 a week—serves in the film as Master Rooney's first serious infatuation. I watch them perform a scene together.

Miss Dane has to notice Mickey suddenly as he passes through her office. As she is not looking at him, she finds this difficult, and when Director George Seitz advises her what to do, she answers sharply, "How am I to know where he is?" Then Rooney tries to tell her how. "But, darling," she pouts. Mickey hurries over, hugs her, then directs her for the scene. "It's all so simple and easy," he tells her. This works, and Pat replies, "Thank you, darling."

But I don't think Miss Dane is going to be an easy female for direction. She is the temperamental kind. For instance, she holds up shooting for 20 minutes because she insists on re-making up her face herself—something that a professional could have done in a few minutes.

The studio is hoping that this Andy Hardy will do for Miss Dane what the series already has done for Lana Turner and Kathryn Grayson, both of whom cut their early success teeth in the "Hardys." But to make this dream more of a reality, Patricia will have to lose the self-satisfied expression that currently mars her pretty face.

Mary Astor sits near the open door of "The Maltese Falcon" set, enjoying the breeze. We are having one of our perpetual heat waves again. I draw up a chair and learn that Mary's husband, Manuel Del Campo, is in Canada to be a bomber pilot in the Canadian RAF. "He's a British subject," Mary informs me. "His father was English, his mother Spanish, and ever since the war began we have discussed the probability of his enlisting in the Canadian air force.

"My husband is 27," continues Mary, "and the right age for a bomber pilot. I miss him horribly, but, lucky for me, I've been so busy with my radio work and this picture that I haven't had much time to brood. I spent a weekend with him in Canada before the film began. But I haven't any idea when we can be together again. In Canada I saw a lot of wives whose husbands have gone to England, and they told me, 'When the time comes for him to go, you get very panicky—then you take it in your stride.'

"People ask me, why did he go? There's no reply—except he just had to. I think he finally decided to enlist when the Germans bombed Bristol. He went to school near Bristol, and he was so mad about the bombing that he immediately went to Canada."

To Discover Figure Faults, Place Back Against Wall

By Ida Jean Kain.

A woman almost has to be a detective to put her finger on the exact trouble with her own figure. A group of wide-awake Philadelphia women past 40 have written to insist that their chief grievances are: Not sway back but a protruding hipline and not a dowager's hump but rounded shoulders.

Anyone who has rounded shoulders but has managed to escape a dowager's hump and sway back is to be congratulated. It is practically impossible to make a habit of rounding the shoulders forward without letting the head poke forward and the small of the back cave in. That is a law of balance.

Here is a fairly accurate "lie detector" test for figure alignment. Stand with the back flattened against the wall. Make an effort to press the shoulders, back of neck, small of back, and back of hips closely against the wall. Standing in that position, reach back with one hand and, holding it flat, try to insert in the hollow at the small of the back. If you can do that easily, the chances are that the incurve is pronounced—that you have sway back. If you find it difficult, your back is either fairly straight or well padded.

Speaking of padding, let's take that on the hipline. Nature is notoriously lacking in style sense. She decrees upholstery where it is needed, and since we sit so much of the time the hipbones are apt to be the best upholstered portion of the figure. A general reduction in weight coupled with more activity would tend to slim this measurement.

But you want specific measures which will get results quickly.

To correct rounded shoulders, make a practice of resting on the back on the floor for a few minutes each day with a folded towel directly under the outcurve of the shoulders. Flex the knees and place feet on floor near hips. While you are resting, dig the small of the back into the floor several times. That will stretch your entire spine and promote better alignment.

Whenever you think of it during the day, stand up and stretch and swing your arms up, back around and down in wide circles from the shoulders.

To reduce a too pronounced derriere, take up rolling. Sit on the floor with knees flexed and feet held off floor close to buttocks. Then lean back on the floor until you are in a semireclining position with weight supported on forearms at either side. Roll from one side to the other 25 times. This brings all your weight to bear on the hipline at the back. At the same time, it is not a strenuous exercise. After you have become accustomed to it, you can increase it to 100 counts. Holding the feet off the floor makes it easier to put pressure on the hipline, but it also strengthens the lower abdominal muscles. After you have completed this stint, rest, then lie full length on the back on the floor, with arms stretched overhead on floor, legs straight down, and roll across the back from side to side. A straight roll of this kind is not as specific, but that means it takes in more territory. Roll 5 times, and increase.

YOUR DIETITIAN,
Ida Jean Kain.

Other good hip trimmers are to be found in the leaflet "Rolling Exercises." Send large stamped return envelope for this leaflet to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

AY DAY: Young Royal Guests Talk With President

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Wednesday.—We had an amusing lunch yesrday. Dr. Floyd Reeves and Mr. Mark McCloskey were our ily guests. We sat on the south portico looking across the White House lawn to the Jefferson memorial. In passing, I should like to say that I hope in time the gleaming white dome of that memorial will weather to a little softer color.

At a little before 6 o'clock Prince Bernhard and Princess Juliana arrived. He is as friendly and simple as she proved to be when she came on her first visit. I met them on the front portico and took them up to the President's study, where the President was waiting for them.

We had a small dinner and movie in the evening. The President had given me strict instructions that I was not to put over anything lucational on them, that it was to be an evening of entertainment! other words, he did not want me to use the occasion to show ay of the government films. Therefore, our dinner guests are none e wiser as to our farm security program, our soil conservation ork, the CCC, or any of the things which they might otherwise ave seen!

When our dinner guests had left, the President sat and talked our two young royal guests on European conditions until late in e night.

It was a joyful surprise just before dinner to get word from olling Field that Elliott had flown in from one of our outpost imps now being built. He telephoned his wife and made the dissessing discovery that his small son had had an accident to his e. My poor little daughter-in-law, Ruth, has had a great many ardens to carry alone since Elliott went away. If it is true that e's shoulders always adapt themselves to one's burdens, she must e growing visibly in these months.

Elliott told me something about this camp on which these regur Army boys are working 18 hours a day to transform into an rfield. The weather has been very trying and the boys who ame up from Miami are finding it very difficult to adjust to it. ven letters take a long while to get there. Elliott says it is easy think you have been forgotten by your family and friends as ell as your government.

We left by night train for New York City and then took a train t 8 o'clock this morning for Poughkeepsie. We had breakfast on e train and Miss Mildred McAfee, the president of Wellesley ollege, joined us. She will stay for lunch at my cottage, after hich we start off on our drive for Campobello Island.

Ensemble Is Ideal for Vacation Wear

By Lillian Mae.

Pattern 4752.

"Having a wonderful time," this sunny style seems to say. It's Pattern 4752 by Lillian Mae, and the perfect ensemble for vacation wear. The bodice of the sunfrock is soft and bloused, with plenty of roomy freedom. It buttons down the front and has young curved revers! There's an optional suntan cut-out in back, in the form of a triangle. That wide set-in girdle nicely shows off your little waistline, and the flaring two-section skirt may be either street or knee length. The jaunty short-sleeved bolero makes a useful addition to this style—let it match or contrast. You might make a suntan dress in gay cotton; then stitch up another closed-back style in a cool shantung or linen, to wear with the jacket.

Pattern 4752 is available in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18. Size 13, street length dress, takes 2 3-4 yards 35-inch fabric.

Crackers Crush Pebs, 6-3, Before Men's Night Crowd of 13,250

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Big Enough Billy Conn, at 174 pounds, ringside, was big enough. He did not lose to Champion Joe Louis through any disadvantage in weight, although he gave away 25½ pounds.

Weight made no difference. Either one of two things over which some athletes have no control is responsible today for Joe Louis, a great champion, still having his title.

Either Conn was as overconfident as they say or else he obeyed the natural instincts of his race. A fighting Irishman doesn't back up when he is hurt.

It is probable that the latter instinct robbed Conn of the keen judgment he showed through so many of the earlier rounds. When Louis stung him in the thirteenth round Conn, according to newspaper and radio description, threw caution to the winds, although he had the fight won on points.

At any rate, if any proof were needed as to the greatness of Joe Louis, that proof was offered in the thirteenth round when a hurt, dazed and bewildered Louis stormed back from the brink of defeat to save his coveted championship.

Fight fans today have an even greater appreciation of Louis, both for his courageous action and sportsmanship in the ring, and for his remarks after the fight.

Louis said, "Mistah Conn hurt me. He is a real fighter, and I'll be glad to give him another fight any time."

The ring has never known a greater sportsman than Joe Louis. He has proven that ever since he ascended to the pinnacle of the heavyweight division by beating James J. Braddock. Louis has never taken advantage of an opponent and has never changed expression over a victory. He has taken his triumphs in stride.

Some Red Faces There are a lot of red faces along experts' row today. Experts' row exists wherever sports writers comment on boxing.

Almost half of those who had anything to say beforehand insisted that Conn was too small and that it was a joke to fall for such ballyhoo. I recall that some even

Burge Clouts 23d Home Run In 4th Inning

Lochbaum Captures 7th; Stout Opens Against Chicks Tonight.

By JACK TROY.
Constitution Sports Editor.

Thirteen was a lucky number for those league-leading Crackers on men's night. Inspired by the season's second largest crowd, the Crackers last night matched each thousand with a base hit and won the final game of the Little Rock series, 6 to 3.

There were 13,250 customers on hand, and the Crackers broke their hitless streak against the fireball offerings of Randall Gumpert and the side-arm slants of John Intlekofer. They made 13 hits in all.

There wasn't anything lacking as the Crackers returned to form. Lester Burge clouted his 23rd home run of the season in the fourth. There were great plays in outfield and infield, and Professor Emile Lochbaum pitched steadily for his seventh victory.

The Pebbles threatened to tie up the game in the eighth on a couple of hits and a misplay by Manager Paul Richards, playing left, but Lochbaum killed the rally by fanning Schalk.

SPECTACULAR FIELDING.

The two double plays turned in by Ryan, Gerlach and Burge were as spectacular as any pair the season has produced.

The Crackers won the Peb series, two games to one, and tonight open a series against the Memphis Chicks. Former Chickasaw Allyn Stout will pitch.

In scoring six runs on 13 hits last night all the Crackers came out of their slump except clutch hitter Charley Glock, who went hitless. Even the Professor Lochbaum, himself, got a couple of blows, one a double. Burge connected for three. Ryan got a pair.

Both teams put it on for the brilliant gathering of the masculine sex. There were brilliant plays by Ryan, Gerlach and Mailho in the early innings.

The Crackers scored first on a neatly executed hit and run play and an error. Bates was on first with two out when Mailho hit to right. Bates, off with the crack of the bat, kept running and scored when Suydam fumbled the ball.

Tyack put the Pebbles back on even terms with a home run in the fourth.

TWO IN FIFTH.

Not to be outdone, Burge clouted the first pitch Gumpert delivered in the Cracker half. The ball sailed over the second tier of signs. The Crackers scored two more runs in the fifth. Lochbaum led off with a single and was forced by Bates. Mailho flied to right. Bates stole second. Ryan's hard single scored Bates. Burge singled to right, sending Ryan to third, and moved to second when Dwyer fumbled the ball. Glock was walked intentionally. Crompton hit to deep short, Glock beat the throw to second and Ryan scored. Gerlach flied to center.

Adding to the brilliant plays was Burge's flashy one-handed stab of Dwyer's low line drive to the left of first base in the seventh. In the sixth, Manager Richards raced back into deep center to take Schalk's drive over his shoulder.

The Pebbles drew back within a run of the lead by scoring two unearned runs in the eighth. Dellasega batted for Gumpert and singled to left. Franklin drove a single to left and when Richards let the ball get through him, Dellasega scored and Franklin went to third. Mahan flied to center and Franklin scored after the catch. Schalk struck out.

Two runs were the result of an eighth-inning Cracker rally, after two were out. Crompton, who led off with a single, scored on Lochbaum's clutch double. Lochbaum scored on Bates' Texas leaguer.

The Crackers cut the Pebbles down with another fast double play in the ninth.

IT'S A MAN'S GAME—And last night 13250 male customers poured into Ponce de Leon Park for the annual men's night game as guests of the Atlanta club. Although seats were free anywhere, the bleachers in left field were jammed, and, as usual, won cheering honors for the night. The boys were in the middle of a session as this photo was shot during a two-run rally in the fifth inning. The men supplied the second largest crowd of the year.

Proud of Billy, Desperately Ill Mother Smiles

Conn Promises To Get Title for 'Mom' Next Time.

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—(AP)—The mother of Billy Conn can take it on the chin with a smile as well as her big laughing boy.

Mrs. Margaret Conn, only 41 but stricken with a usually fatal malady, showed her pluck last night when a sister, Mrs. Rose Shook, came upstairs to her bedroom to tell her of Conn's knockout by Joe Louis in the unlucky 13th round in New York.

"That's all right, Rose," whispered the mother. "I know. I'm proud of Billy."

She had been too ill to have a radio in her darkened bedroom, where a nurse sat by her side. But she might have received an inkling of the fight from the two radios downstairs where the womenfolk of the family gathered and tensely listened to the broadcast.

Mary Jane Conn, 20-year-old "boss" of the house since her mother has been in bed, collapsed in her chair as the referee was counting out her brother. Then she sobbed, as did some of the other cousins and aunts present, but not 11-year-old red-haired Peggy Ann Conn, who piped:

"If he only could have gotten up. But he'll get another match and he'll beat that Joe Louis then. I'll bet you."

Billy telephoned home after the fight as he has been doing daily from his training camp. He promised again to get "mom" the title—"next time."

East Thomaston Nine Beats Soldier Boys

THOMASTON, Ga., June 19.—East Thomaston defeated the 29th Infanthy of Fort Benning, eight to one, today behind the seven-hit pitching of Gigilo. East Thomaston collected 11 hits off the three soldier boys' pitching. Dunbar hit a home run with nobody on. Cochran got four for five.

East Thomaston plays Camp Wheeler here Saturday afternoon.

Hank Sauer Hits Record Home Run

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 19. (AP)—Big Hank Sauer, 220-pound Birmangham Baron first baseman, hit one for the book last night in the fourth inning of the game with Knoxville.

The drive cleared the 33-foot scoreboard in left field which stands 405 feet from home plate. It was the first hit over the scoreboard since Rickwood field was opened in 1910.

Courts Loses To Crawford In Net Upset

City Champion Defeated in Quarter-Finals of Annual Tourney.

Three of the first four seeded players advanced to the semi-finals of the city tennis tournament yesterday but the defending champion fell by the wayside before the steady stroking of Hank Crawford.

Malon Courts, who was ranked third, lost to the ex-Tech star in three bitterly fought sets, 4-6, 7-5, 4-6.

But the rest of the favorites also had hard matches, all of them going the maximum number of sets.

Top-ranked Russell Bobbitt came within a gnat's eyelash of being eliminated by raven-haired Jack Teagle. Teagle was at match point in the third set and appeared to have Bobbitt completely out of position on the deciding point after a beautiful drop shot. However he played too safely and Bobbitt was able to get the ball back to deuce the game. Russell finally won by the scores of 6-0, 5-7, 7-5.

Second-ranked Don Buffington had a little easier time with Don Floyd, but nevertheless dropped the second set before winning, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

Dr. Kels Boland, who is seeded fourth, dropped the first set to Georgia's Zahner Reynolds but managed to stay in the running by winning the last two and the match, 5-7, 8-6, 6-1.

The semi-finals will be played Saturday afternoon with Buffington playing Boland and Bobbitt battling the surprising Crawford.

Other results included:

For Extra Smoothness, Extra Richness—Because It's Still Made the Old-Fashioned "Slow" Way!

MEN who know bourbon know what it takes to achieve the delicious extra-smooth, extra-rich taste of Old Jordan Straight Bourbon Whiskey.

We stick to the old methods that take more time, more care—the "slow" way we started 100 years ago. We still buy premium grains. Use more of them to a gallon. Simmer our mash slowly. But we're in no hurry. That's how we get such extra smoothness, extra richness. That's why Old Jordan—straight whiskey every drop—sells best in the "bourbon country." Yes, Old Jordan costs more to make, but not to drink! So treat yourself to the extra pleasure of Old Jordan.

Monument Honors Gehrig

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—A granite monument to perpetuate the memory of Lou Gehrig, the former Yankee first baseman who died June 2, will be unveiled before the start of the first game of the double-header between the Yankees and Senators at Yankee stadium July 4. The memorial will be a tribute from Manager Joe McCarthy and the Yankee players.

Lou Nova Is Expected To Fight Louis Next

'Smart Money' Boys Favor Cosmic Puncher Over Conn for September Title Clash.

By JACK CUDDY.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Despite Billy Conn's brilliant showing against Champion Joe Louis, the "smart money" boys along Forty-ninth street were convinced today that the Brown Bomber's September title opponent would be Lou Nova, of California.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, after a day of negotiations with both camps, declined to give any indication as to the probable challenger.

"I won't announce the September match until after Fritzie Zivic and Bummy Davis fight on July 1," Jacobs said. "Also, Louis won't fight again until September."

Major reason for the belief that Nova and his cosmic punch will tee off against Louis is the well-known fact that Promoter Jacobs and the champion's managers some time ago gave Nova's pilot, Ray Carlen, their verbal guarantee that Larruping Lou would be the September opponent.

Moreover, it is unofficially understood that the champion's co-managers, Julian Black and John Roxborough, prefer Nova as the challenger because: (1) Nova probably will take a smaller percentage of the gate than Conn, and (2) they now rate Nova as a less dangerous opponent than little Billy, who almost dethroned the brown monarch last night. They figure that Lou is a slower target.

JACOBS UNDECIDED.

Promoter Jacobs apparently is torn between the two attractions. He believes that Conn would draw the most money in September, were it not for the Irishman's contemplated marriage. He figures that a wedding, coupled with last night's knockout in the 13th round, would impair the gate.

Promoted Jacobs, who has become secretive about revealing the percentages or purses of fighters, declined to reveal how much money either champion or challenger earned in last night's brawl which drew 54,487 cash customers and a gross gate of $451,743. It was reported, however, that Conn received $77,202, while Louis naturally got the lion's share—$154,404.

Jacobs is secretive about purses now because certain big-time pugilists have been having private battles with Uncle Sam over their income taxes during the past year.

Meanwhile, Louis' managers explained that Bomber Joe will not be permitted to fight in July, as planned, because he injured his right wrist in the seventh round last night while pushing the great little 174-pound body-puncher away from him. Joe pulled a ligament. This means that the proposed title fight with either Buddy Baer or Abe Simon is cancelled. Joe leaves for his farm near Detroit tomorrow.

BUDDY AND ABE.

Because the July tilt has been called off, Promoter Tom Gallery, of Los Angeles, today was negotiating for an August match between the two giants, Buddy and Abe. He would like to stage this 10-rounder at the Los Angeles Coliseum, particularly for the benefit of the United Service Organizations. Gallery emphasized that nothing definite would be done about the match until Promoter Jacobs has assured him that Simon was definitely out of the immediate title picture.

However, Gallery did close today for a return 10-round bout at the Hollywood (Cal.) Stadium between Bob Pastor, of New York, and Turkey Thompson, of California, on July 14.

Conn To Wed Model Today, Friend Says

Billy Finally Wins Consent of Girl's Father, Report Reveals.

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—(UP) A close friend of Billy Conn told the United Press tonight that the Pittsburgh boxer, who was defeated last night by Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, plans to marry 18-year-old Mary Louise Smith tomorrow morning.

The friend said they would arrive here late tonight and would be married at fashionable St. Philomena's church.

It was claimed for Conn that he had won consent to the marriage from his fiancee's father, James L. Smith, former big league baseball player, who said earlier this week that he would not countenance a prize fighter in the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were reported here to be at their summer home at Ocean Beach, N. J.

(Inquiry at the Smith home in Ocean Beach tonight brought the information from a woman who refused to identify herself that the Smiths were not there and she implied that they might have returned to Pittsburgh. She said she did not know where the girl was and expressed doubt that any marriage would occur.)

The information was given at the close of a day in which it was reported variously that the couple was married or was about to be.

The friend said that Conn and his fiancee spent most of the day driving around Pennsylvania hills in the neighborhood of Brockway, only to abandon plans to be married in the small mining town of Elbon, Elk county, in favor of marriage tomorrow morning in their home parish.

The two had planned to be married by the Rev. Frank Schlindwein, of Elbon, a friend of Conn, but formalities of the Catholic church, to which both Conn and Miss Smith belong, prevented their marriage there.

Conn gave the slip to his entourage in New York early this morning. His manager, Johnny Ray, said that Conn called him from Philadelphia shortly after noon, and that was the last word of the handsome, curly-haired Irishman until tonight.

PERFECT PLAYER.

Joe McCarthy: "Did I ever see a perfect ball player? Sure, Frank Frisch. . . . He could run, hit from either side, could throw, bunt and had a great competitive temperament. . . . He had everything."

Sharp Shootin'

by AL SHARP

BIRMINGHAM COUNTRY CLUB, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 19.—For a long time now—probably since the days when the word "duffer" came into being—there has been the contention that all dubs could be good golfers if they went about the maneuver in the right manner.

Earl Ruby, of the Louisville Courier-Journal, not only believed the theory, but he put it to practice and the answer was yes.

Several years ago, Ruby took 11 dubs who answered his call for volunteers, or guinea pigs, and outlined a strenuous campaign designed to make all of them 70-shooters.

First, the dozen players shot three rounds to determine their average score. Ruby's was 102. Some of the others ranged as high as 118.

PRACTICE INDOORS.

Then it was agreed that all would take two hours of instruction six days a week for six months. The experiment started in the winter, and it became so cold that the players had to stay inside quite a bit. They took their lessons indoors, though.

Later, they went outside. Few lessons were missed. Pro Courtney Noe found his special class of pupils — the newspaperman, preacher, postal clerk, architect, real estate salesman, etc—consistent and willing.

Once in a while to break the monotony the class played two or three holes. Then at the end of five months the pro took his pupils out for their solo flights. Ruby was in the 90s the first time he went around.

His score dropped steadily on ensuing trips. The class played three times a week during the last two weeks of the experiment. During the fortnight down the stretch—it was the end of a long, weary trail, Ruby recalls—the newspaperman shot three 78s.

PROVES POINT.

Thus the experiment ended. Ruby had proved his point. He had been a second-degree dub, and here he was a 70-shooter. At least, he was always in the low 80s and dropped to the 70s enough to make golf much more interesting.

Strangely enough, when the experiment ended, the idea had a catch to it. Not a single one of the dozen golfers plays regularly today. "The practice indoors got us," Ruby explains. "I think if we could have got out more it would have been all right, but we didn't want any part of a golf course after those six months."

Since then, Ruby has played a few times. I played in a foursome with him yesterday morning. He did not score well, but time and again you could recognize the fine swing which it took six months of ardent endeavor to produce. It was his first round in two years.

Ruby recommends golf, though. He wants to start all over again. "And here's another thing," he said as we zigzagged around. "I weighed 138 pounds at the start of the experiment. At the end, I weighed 170. Don't think I wasn't puny when I started, either. It made a new man of me. I still weigh 170 and I've felt better ever since."

Revived Fight Fan Asks Who Won It

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 19.—(AP)—Revived from a heart attack after a fire department squad worked two hours and exhausted four tanks of oxygen, Mrs. Delia M. Griffin, 58, asked:

"Who won the fight—Louis or Conn?"

Byrd and Bulla Snatch Lead in 4-Ball Matches

Smith-Little Team Second in Inverness Chase for $2,000

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 19.—(AP)—Forty-five birdies and an eagle flew off the blazing clubs of 16 of the country's top-flight professionals today as Sammy Byrd, former New York Yankee outfielder, and his partner, Johnny Bulla, flashed into the lead in the first round of the 126-hole seventh Annual Inverness Four-ball matches.

Byrd and Bulla ripped seven strokes off par with a sizzling best ball of 64 to win 3 up over Henry Picard and Johnny Revolta, the only two-time winners of the $7,000 round-robin classic.

Results of other matches, with the best-ball scores in parenthesis:

Horton Smith and Lawson Little (65) two up over Jimmy Thomson and Byron Nelson (67).

Ralph Guldahl and E. J. (Dutch) Harrison (65) one up over Clayton Heafner and Dick Metz (66).

Lloyd Mangrum and Harold (Jug) McSpaden (65) even with Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan (65).

Hogan, the year's leading money winner, and No. 1 man in the race for the Vardon trophy, came up with the day's lone eagle, a neat three on the 516-yard 12th hole, where he was over the green in two, but chipped in from 30 feet.

Under the Inverness scoring plan, a team is given a plus for each hole won, and a minus for each hole lost, and the net at the end of the round determines the standing.

At the end of the opening match, with six to go through Sunday, the standing in the race for the $2,000 top prize is:

Byrd and Bulla, plus 3; Smith and Little, plus 2; Guldahl and Harrison, plus 1; Mangrum and McSpaden, zero; Demaret and Hogan, zero; Heafner and Metz, minus 1; Thomson and Nelson, minus 2; Picard and Revolta, minus 3.

Bulla was the "hot" player today, accounting for six birdies.

Two Hit Bogey At East Lake

Two players found the blind bogey, 79, at the East Lake golf course yesterday. The winners were E. R. Partridge and Dr. A. O. Linch. Scoring 78s were J. B. Cheatham, A. B. Edge, Jiroud Jones, A. S. Hatcher, B. E. Sale, T. B. Willard, E. P. Crutchfield and J. R. Harris. Tallying 77s were W. L. Markert, E. L. Wight, Dr. C. W. Strickler, A. N. Patton and W. Peters.

Excitement Kills 3 Fight Listeners

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—(AP)—Three elderly Pennsylvanians listened with so much excitement to radio accounts of the Billy Conn-Joe Louis fight that it cost them their lives.

Heart attacks killed T. Frank Lynn, 76, Allentown tax collector, and Andrew Burke, 68, Philadelphia. Elmer B. Epishman, Lancaster, died of a cerebral hemorrhage on the eve of his 76th birthday.

Before Burke died at a hospital he declared:

"It was a great fight."

Parker Beats 'Bitsy' Grant In Three Sets

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP)—Don McNeill and his arch enemy, Bobby Riggs, marched on today toward the finals of the national clay courts tennis tournament.

McNeill, top-seeded and defending champion, breezed into the semifinals at the River Forest Club with a 6-3, 6-4, 6-1 triumph over Ted Schroeder, of Glendale, Cal., ranked seventh. Riggs, who lost his No. 1 ranking among amateurs to McNeill last season, also reached the semifinals by whipping Bill Reedy, Beverly Hills, Cal., 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

Frank Parker, fourth-seeded, of Spring Lake, N. J., disposed of little Bryan Grant, Atlanta, 7-5, 7-5, 6-1, and Gardnar Mulloy, Coral Gables, Fla., posted a 3-6, 6-1, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4 decision over Billy Talbert, Cincinnati, conqueror of third-seeded Joe Hunt yesterday.

Parker plays McNeill and Riggs meets Mulloy in the semifinals.

Tommy Plays Conqueror of Everett Today

Crow, Benton, Rainwater and Gaillard Lose at Birmingham.

By AL SHARP.

BIRMINGHAM COUNTRY CLUB, BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 19.—One Atlantan and two other Georgians weathered the first two matches in the Southern Amateur golf tournament here today, advancing to the quarterfinals.

Tommy Barnes, a pre-tournament favorite with Sam Perry, beat a pair of fellow citizens, Curtis Benton and Harold Crow, to carry Atlanta's name into the round of eight. Sonny Ellis, southern prep champion from Columbus, and Charlie Harper, Valdosta youngster, came through with victories.

Barnes had no trouble with Benton, winning, 7 and 6, as he shot a 2-under-par score for 12 holes. Crow, who is only 17 years old, gave Tommy plenty of trouble before bowing, 2 and 1.

He had Barnes one down at the turn and until he ran into a stymie at the 17th hole Harold was very much in the match. Barnes had 39-36—75, which is four over par. Crow beat Dallas Weaver, of Cedartown, 3 and 2, this morning.

EVERETT BEATEN.

Barnes will meet Marshall Balentine, former Carolinas' champion, tomorrow morning. Balentine beat Alvin Everett, Rome's national left-handed champion, 2 up, this afternoon as the southpaw soared far over par.

The 16-year-old Ellis beat Raleigh Jenkins, of Birmingham, 3 and 2, and then stopped Ralph Stevens, of Miami, 4 and 2. He was even par for both matches.

Harper, who is 19 years of age, tripped Earl Christiansen, the Miami policeman who holds the Florida state title, 3 and 1, in a distinct upset, and halted Dr. Newton Allen, of Selma, 3 and 2, in the afternoon. He was 1 over par against Christiansen and 3 over par in the afternoon.

Everett turned back Chasteen Harris, former champ from Memphis, 1 up, in his first match, finishing birdie-birdie-par after being 1 down through the 15th hole.

Jack Slayton, the short, straight shooter from Columbus, was another Georgian to survive the first round before going down. He set back Mack Brothers, a Nashville favorite, 2 and 1, with a 1-over-par score in the morning before losing to Johnny Cummings, former Southern League baseball player, 3 and 1. Cummings was two under par for the last 10 holes. Johnny was a finalist at Nashville

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—The New York Yankees found their way back to the victory trail today with a 7-to-2 assault on the Chicago White Sox, who had whipped them by one run in the first two games of the series. Marvin Bruer held the Sox to five hits.

Charley Keller hit a home run with the bases loaded in the fourth inning for the big spark in the Yankee onslaught. It was his third in three days and twelfth of the season.

10 Fast Fights Billed Tonight At Lakewood

Maybe it is because fight interest is at a high peak right now, what with the great crowd and talk attracted by the Conn-Louis fight, but the amateur fights which start tonight at Lakewood Park are creating unprecedented attention.

Atlanta ring fans, long-starved for any kind of a fistic program, are promised a rip-roarin' show of 10 fights tonight, as the City Novice tournament and the Golden Gloves trials get under way, starting promptly at 8:30.

Three Macon scrappers will appear on the program in the open class, opposing a trio of Atlanta mitt tossers. The invaders are Grady Favors, semifinalist in the Southeastern Golden Gloves meet here last February; Milton Horton and J. W. Lewis. They will be opposed by James Holton, Roland Lee and Bill Brewer, respectively.

These fights are sponsored by the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. and sanctioned by the A. A. U. All fights will be three rounds of two minutes each.

Boxers are advised to weigh in at 7:30 tonight under the Lakewood grandstand. All boys who appear on the programs will be given fare and equipment prizes. Winner and runner-up in each weight class receive gold belt buckles.

Admission to the bouts is 20 cents.

TRACO LOSES.

In two softball games at Piedmont park yesterday, the Vanguard Class defeated the Traco Division, 14 to 7, and the Lucas and Jenkins theater team won over the Musicians, 13 to 8.

Red Sox Peddle Hale to Terrymen

BOSTON, June 19.—(AP)—The sale of Infielder Odell Hale to the New York Giants was announced tonight by General Manager Eddie Collins, of the Boston Red Sox.

Hale, who came to the Red Sox from Cleveland, along with Catcher Frank Pytlak and Pitcher Joe Dobson, in the trade for Gerald Walker, Jim Bagby Jr. and Gene DeSautels, has seen little service this season. Used chiefly as a pinch hitter, he made only five hits out of 24 trips to the plate for an average of .208.

PITTSBURGH, June 19.—(AP)—Harry Danning hit two doubles and a triple to lead a 12-hit assault today as the New York Giants overpowered the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9 to 6.

Joe Moore hit a home run for New York and Elbie Fletcher rapped one for Pittsburgh. The Giants moved back into third place in the National League by a percentage margin over the idle Cincinnati Reds.

PELS NIP VOLS IN 14TH.

NEW ORLEANS, June 19.—(AP)—A single by Bill Hart in the 14th inning gave the New Orleans Pelicans a 1-0 victory over Nashville tonight and a 3-to-1 edge in the series.

Trader Horn went the route for the local team and allowed the Vols 8 hits. George Jeffcoat held the Pels in check until removed for a pinch-hitter in the 12th. John Sain took over the hurling duties and was charged with the loss. The game lasted two hours and 55 minutes.

BARONS WIN IN 11TH.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 19.—(AP)—A double by Garton Del Savio, Baron shortstop, in the eleventh inning, broke up a pitcher's battle tonight and gave Birmingham a 3-to-2 victory over Knoxville's Smokies.

The timely blow scored Earl Harrist, who allowed seven hits to best Harry Smythe, of the Smokies, in the battle for hurling honors. The Barons slugged Smythe for 11 safeties.

flatly predicted a two or three-round knockout for Joe Louis.

It doesn't pay to sell the Fighting Irish short. Personally, I am happy to have lost a five-spot on an EVEN wager that Conn would last the full 15 rounds. I am happy he didn't back up in the thirteenth. It was not his nature to get on a bicycle. It would have made for a sorry ending, and no one would have wanted the title to change hands in that fashion.

Had Conn been a Pastor in the thirteenth round there would be a new champion today. But who would want a Pastor for a champion?

And, by the way, it was none other than Pastor who said Conn didn't have a chance. And yet if he had deigned to hop on Pastor's bicycle, Conn could have been champion of the world.

Sadder, Anyway There is many a sadder but probably not wiser betting man in our democratic country today. It would be interesting to know just how much money was lost when Billy Conn answered the bell for the thirteenth round.

I know many a man in our town who figured that he wouldnt last longer than five and at the outside no more than eight. And yet he was within two seconds of starting the fourteenth round. He might, then, have finished the fight.

The skeptics won't feel so free to criticize the boxing game now. Many firmly believed Louis would let Conn win and that they'd meet in a return fight for a million-dollar gate. But it is not in Louis' nature to let an opponent win, no more than it is in Conn's nature to run away from a punch.

And a return fight, in view of what happened Wednesday night in the Polo Grounds, New York, can't help but prove the biggest attraction since the second Dempsey-Tunney title scrap.

Mistaken Idea People say, "Oh, if Conn only had been bigger." Well, suppose he had been bigger. He would have been slower and his punch wouldn't have been any deadlier. He would have made a better target for Louis.

The idea that large men are such punchers is more theory than fact. What about Carnera, Willard, Braddock and Abe Simon, to name a few? They were big hulks of men, especially Carnera, Willard and Simon, but they weren't devastating punchers.

Either a fighting man has a great punch or he doesn't. One doesn't develop it. A man's born with it. Great hitters in baseball aren't made. They're born. You can teach a man to box or field. But you can't give him what nature failed to bequeath in the first place.

Fighting Instinct Doc Shelton dropped in and left a pertinent thought concerning the fight, which has made folks forget the war.

Doc saw a rooster fight once. One rooster mortally wounded another. But the victorious rooster couldn't let well enough alone. It was the gamecock's nature to keep on fighting.

So it hopped in, and, in its death throes, the other rooster spurred it in the heart. The rooster that had the battle won died before its vanquished opponent.

New Angle Maybe old man Smith won't be so anxious to fight Billy Conn now. For the Pittsburgh fiancee of his daughter might beat him to the punch—as he so often did Louis.

So three of Georgia's 10 qualifiers were left after the first day, still a pretty good percentage in the round of eight which includes

Lou Faquin Wins Match at Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 19.—(AP) Lou Faquin, red-headed Memphian, defeated Richard Shillinglaw, Nashville, 7-5, 11-9, today to win a place in tomorrow night's semi-finals of the Mississippi state tennis tournament here.

Faquin will oppose Richard (Bud) Hart, of Memphis and Miami. Louis Schopfer and Billy McGehee, both of Tulane University, will be opposed in the other semifinal match.

Oliver Hurls No-Hit Game

BUFORD, Ga., June 19.—Red (Pluto) Oliver, Georgia Tech pitcher, hurled a no-hit game for the Buford Bona Allen nine today to down Clarkdale, Atlanta Textile League pennant winner, 6 to 1.

Oliver struck out 13 and walked only two. The only run off him came on a base on balls, a wild pitch, a ground out and a fly to the outfield. Previously the Decatur (Ga.) boy had hurled two three-hitters for Buford.

Another Jacket player, Jimmy Hearn, banged out four singles to pace the 16-hit Buford attack. Rus Lyons and Carter Mitchell were next with three safeties apiece.

Buford will play Dixisteel, of Atlanta, a team to which they lost this week, at 5 o'clock in Buford tomorrow afternoon.

Lumber Firms Reject Terms For Settlement

Dykstra's Resignation From Harassed Board Is Accepted.

By The Associated Press.

The Defense Mediation Board's efforts to iron out labor difficulties in the Puget Sound lumber industry met a setback yesterday when employers rejected a proposal for industry-wide negotiations with the International Woodworkers of America (CIO).

Only last Saturday, the IWA had accepted board recommendations for a temporary settlement of a five-week-old strike which originally affected 22,000 workers and 50-odd lumber camps and mills.

The board proposed industry-wide negotiations on remaining problems as an alternative to a study of the whole situation by a board-appointed commission.

Employers said two-thirds of the strikers had gone back to work before the union acted and that negotiations on an industry-wide basis now would confuse both sides.

Board Loses Dykstra.

The board's recommendations for a temporary agreement included resumption of work with an increase of 7½ cents to a basic wage of 75 cents an hour and annual vacations with pay.

The development dropped a major new problem into the board's lap at a time when it was losing its present chairman, Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra.

The White House announced that President Roosevelt had accepted Dykstra's resignation, effective July 1. He will return to his duties as president of the University of Wisconsin.

There was speculation that Dykstra would be succeeded by William H. Davis, the present vice chairman.

Crisis in Shipyards.

Another west coast development was apparent arrival of a crisis in relations between national leaders of AFL machinists and San Francisco local leaders who favor continuing a strike at 11 shipyards and drydocks holding $500,000,000 of defense contracts.

A meeting to consider the question of going back to work as requested by President Roosevelt broke up with an angry exchange between Harvey W. Brown, international president, and Harry Hook, business manager of the local. Brown had asked the machinists to go back to their jobs, but Hook advised going on with the strike.

Officials would not say whether the meeting took a vote on the question of returning to work.

Lake Strike Called.

A strike by the CIO National Maritime Union affected operation of six Great Lakes boats owned by the Nicholson Transit Company. The union said it was protesting "refusal" of the company to bargain collectively with it. A company spokesman said the NMU had refused to submit to a Labor Board election and that the AFL's International Seafarers' Union also claimed a majority of employes.

During the day, President Roosevelt suspended the eight-hour limit on daily work for men employed on defense construction in the Canal Zone, Puerto Rico and Alaska. The action was necessary, he said, in order to accomplish the work within the time required by the interests of national defense.

In Apollo, Pa., employes of the Apollo Steel Company voted to end a five-week strike and accept an agreement worked out in Washington, whereby wages will be boosted 11 cents an hour for about 300 hourly rated workers and 8 cents an hour to approximately 700 tonnage men.
